ROOSEVELT OFF TO DEBT MEET

Today

Another Crossing,
One Contented Cow,
Doctor to Governor,

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LAS VEGAS, N. M., Nov. 22.

THIS IS written, as you may suspect, on one of many trips between the Atlantic and the Pacific. Soon the train will be going through the western desert region, so called.

When they choose, men with the use of water can make those deserts blossom. These high lands are saved as a residence for a future and better race of flying men.

But you, if under fifty, will see the day when financiers, with noses, hearts and minds deep in money, will fly on Friday afternoon to a high hill in Arizona, New Mexico or some other far away spot to forget over Saturday and Sunday the business of money grubbing.

FORT MADISON, Ia., with fine soil, wonderful sunshine, has fifteen thousand intelligent people and beautiful, healthy high school girls. The Mississippi River is one mile and a quarter wide there, so says the yardmaster.

When the Santa Fe "Chief" stopped, a flock of high school girls comes tripping to the platform, as you have seen gentle doves alight on St. Mark's Square in Venice. One supposes they have come to greet a returning school superintendent. He is wrong. Norma Talmadge, of the "screen," is on the train.

Imagine the sorrow of those fair young things, with eager eyes and pink cheeks, when Miss Talmadge fails to appear.

LATER IN her stateroom, with her mother, she says:

"I didn't know they were there. Anyhow, I have been off the screen so long, they wouldn't want to see me. They probably heard that you were on the train."

This she says seriously, and such modesty is becoming in youth.

The wise will be even more interested in the thoughtful Talmadge mother than in the charming young daughter. That mother's intelligence has guided her three daughters, Constance, Norma and Natalie, through their careers of remarkable success.

Says this model mother:

You may be perfectly sure that she does, and that the girls will never be poor, apart from the fact that they are married to rich men.

IF YOU could look through the windows of this Pullman car, now, you would see rolling toward the sky, most beautiful Colorado hills covered with dry grass, and among the evergreen trees in bright sunshine you would see hundreds of sheep, nibbling grass, to be changed into mutton.

And you would wish that hundreds of thousands of children and old men and women from the East might be sharing and enjoying this wonderfully high climate and sunshine.

If we ever learn how to use what we have in our magnificent empire, how to use and distribute human labor, wealth and food, there will be no more depression.

At the bottom is a well-worn path, and along the path, no other living creature in sight, slowly and majestically walks a fat cow, her sides bulging out, heavy with calf.

There is a picture of duty well done, patience with conditions as they are, adaptation to environment. There is a contented being. While grass grows, water flows and the sun shines, she lacks nothing.

If the people of the United States had real brains they would know no depression while they have too much of everything that they need.

DR. B. B. MOEUR never expected to be Governor of Arizona. A country doctor, his specialty was bringing babies into the world. Mother and baby always lived, and "did well."

He says:

"I never owned a dress suit, just wear one kind of clothes. They are good enough to go anywhere. Never asked anyone to vote for me, never had to deny anything, never had to look over my shoulder while I talked."

"SEEST THOU a man diligent in his business, he shall stand before kings."

Dr. Moeur is diligent. Spent his youth on the Texas range. When he has a patient very ill he says to assembled relatives:

"Get down on your knees and pray. I have done all I can."

Also, in 1917, when young men from Tempe, his home town, went to war, Dr. Moeur sent each one a letter saying any bills they owed were cancelled and he would look after their families without charge while they were away.

Such a man had to be elected governor. By the way, he will continue his baby work, governor or no governor, because a lot of mothers won't have anybody else.

MARK O. DANFORD, oil man of Colorado, emphasizes the fact that woman scorned is dangerous. Aged 57, divorced with grown children, Mr. Danford planned to marry "an attractive widow."

In a hotel bedroom he arranged a "last appointment" with Margaret Loftus, who felt that she had a prior claim. It was absolutely a last appointment. She killed him with four bullets, then killed herself.

Divorce Suit Links 'Fifi,' Danish Envoy

FIFI WIDENER

Nevada Action Hints New Romance for Widener Heiress

RENO, Nev., Nov. 22.—(AP.)—The names of Aksel C. P. Wichfeld, former Danish legation attache in Washington, and Josephine (Fifi) Widener, Philadelphia, were linked anew by divorce colonists today as it became known Wichfeld had filed suit for freedom from the former Mabelle F. Swift, reputed Chicago packing fortune heiress.

Wichfeld filed suit secretly in Carson City, November 10, the Associated Press learned. He and Miss Widener returned to Reno several weeks ago and have been seen frequently together. They were previously here when Miss Widener was establishing residence for divorce from Milton W. Holden, of Philadelphia.

At that time Miss Widener denied reports they planned to marry, and Wichfeld declined to discuss the possibility. Neither could be reached last night.

Wichfeld, it was learned, charged cruelty in his Carson City suit, but the details were not revealed. The summons to Mrs. Wichfeld in the case are being published in a newspaper.

Before her marriage to the legation attache, Mrs. Wichfeld was the widow of Clarence Moore, who died in the Titanic disaster.

Miss Widener, daughter of Joseph E. Widener, Philadelphia sportsman, has been married twice. In 1926 she divorced her first husband, Carter Randolph Leidy, of Philadelphia, with whom she eloped when she was 17. She and Holden were divorced here last April.

3 Pitt Students Escape Home Fire

Three University of Pittsburgh students fled to safety early today when fire was discovered in the home of R. W. Kaufman, at 144 De Sota street. Confined to the kitchen, the fire caused $400 damage. The blaze was discovered by William E. Greenameyer, 21, a roomer, who awakened Mr. and Mrs. Kaufman and their two sons.

U. S. to Sell Gem Seized From Peggy

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(INS.)—A $12,000 diamond and emerald pendant, gift of one of her exhusbands to Peggy Hopkins Joyce, will be knocked down to the highest bidder tomorrow by government auctioneers in Brooklyn.

The jewel was confiscated when Peggy returned from abroad and failed to declare it.

MANUSCRIPT OF SCOTT STOLEN

Hunt Thief as Morgan Relic Disappears At Columbus

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—One-third of the original manuscript of Sir Walter Scott's novel "Guy Mannering," owned by J. P. Morgan, has been stolen from the Scott centenary exhibit in the library at Columbia University.

The manuscript, bound in three leather volumes, was lent to the centenary exhibit by the financier, who has a famous private library containing hundreds of rare books and manuscripts of almost incalculable value.

The missing manuscript was the second of the three volumes. The first and third volumes were untouched by the thief.

WIDE SEARCH STARTED

News of the theft became public today when police throughout the East were asked to search literary channels for the manuscript, which disappeared from its place in the exhibit about October 28. Officials of the library reported the theft to the police yesterday.

The stolen volume contains about 200 pages of script in ink. The leatherbound covering was the frank mark of the Morgan library on the inside. The manuscript was purchased by the late J. Pierpont Morgan, father of the present owner.

No value was placed on the manuscript in the report to the police and no information on this point was obtainable at the office

MOTHER SAVES SONS IN FIRE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 22.—Mrs. Julia Adams left her sickbed here early today when a gas explosion ripped through a neighbor's home and awakened her two soundly sleeping sons as flames spread from the wrecked building to her home and another adjoining structure.

When the three reached the street, Mrs. Adams collapsed and is believed to be in a serious condition at the home of a neighbor.

The explosion and resultant fire, which destroyed the three buildings and scorched a fourth, caused a loss estimated at $10,000.

The explosion occurred in the home of Sam Spambito, who, with Mrs. Spambito and three children, is visiting Pittsburgh. Neighbors told police the Spambitos had been threatened recently by a stranger.

The house occupied by the Spambitos was the former home of Frank Romeo. Romeo moved eight weeks ago, and a day after his removal his new home was destroyed by an explosion.

Beer O. K. Seen by Garner

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Speaker Garner told newspapermen today that in his opinion "the House will pass a beer bill at the short session," but refrained from any forecast as to the probable time.

Speaker Garner said also that with a beer bill and reductions in government expenses it might be possible to secure a balanced budget without passing other forms of taxation.

ESTIMATES REVENUE

Asked what percentage beer he favored, the Democratic Vice President-elect said, "within the constitution." He was asked:

"About 2.75 or 3 per cent?"

"Somewhere around that."

The Speaker gave as a "guess" that legalized beer would bring in $250,000,000 to $300,000,000 revenue annually.

Speaker Garner said that from January to May legislatures in from 35 to 40 states were meeting and would be able to take action to legalize the sale of beer within their borders.

OUTLINES PROCEDURE

He did not say whether he felt there should be additional tax legislation aside from beer. He declared:

"If business picks up we've got enough tax laws on the books. "With a beer bill and reduced expenditures we might approach a balanced budget."

Discussing procedure on beer legislation, Garner said the House Judiciary Committee should first ascertain what alcoholic content is constitutional. Then, he said, the Ways and Means Committee could estimate on the revenue such beer would return.

Mrs. Garner Aga'n Works as Secretary

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(INS.)—Mrs. John N. Garner, wife of the Vice President-elect, resumed her work as her husband's secretary within an hour after they arrived from Texas today—the sixty-fourth anniversary of the Speaker's birth.

She plans to continue her daily task until March 4 and then she may become a "part-time" secretary of the Vice President.

Bandits Slug Man, Rob 2 in Restaurant

Two bandits early today slugged James T. Donovan, Jr., of 9 Dunmoyle place, a customer in the restaurant of James Dallas, 112 North Beatty street, and robbed him of $90. From Dallas, the bandits obtained $36. Donovan's injuries, slight, were treated by a nearby physician.

Freed Holdup Suspects Given Jobs by Accuser

Three unemployed men, arrested as payroll robbery plot suspects, not only were freed in Central Police Court today, but were given jobs by the man responsible for their arrest.

Joseph O'Leary, of 932 Roxana street, and his relatives, Andy Oslack and John Blorchaf, of Nanty-glo, Pa., were discharged by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg. Roy Huntsman, contractor, said they were not the men he had seen loitering around a new building at North Highland avenue and Hoeveler street prior to his receipt of a letter warning him that his paymaster was to be held up Saturday. No holdup materialized.

After the hearing Huntsman apologized to the three. He asked:

"Are any of you men working?"

One of the men replied:

"Not for more than a year."

"Come out to my job right away and go to work."

As the three climbed into Huntsman's automobile bound for East Liberty, O'Leary exclaimed:

"This is the best break I've had for a long time. My kid will have a merry Christmas after all."

'TWICE SLAIN' WIDOW GONE ONCE MORE

Reported Killed in West, Visits Kin, Then Vanishes

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 22.—The widow McCutcheon has disappeared again!

Out of nowhere she appeared last night to give physical proof she was not the murder victim in Chicago whose body her brother was prepared to claim.

And today she took to the road again, this former New Kensington school teacher of 56.

Murder, real and fancied, have trailed her for years. This is the second time she has been mourned as slain. And 34 years ago there was a genuine murder—her husband, Joseph McCutcheon, an oil driller, was killed at a picnic near New Kensington.

It was at dusk yesterday Mrs. Ida McCutcheon, unannounced, walked into the home of her nephew, Chalmers Steele, at Logan's Ferry.

At the moment in Chicago her brother, "Cal" Fryer, a newspaper cartoonist, was preparing to claim a battered body at the Cook County Morgue as hers.

At 8:30 o'clock this morning Mrs. McCutcheon departed from her nephew's home and said she was going to Ohio—no more. A niece, Mrs. Steele said her aunt went from place to place.

Last night Mrs. McCutcheon visited her daughter, Mrs. Harry Miller, on a farm near Markle, Westmoreland County.

But requests to talk with her were refused. The daughter was asked:

"Where has Mrs. McCutcheon been while the Chicago identification was going on?"

From behind a closed door came this answer:

"Tell him I've been in Chicago. I'm going back in a few days, too."

HOOVER FOR EUROPEAN PARLEY

President-Elect Will Shun Responsibility On Decision

By RAYMOND I. BORST
International News Service.

WITH GOV. ROOSEVELT EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 22.—President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt was speeding toward Washington today for his conference with President Hoover on international debts and kindred subjects.

All questions as to the part he would play in the White House conference late in the day were disposed of by Gov. Roosevelt with a wave of his hand as he boarded the train at Jersey City.

Advisers of the President-elect, however, made it plain he was determined to refuse to shoulder responsibility for any immediate decisions with respect to war debts.

Accompanying Gov. Roosevelt are Prof. Raymond Moley, of Columbia University, who will act as his sole adviser at the conference with the President; James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee; Col. Louis M. Howe, confidential adviser, and Frank C. Walker, treasurer of the Democratic National Committee.

It was announced Speaker John N. Garner, vice president-elect, would join Gov. Roosevelt at Baltimore. This will afford Mr. Roosevelt a final opportunity to review the entire war debt situation with Speaker Garner and Prof. Moley before going to the White House.

'KIDNAPED' GIRL ADMITS HOAX

The "abduction" of Miss Velma Snizik, 22, graduate nurse of 36 Coles road, Stowe Township, by former City Patrolman Henry Kemman, who slashed his throat when arrest threatened, was a hoax, county detectives say Miss Snizik told them today.

Interrogated by County Detective John W. Geisler, the detective said Miss Snizik told him that it had been pre-arranged that a woman call for her at her home Sunday night to go on a nursing case, so that her family would not know she was going with Kemman.

Kemman, 37, residing at 247 Forty-fifth street, slashed his throat with a safety razor blade at the home of his brother, J. W. Kemman 4105 Butler street, about an hour after Miss Snizik appeared at her home on the verge of hysteria, according to police.

The abduction of Miss Snizik was reported to police early yesterday by her brother, John Snizik, who said an unknown woman asked the nurse to accompany her to the home of her ill mother in Province street.

The brother noted the license number of the car and a checkup revealed it had been issued to Kemman. Snizik then notified police and a search was instituted for the two women and Kemman.

Thwart Plot To Poison 4 Judges

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 22.—(AP.)—State chemists worked today to complete an analysis of a white powder, believed by Middlesex County authorities to have been used in an attempt to poison District Attorney Warren L. Bishop and four justices.

Wilbur T. Downes, of Waltham, custodian at the courthouse, discovered the white powder in five water pitchers shortly before court opened yesterday.

The judges in whose sessions the powder was found were: Thomas J. Hammond, Ernest Hobson, Frederick T. Greenhalge and Marcus Morton.

District Attorney Bishop declined to issue any statement, but it was understood an investigation would be made regarding threats to him in the case of Miss Alice Ward, Boston, charged with inciting a riot.

Free Poison Pastor, Young Wife Pleads

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—A plea for the release of the Rev. S. A. Berrie, who entered the state penitentiary this week under a life sentence for the poison murder of his first wife, was made to Gov. W. H. Murray today by the 19-year-old second wife of the preacher.

It was accompanied by a letter from Dr. W. W. Osgood, Muskogee physician, who said Berrie, who is 52, should "go to the mountains for his health, as his case is on the border line of tuberculosis."

HITLER CHANCES IMPROVE

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—(INS.)—The chances that Adolf Hitler may accept President von Hindenburg's provisional offer to form a cabinet brightened today.

The chief executive, reversing his previous stand, granted the Nazi leader the right to use Article 48 of the constitution, providing for dictatorial powers in an emergency, "under certain conditions."

State Secretary Otto Meissner made known the President's changed stand in a letter to Hitler, also informing him the President expected a definite reply tonight.

In addition, a semi-official statement was issued denying whispered reports von Hindenburg was attempting to trick Hitler with the aim of restoring Chancellor Franz von Papen.

JAY COOKE DIES IN ENGLAND

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Jay Cooke, Philadelphia banker and Republican national committeeman from Pennsylvania, died suddenly today at Amport-St. Mary's, near Andover, England.

Word of his death was received in this city by his son, Jay Cooke II.

Cooke, who was 60, died following a heart attack. He went to England last September with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Emlen Hutchinson on a gunning trip. He was expected back the first week in December.

Cooke was ill in the spring and unable to take part in the primary election campaign or to attend the Republican national convention, to which he was elected a delegate-at-large.

Revelers Balk Firemen, Bethany Building Burns

BETHANY, W. Va., Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Bethany House, 90-year-old building on the Bethany College campus, was destroyed by fire last night while a band of students sang "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here."

The revelers hampered the work of volunteer firemen, and they turned streams of water on the students until someone shut off the water supply.

The building was destroyed.

Sheriff I. W. Charnock, of Brooke County, today arrested three students—Charles Funk, of Bethany; Seth Morrow, of New Castle, Pa., and Ray Langart, of McKeesport, Pa. All are held in jail pending investigation of the fire's origin.

When several fraternity brothers later appeared at the jail with bathrobes, toilet accessories and food for their incarcerated friends, four of them were locked up, charged with contempt.

DAVIS URGES SINKING FUND TO COMBAT DEPRESSIONS

SENATOR TALKS BEFORE A. F. L. SESSION

Government Can Not Cure Unemployment, He Declares

CINCINNATI, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, told the American Federation of Labor convention today that governments in themselves cannot cure unemployment, and advocated creation of a federal sinking fund to provide for public works in periods of depression.

He said:

"Some people seem to think that the government, if it only would, could give every man a job. This is one of the many delusions that must be guarded against. No government, not even the richest, can perform the impossible."

Terming public works a stimulus to business, and saying that "the government has done as much as it could," he added:

"I believe with all my heart that the creation of a sinking fund to be used by the government in times of depression, providing for the erection of much needed public works, is a modest proposal but would do much to restore business confidence and aid labor."

In that way, he declared, the government failed to emulate "the ordinary prudence of the great corporations." He warned:

"We must plan for the future and plan adequately, and quit this nonsense of thinking that all will go well with us."

Introduced by President William Green as "a loyal friend of the working man," Davis declared for immediate modification of the Volstead act. He said:

"I came from the homes of the workers and I have never seen a home broken up which had on its table a loaf of bread, a piece of cheese and a bottle of beer."

Preliminaries over, the federation's delegates today waded into a pile of proposed legislation intended to improve the workers' lot.

MORGAN RELIC IS STOLEN

KIN DIES IN LEAP

The three volumes were seen intact in the Columbia Library just before October 28. On or about that date it was noticed that the middle volume was not between the others, but it was assumed it had been removed by someone with proper authority for inspection other purpose. It was not uritil later that a careful check showed the volume to be nowhere in the library.

The disappearance of the manuscript marked the second time during the day that the name of Walter Scott had broken into news. The first was when the of Blair T. Scott, 60, of Balre, Md., described as a direct descendant of Sir Walter, was found on the fourth floor extension of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel He had jumped from his room on the seventeenth floor.

Leopold Questioned In Prison Food Plot

JOLIET, Ill., Nov. 22.—(Universal)—Nathan Leopold, one of the slayers of Bobby Franks in Chicago, was among those questioned yesterday in the discovery of wholesale trafficking in prison foodstuffs by the convicts.

The food was obtained by means of forged permits which allowed convicts to eat in the officers' kitchen. Leopold's connection was found to be as a victim of the plot rather than as an instigator.

When L'il Noises Carry -:- By QUIN HALL

of the $11,000,000,000 war debt problem, it is learned.

He will appeal to his successor to co-operate in a program to deal with Europe's insistence on postponement of payments pending drastic downward revision.

The President, it was said, will demand payments on December 15, with the proposed conference to follow Europe's compliance.

The international debt parleys the President has in mind might be realized through meetings here or at the world economic conference, or by recreating the Debt Funding Commission.

CONGRESS OPPOSITION

Leaders in Congress already have registered an emphatic "no" to such suggestions. Congressional approval would be necessary. Unless Gov. Roosevelt should go along with the President, the proposals are believed doomed at the outset.

Other debt developments were:

1—Czechoslovakia joined Great Britain, France and Belgium in asking postponement of December 15 payments.

2—The world economic conference, the budget and armaments will be included in the debt discussion between the President and Roosevelt.

3—In a long conference with Secretary of the Treasury Mills yesterday Hoover concluded the program to be laid before his successor.

Mills said:

"There are three, possibly four, alternatives. They may agree upon a joint program; Roosevelt may say no to Hoover's proposals; Hoover may submit his own program to Congress; or Roosevelt may lay the situation before Democratic leaders in Congress.

"The interesting thing is what Gov. Roosevelt will do, for Congress will likely follow any suggestion he may make. There is a Democratic House and, if Republican Senators who supported him in the campaign do so now, he will have the support of a Senate majority.

FAVORS COMMISSION

"My idea is that the debt-funding commission should be recreated. It would have been very helpful in this situation, but Congress is definitely opposed to it.

"A three-year debt moratorium was granted right after the close of the war, but Congress did not like it and took the matter into its own hands. Then President Harding wished to vest full authority in the Secretary of the Treasury, but Congress would not approve it."

Should there be an agreement to reopen the debt situation through an international conference, officials thought it might be done at the World Economic Conference in London this winter. Although America accepted the invitation with the distinct understanding that debts, reparations and tariff duties would not be discussed, it was explained a change could be made in the agenda.

The purpose of a conference would be to re-examine the debtors' capacity to pay."

A gala entertainment was arranged for the National Press Club dinner tonight in honor of President-elect Roosevelt and Vice President-elect Garner. Gov. Roosevelt will make a brief speech.

Roosevelt Calm as Parley On War Debts Nears

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(INS.)—The eyes of the world will be focused on President Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt when they sit down late today at the White House to confer on war debts.

It will be the first time in history that the chief executive of the nation and his successor have participated in such a meeting. The conference has been described as "epochal" and "momentous," but to President-elect Roosevelt it's "just another conference."

Gov. Roosevelt never gets excited and he never crosses bridges until he reaches them. For that reason, he intimated to close friends, he is going to the White House with the same feeling as if he were returning to the Capitol at Albany to confer on state matters.

In other words, President-elect Roosevelt is going to the White House prepared for any situation which may arise, but not worried about the outcome.

Recently he told a friend:

"Never worry and meet situations as they arise."

And there is every indication that is the course which Gov. Roosevelt has chartered for himself at his conference with President Hoover.

Anita's Mate Sued For Back Alimony

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—A suit charging George P. Converse, husband of Anita Stewart, film actress, with being $4,500 behind in alimony payments to his former wife, Olivia L. Converse, was filed yesterday in Superior Court by Mrs. Converse.

She asserted Converse is not maintaining payments of $600 monthly as agreed in a property settlement prior to their divorce at Reno, Nev., October 13, 1928.

Boat Hit by Wave Found Mile Inland

CIENFUEGOS, Cuba, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—The fishing boat Maria Antonia, which was missing off Santa Cruz del Sur on November 9 when that city was destroyed by a tidal wave, was found on dry land a mile inland near there today with one sailor aboard, and in a critical condition.

Two other sailors were lost, he said, when the hurricane struck the ship while anchored in an inlet.

YOUTHS AWAIT LAW'S COURSE IN MURDERS

Arnold and Varecha Present Striking Contrasts

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Accused of murder!

Two youths—one, 16, a boy of supposed superior intelligence and the son of a moderately wealthy family; the other, 17, an escaped inmate of an institution for mental defectives and with a background of poverty—today awaited movements of legal machinery to determine their fates.

Charles Bertrand Arnold last night was formally charged with murder by a coroner's jury. Police said he confessed killing his step-grandmother, Mrs. Ellen Saxe, 60, because she refused him use of her automobile.

VARECHA DENIES GUILT

James (Iggy) Varecha was back in his cell after pleading not guilty to charges of killing Frank H. Jordan; of assault to kill in the robbery of James McElligott, and the robbery of James Guisinger, escort of Miss Lillian Henry, 20, whom Varecha is accused of assaulting.

Frank Varecha, elder brother of the indicted boy, was held today on a charge of accessory after the fact of murder. Frank told police he helped his brother James break up and dispose of the gun with which James has confessed he shot Jordan during a holdup.

Also held was Sol Fichtenberg, manager of the South State Street Theater in which James Varecha was arrested Saturday. One of his employes, Robert De Mille, informed the police he told Fichtenberg that the hunted youth was in the theater, but that Fichtenberg told him to "keep his mouth shut." De Mille later notified police.

Alienists said they were confronted with serious problems in efforts to explain the cases. That of Varecha, they said, might be the easier to explain. In his childhood he roamed the streets, ran about with "tough guys," and there was his medical history. Varecha was twice in an institution for epileptics.

'BERT' GIVEN TESTS

"Bert" was the big problem to them. They gave him several tests. There he was, a cloistered boy, normally serious, calm, well educated, a "superior boy."

Only Dr. James Whitney Hall ventured an opinion:

"Bert is suffering from an inferiority complex and an imperative conception. An imperative conception is an uncontrollable desire, usually temporary, which causes normal persons to do something irrational."

Assistant state's attorneys said they would abide by decision of three state alienists in Arnold's case. If he is held legally incapable of distinguishing between right and wrong, they said he would be taken to an asylum.

Dancer Gray, who applied at Boston's marriage license bureau with Radio Singer Jarrett, went away empty-handed because of the five-day-notice law, said she'd get a license when she played Worcester next week. It was Gilda who made the hula-hula famous.

SUNDAY SPORTS URGED FOR TAX

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Liberalization of the ancient blue laws was suggested today to permit big league baseball and movies on Sunday as one means of extricating the city from its financial morass.

Spokesmen for theater owners and the Athletics baseball club appealed for at least a partial abrogation of the Sunday laws at a meeting of the City Council which they attended to protest a proposed 5 per cent admission tax on amusements.

Despite the protest, the Council gave tentative approval to the amusement levy as well as to four other suggested revenue-raisers, all designed to reduce the $20,000,000 municipal deficit and obviate the necessity of an increase in the realty tax rate.

Other measures given tentative approval are a 5-cent tax on each automobile parked in outdoor parking spaces and garages; an increase to $10 from $5 in license fees of motion picture machine operators; a $25 annual fee on all public eating and drinking places and a 25-cent inspection tax for examination of all city and county records.

HINES SEEKING BONUS FUNDS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(INS.)—Plans to take the thorny problem of the World War bonus from the halls of Congress were under consideration today by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs. His plan hinges upon the finding of a satisfactory method.

One suggestion includes repeal of the non-service disability allowances which Congress passed over the presidential veto. With this savings Hines would establish a sinking fund, and add to it by other economies in his bureau.

If such legislation were passed by Congress, Hines said, payment might be made to veterans in want, on the present value of their adjusted service certificates.

VOTE THIEVERY CHARGED IN CARNEGIE

Marks on 236 Ballots Changed, Democrat Tells Judges

The most flagrant evidence of election thievery, according to Attorney B. B. McGinnis, of the Democratic party, was revealed today in the recount of the ballots of the First District, First Ward, Carnegie.

According to McGinnis, when he asked the returning board judges to call in the election board, the district board members had reported that when they had completed their count on election night there were 581 straight Democratic votes polled. He said 236 of these had been changed to include votes for the four Republican candidates in the Twelfth Legislative District. McGinnis said the extra markings were in the same handwriting. These ballots had been laid aside by the returning board, pending action by the judges.

FIGURES DISAGREE

The judges in refusing to heed McGinnis' request to call the election board, said it was a matter of a contest and not for the recount board.

There were 712 ballots in the box, with 728 checked off the voters' list as having voted.

The returning board's tabulation of the vote in 58 of the 175 districts in the Twelfth Legislative District shows the Democratic candidates in the lead. O'Rourke, with both indorsements, had 19,413, and the other Democratic candidates these figures: Rectenwald, 11,264; Travers, 11,067; Harmuth, 10,725. The Republican candidates' totals were: Steedle, 10,120; Boyer, 9,921, and Westwood, 9,775.

Judges W. H. McNaugher and John P. Egan were to hand down a decision to establish the disposition of 58 ballots, bearing phantom markings, found out of the total 418 ballots of the First District, Rankin, which figures so prominently in the hotly contested fight in the Tenth Legislative District.

A decision by the returning board judges on cumulative voting, scheduled for today, was postponed until tomorrow, to give counsel for candidates an opportunity to file briefs. Judge Egan indicated that a new ruling reversing the court's decision last week was likely. The question was raised on the vote in the Tenth Legislative District.

Last week the judges held votes cast for candidates, whether written or on minor party indorsements, should be totaled with the vote of the candidate on a major party ticket. Such a ruling benefitted Beach and Callahan, Democratic nominees, and McClure and Riddle, Republican candidates. James L. Quinn and James H. Steel, Democrats whose names appeared but once on the ballot, protested.

APPEAL PROPOSED

A. C. Leslie, representing McClure, told the court the proper way to secure a change of the previous decision was by an appeal to the Dauphin County Court, to which Judge Egan replied:

"We made a mistake, and we are going to correct it."

James L. O'Toole, Jr., representing Quinn, read previous decisions confirming Quinn's contention that the present ruling was improper, and it was then decided to postpone a decision until tomorrow afternoon.

A reversal of the ruling might result in a recount of all 149 ballot boxes from the Tenth District.

According to unofficial figures, successful candidates to date are McClure, Riddle and W. J. McBride, all Republicans, and Beech, Democrat. Some Democrats claim the final outcome would be changed as follows, if the judges reversed themselves:

McBride and Riddle, Republicans, and Quinn and Beech Democrats.

R. F. C. 'Red Tape' Criticised by Smith

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith said in a speech last night that Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans for housing projects in New York City were being held up by "red tape and bureaucracy" in Washington.

In appealing to the public to contribute toward the $15,000,000 fund sought by the emergency employment relief committee, the former Governor explained that the city, state and federal governments have been burdened to approximate ability to carry the load.

King Opens Parliament, Shuns War Debts

LONDON, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—King George ceremoniously opened the ninth parliament of his reign today with a speech touching on major world problems, but he omitted any mention of the momentous war debts issue up before President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt in the United States.

The King, with Queen Mary and the Prince of Wales by his side, proclaimed broad national policies for the coming year, stressing the importance of disarmament, the world economic conference, the need for economy and farm relief, and the solution of the unemployment problem.

Ever-old yet ever-new, a pageant of heraldry and history, medieval ceremony marched with modern government for its setting in the House of Lords at midday.

The King and Queen were sitting on their golden throne chairs, the Queen a little lower than the King, and the Prince of Wales was seated below the dais, when the Lord High Chancellor, Lord Sankey, handed the monarch the throne speech.

After King George had read it, he handed the parchment back and the royal role was ended. It was then up to the Prime Minister and his cabinet to carry out the policies proclaimed through the monarch.

Ranged before the royal dais, flooded with soft lights as theatrical as Hollywood's, was Britain's brilliant array of princes, bishops, peers in scarlet and ermine, peeresses in rich gowns and jewels, and diplomats in gorgeous uniform, or like the American ambassador, Andrew W. Mellon, in formal evening dress.

Yale Editors Join Hunt For Harvard Mascot

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Funmakers of the Yale Record staff turned from jokes to detective work today to solve the mystery of a missing ibis and return the lost mascot to their rival humorists of the Harvard Lampoon.

Denying they perpetrated the recent theft of two birds from the Lampoon office, the Record editors explained through the Yale News their possession of one of the birds and appealed for return of the other. Back of the case are two mysterious disappearances and the arrival of a package and a letter from an anonymous person.

On the Yale campus, the incident was regarded as an attempt by unidentified persons to retaliate for theft several years ago of a portion of the old Yale fence and its return by the Lampoon staff at a joint dinner in Cambridge.

Shortly after the disappearance of the two birds from the Lampoon office they were delivered to the Record with an anonymous letter suggesting their return at the joint dinner to precede the Yale-Harvard game. Before that time, however, someone entered the Record office and made off with one of the birds.

The other was duly returned to the Lampoon staff Friday night and the Lampoon presented the Record with a white owl, draped with red ribbons.

Now, the Yale News said, the Record staff feels obligated to return the other ibis to merit the confidence of the Harvard editors.

DIAMOND CIRCLE ABSENT AT N. Y. THRIFT OPERA

Society Goes Gold Standard at Start Of Season

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—"Simon Boccanegra"—it was really Lawrence Tibbett in blond whiskers—opened the new briefer, thriftier season of Metropolitan Opera last night.

Mr. Boccanegra, who was a somebody of the fourteenth century—the first Doge of Genoa, no less!—broke even on the honors. The other half went to what once was the "diamond horseshoe."

One lonely but haughty diamond tiara, and one only, sparkled last night in the "horseshoe." Mrs. H. Edward Manville, Sr., wore it. The diamond days of opera at the Metropolitan appeared to have descended to the gold standard.

ERMINE FAVORED

But Mr. Boccanegra, the old Genoese Doge, could see that, though diamonds were not as prominent as before, there was no dimming of brilliance. Ermine was almost commonplace, keeping the draft from white shoulders. Mink wraps swung carelessly from the backs of chairs. Lorgnettes and opera glasses flashed in jewelled hands as the ladies looked around to see what the other ladies had on.

It was not until the second act had started that Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt swept into her box and Simon Boccanegra knew that at last he was in a fair way to being a success. She wore a gown of scarlet chiffon velvet. Scarlet, too, was the waist-length cape she wore.

HIGH HATS PLENTIFUL

From the men's side, the opening was very high hat. Some plebians slunk in with derbies and a few scoffers at sartorial elegance even clutched felts. But the silk topper bobbed proudly over all.

The boiled shirt was almost a unanimous choice in those sections of the house which really counted. There were swallowtails aplenty, and the humble tuxedo.

Tibbett gave an outstanding characterization to a role that doesn't give his voice much chance. Maria Mueller as his daughter and Giovanni Martinelli as a Genoese nobleman were acclaimed. Ezio Pinza and Claudio Frigerio were others with prominent parts.

Metropolitan Opera Musician Ends Life

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—A few hours before the opening of the Metropolitan Opera last night, Ugo Savolini, first bassoonist of the Metropolitan Orchestra, died with a gas tube in his mouth. His body was found in the kitchen of their home by his wife, the former Miss Suda Hatfield, of Jefferson, Pa.

TRUNK SLAYER AWAITS RULING

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted Arizona "trunk" murderess, has made her last fight to escape the gallows, but, due to a crowded court calendar, the Arizona State Supreme Court will be unable to act for at least two weeks on her final appeal.

Mrs. Judd's appeal is based on alleged error in rulings of the trial court. Her counsel also alleged the jury was not allowed to consider fully her self-defense claim in the slayings of Agnes Ann Le Roi and Hedvig Samuelson. Arguments were made yesterday.

If the Supreme Court denies the appeal, Mrs. Judd likely will appear early next month before the high court for setting of a date for execution.

VOODOO KILLER TELLS OF LIFE 'SACRIFICE'

Children Saw Slaying; Two Judges, Woman Marked by Cult

DETROIT, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—A fantastic picture of debased voodoo mysticism lay unfolded before police today as they sought to learn how widespread is the cult that has claimed one human sacrifice and marked for death two judges and a woman welfare worker to propitiate strange "gods."

Specifically, detectives were investigating reports of an organization that sells the "right" to adopt favored Mohammedan names to superstitious Negroes, for Robert Harris, confessed slayer of one "human sacrifice," who styled himself "King of Islam" and chose oriental names for his wife and two children, aged 12 and 9.

WILLING SACRIFICE

Harris, 44-year-old Negro, insists, police said, that James J. Smith, first victim of his mystic rites, went willingly to his death Sunday. Future victims, he told police last night, were to have been Recorder's Judges Edward J. Jeffries and Arthur E. Gordon and a welfare worker who cut him from the city welfare rolls.

Harris said Smith, also a Negro, first declined to become a human sacrifice to the "Gods of Islam," but that:

"When I showed him that he would be the saviour of the world and go to heaven right away, he said all right."

DESCRIBES KILLING

In detail, Harris described the stage setting for the sacrifice. Present, he said, were his wife and two children, 12 "disciples"—and Smith. Police quoted Harris as saying:

"As the hour of noon drew near, I said, 'Smith, do you still want to be killed?' because the command ordered me not to kill anybody who didn't want to be killed. Smith he nodded his head."

Then, promptlty at noon, Harris said, he stabbed and beat Smith to death on an "altar," improvised from a packing box.

TROTZKY SAILS FROM FRANCE

DUNKIRK, France, Nov. 22.—(INS.)—Heavily guarded, Leon Trotzky, exiled Bolshevist leader, arrived from Paris this afternoon and sailed for Copenhagen.

Police were stationed at 50-yard intervals along the railway tracks, which run through the streets of Dunkirk. Arriving at the station, Trotzky detrained and was hustled aboard the channel steamer Bernstorff.

Before boarding the vessel, Trotzky handed a printed statement to the chief inspector, thanking the French government for its "tact" in handling the passage through France.

WIFE'S SUICIDE EFFORT PROBED

Woods Run police today sought a motive in the attempted suicide last night of Mrs. Catherine Saunders, 24. In the view of her two sisters and a brother-in-law, she swallowed poison at the home of her father, Thomas Yugar, at 2012 Magnolia street, North Side, police said.

Her first visit in two weeks, Mrs. Saunders appeared in good spirits as she visited throughout the day with her brothers and sisters. In the evening she sent her two brothers, Michael Yugar, 20, and Matthew Yugar, 26, after the tablets, according to Lieut. Robert Buel.

Holding the bottle in her hand, Mrs. Saunders chatted with her sister, Mary Yugar; her brother-in-law, Frank Lawrence, and Mrs. Lawrence, her sister, about working conditions. Suddenly she opened the bottle and shouted:

"Here goes."

Then she began swallowing the tablets, but Mary knocked the bottle from her sister's hand, according to Buel.

At St. John's Hospital her condition was pronounced serious and police are unable to question her. Her home address is unknown to the family, Buel said.

HINT OF FAKE BRINGS SCORN FROM WIFE

Crusader Not Quizzed On Mystery Life In Mountains

By JOSEPH K. SMITH
International News Service.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 22.—Declaring that she had been reborn since her husband recognized her, Mrs. Raymond Robins today described the dramatic scene in which Col. Raymond Robins, dry crusader, regained his memory while she clasped his hand in the Appalachian Hall Mental Sanitarium here. She said:

"I have had a new birth. I want to sing Hallelujah. My dear, beloved husband has recognized me at last.

"I believe it was the handclasp that had a lot to do with it. We were not making much headway. He had greeted me as a stranger when I arrived and although my recalling of past events resulted in him undergoing a mental strain, he still failed to remember me.

"Finally the flash came to me. If I gave him my hand it might help. It was not the reasoning out of the thing we wanted him to do, it was to bring a shock that would lift the cloud. We had never shaken hands before and had been very formal.

TALKED ONLY OF PRESENT

"I went to him as he stood by the doctor and took his hand in mine. I stood there smiling up into his face and quietly saying Raymond! Suddenly a startled expression appeared on his face and with a bright look in his eyes he exclaimed: Margaret."

Mrs. Robins reiterated that nothing had been said about Col. Robins' life during the past two months as a reminiscent gold prospector in the tiny village of Whittier, high up in the Appalachian Mountains. She said:

"I made no reference to anything of the past. We talked about the present only."

Asked if she knew of any reason which would have caused Robins to suffer a mental lapse, Mrs. Robins replied:

"No. When we know all what happened from the third to the ninth of September, we will know the reason for his disappearance."

It was on the third of September that he was last seen in New York. A reporter said:

SCORES DOUBTERS

Mrs. Robins replied:

"All that can be said for people like that is for them to go on believing it if it gives them pleasure.

"There is nothing to be done about suspicious people. The facts speak for themselves. If he was faking, he would not speak for Mr. Hoover, as he did in the mountains, nor would he be very likely to subscribe to his home town paper."

Mrs. Robins revealed that the dry leader had written a speech for President Hoover dealing with prohibition and had it with him when he left Kennebuck, Me., on August 31, for New York on his way to keep an engagement with the President at the White House. She said:

"The speech has not been found among his belongings."

She further stated that Robins originally was opposed to the Eighteen Amendment because he did not think all parts of the country, especially the cities, were ready for it, but when it was in the Constitution he thought it should be protected and defended.

Irvine Sees Depression Benefit Americans

Americans will emerge from the depression a better people, Sir James C. Irvine, principal and vice chancellor of the University of St. Andrews, Scotland, asserted today as he prepared to address the twentieth annual observance of Carnegie day in Carnegie Music Hall. He said:

"In Britain the economic crisis came on slowly like the twilight. Here it was as if the light had been suddenly snapped off, leaving everyone blind and bewildered. People of this country have shown great gallantry and courage."

Asked his opinion on prohibition, he said:

"I have never seen it."

In his formal address Sir James lauded Carnegie, his benefactions and efforts for world peace.

Fifteen hundred students of Carnegie Institute of Technology marched from their campus to the music hall for the observance. On the stage was Mrs. Roswell Miller, of New York, daughter of Andrew Carnegie.

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Tech, presided and announced the scholarship awards. In a program announcement he urged alumni to begin at once toward raising $4,000,000 by July 1, 1946, to make available an $8,000,000 contingent gift to Tech by the Carnegie Corporation of New York.

Dread of Workhouse 'Hole' Told

Fear of Bread and Water Diet Helps Keep Discipline

(Note—This anonymous "first termer" yesterday told some of his feelings and experiences when, after years of good living, even luxury, he was taken by the law to Allegheny County's workhouse. Well educated, sensitive, he describes the prison routine—and tells why he doesn't want to go back. Today's article is the concluding one. It is his own story—a prisoner's story.—Editor.)

The discipline of the Allegheny County Workhouse is of a high order. The assistant superintendent is the czar on these matters. Discipline is his watchword and he goes about with very erect and military bearing, looking for evidences of infractions of the rules.

And woe be unto him who is caught transgressing.

The guards, or "screws," as they are called in prison vernacular, appear to be more afraid of him than the prisoners themselves. This leads to a tendency on their part to be too exacting rather than too lenient in their attitude toward any literal infractions of rules, no matter how minor. The list of "shalt nots" is a long one and there is the constant spectre of a term "in the hole" to deter would-be culprits.

"The hole" is the name given to a group of special cells used for punitive purposes. I was fortunate enough to avoid the personal contact with "the hole," and even for the purposes of this article, I did not care to sample it.

These cells are furnished with a toilet and a board about two by six feet and nothing else. Upon being sentenced to "the hole," a prisoner first strips and is then issued a special outfit of clothes, to make sure that he takes no tobacco nor anything conducive to his comfort along with him. He is given a limited amount of bread and water twice a day—no tobacco or reading matter—and can lie on his board or walk the floor as he wishes, during the term there.

Makes Them Talk

This punishment seems to be an effective method of making men talk when they endeavor to shield their fellow prisoners from incrimination during various hearings. The usual term of punitive sentence to the hole is five to 10 days.

There are other punishments. One of the inmates escaped a short time ago by walking away from his post. The next day he was caught and brought back, and now he wears a ball and chain. The steel ball, which weighs perhaps 10 pounds, is fastened securely to a substantial chain about six feet long. The other end of the chain is fastened to a shackle which is riveed around the prisoner's ankle. He takes this tackle with him wherever he goes, even to bed and when he takes off his clothes, he has to pull the ball up through the trousers leg.

One of the common causes for being sent to the "hole" is smoking or being caught with lighting outfits. These outfits are made with flint and steel, crudely similar to the commercial cigaret lighters, except that the fuel consists of partly carbonized rag fabric instead of benzol. These contraptions are used up in the cells or elsewhere to light smokes outside the regular hours.

One of the greatest hardships to one who wishes to keep in contact with the outside world is the rule which limits the letter writing of the prisoners to one letter a month only, and that on the first Saturday of each month. It is possible to write a special letter by specific permission from the assistant superintendent, on what he considers sufficiently urgent necessity. To obtain this authorization, it is necessary to stand in line during the entire smoking hour following dinner and make a personal plea. If this is granted, pen, ink and stationery are sent to your cell that evening. All letters are read, both outgoing and incoming, and strictly censored.

'Censor Shocked'

An Italian fellow received a notification the other day that there was a letter there from his father, but as it was written in Italian, it would not be delivered—and it was confiscated.

One of the boys wanted to write a letter to his mother to prevent her from expending a substantial sum of money unnecessarily in his behalf. He got his special permission and wrote the letter, but emphasizing his point he used the word "hell"—not profanely, but just as it is often used in literature, conversation and even from the pulpit. This word so shocked the tender sensibilities of the censor that the letter was confiscated for "obscene language," and the writer was so notified a half week later, and was refused permission to write another letter, which caused his mother to make the unnecessary expenditure, as well as suffer great mental distress until the prisoner's release nearly a month later. And yet some of the low-brow prisoners shout at the top of the lungs during "talking period" expressions of such real obscenity as would bring blushes to a statue. But such is discipline.

Of course, there are ways and means of sending out letters clandestinely, but these are difficult and uncertain, and if detected lead to incarceration in the "hole."

'Pay Day' Tobacco

Tobacco is the great open sesame, and the medium of exchange for all things. The institution gives out to each prisoner a 10-cent package of tobacco twice each month—on Fridays, which are called "pay days." Those who have money in the office can order, once a week, cigarets, the regular issue, or other brand of tobacco, and cigaret papers, in any quantity at regular retail prices. Many of the boys are entirely penniless, and they will sell their ginger cakes, which are issued for supper every Sunday, for a half pack of tobacco.

Tobacco may also be used clandestinely, of course, to buy certain privileges which fall within the jurisdiction of certain of the prisoners in line with their work. It seems best not to enumerate these privileges, but it is rumored that matches, brown sugar and even an intoxicating beverage of a sort may be had for so much tobacco. A little racket was discovered recently when about 40 ginger cakes were found under the bed of one of the cells, ready to be sold for tobacco.

There is much time to read, but the light in the cells is very poor at night and causes much eyestrain. The prison library contains some very good books, and also, of course, some good-for-nothing ones. Each prisoner in for more than 30 days is allowed one book a week. The library catalog, which is supposed to hang in every cell, contains a paragraph on the importance and value of reading and the care that should be exercised in the selection of books. There is a slate and pencil provided, by means of which the prisoner is supposed to put down the numbers of the books he wishes. But, no matter how many he puts down, they are always marked, "Not in," and he receives whatever book it is most convenient to give him. The library boys cannot be bothered with making extra trips from cell block to library. Personally I was able, through friendships, to get good books and magazines, which were a great aid to my peace of mind.

'Tough on the Boys!'

Another tough thing on the boys who are a little fastidious personally is being deprived of all toilet accessories except comb and toothbrush (which may be ordered if there is any money available). A bath and a shave are given once a week, and a haircut once a month. To a man who has been used to shaving every day, this once-a-week shaving seems unbearable at first, but he soon becomes accustomed to it. I understand that not long ago it was the custom for the boys to pass up the shave altogether and grow long, patriarchal beards. But finally this was stopped in the interest of sanitation, and weekly shaving was made compulsory.

The prisoners being kept practically incommunicado, they are seldom apprised of what is being done for them by friends or attorneys outside the institution. Those released ahead of their schedules are therefore more surprised than anyone else. This was the case with me, and when I was called down to the barber shop for my final haircut and shave, and released the next morning, it was a complete surprise, and I could hardly believe my luck.

Meets Old-Timer

The boys who comprise the nearly 1,200 inmates of the workhouse pretty well represent a cross-section of any large community. There are professional convicts who can discuss glibly the relative advantages of the "Big House" and various other prisons. One of my friends was in this class. He has no "people." He never receives a visit nor writes a letter. He uncomplainingly rolls his cigarets from the free issue of tobacco in papers made of split wrapping paper, and if he gets a white cigaret paper he thinks it is a luxury.

Many of the boys, like myself, were there for the first time. Some should not be there at all. Very few have any financial status, which makes us wonder if justice is not rather prejudiced in favor of the well-to-do. One of the saddest cases I saw was an old gentleman of 66, gentle, refined and religious. He was serving a sentence of from three to 10 years for an indiscretion of which I believe he was the victim of rather than the perpetrator. His family has turned against him on account of the disgrace, and he has nothing to look forward to on his release. He thinks he is going to die in the institution and that his soul will continue to serve time there through eternity.

Reactions of Others

The reactions of the prisoners to the punishment are as varied as their personalities. Most of the convictions up there seem to be for comparatively trivial crimes. For instance, in a certain group, there are three for participation in cashing bad checks, one for stealing chickens, one for trespassing on railroad property (riding freight), one for stealing food from a freight car, two or three for non-support, one for arson and one for stealing an automobile. I have heard several of the small larceny men say:

"If I ever get in here again it will be for something worth while. Next time I steal anything it will be enough to stake me for a long time."

I have heard more than one "short-timer" say:

"If I had to serve a long term in here, I'd try to escape even if I had to shoot my way out, and if I got killed in doing it, O. K. Just as well be dead as have to spend my life in here."

"If I ever get out of here I'll never take another drink of booze."

In most cases, I think the imprisonment generates a feeling of hatred for law enforcement agencies and while most of the prisoners resolve to be more careful in the future, I doubt if there are many sincere repentances. This is evidenced by the large number of prisoners who have been there before.

Urges Writing Friends

Well, the prison is there and it has to have prisoners to fill it, and my advice to all is:

"Let George do it."

It is easier to get in than to get out, and a prisoner once in there is to a certain extent marked and handicapped for life.

Another thing—some years ago I was a patient in a hospital for a few weeks. Before that I had paid no attention to my friends in hospitals—just never thought about them. But I appreciated so much the visits I received from my friends that I made up my mind to always visit as often as possible anyone I knew who was in a hospital.

By the same theory I now say if you ever have a friend in the workhouse, write to him as often as you can, messages from the commonplace world you live in, for when he hears that mailman's hard soles clattering up the range, and they keep right on past his cell and stops at some other one, he just thinks he hasn't a friend in the world.

WATERWAY MEN NAME DANN

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Alex W. Dann, of Pittsburgh, today has been named chairman of the resolution committee of the Mississippi Valley Association, in convention here.

The association was urged by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of Army engineers, not to take attacks by opponents of waterway development "lying down," in an address before the delegates, last night.

Maj. Gen. Brown was the principal speaker following a day of addresses by shipping and transportation experts, congressmen and congressmen-elect, businessmen and civic leaders of the Mississippi Valley, all of whom dwelt on the problems of maintaining waterway improvement in the face of business conditions and attacks by competing transportation interests.

Second Trial Gives $9,000 Damage Award

Parents of George W. Woltemar, 13, of 603 Ravenwood street, Bellevue, were awarded $9,000 by a jury yesterday for the loss of their son's leg. In a former trial $20,000 was awarded, but the Pittsburgh Railway Company was granted a new hearing.

SCHENLEY HOME CARETAKER DIES

The 65-year-old caretaker of the Old Schenley Mansions, former home of the pioneer Schenley family, is dead today.

William W. Koehler, after a lingering illness, succumbed in the 30-room mansion, the house in which he was born.

Mr. Koehler's family was long in the employ of the Schenley household. His two sisters were nurses to the late Mrs. Schenley. The remaining members of the Schenley family now live in England.

The mansions, at 4424 Stanton avenue, is in the center of the Stanton Heights Golf Club property. When the club acquired eight acres of land from the Schenley estate, part of the old mansion was set aside for the Koehlers. The Schenleys still pay the taxes for the house and eight acres.

Mr. Koehler, a member of the St. John's Episcopal Church, Main street, leaves two sisters, Miss Charlotte E. Koehler and Mrs. M. E. Davison, and a brother, James G. Koehler.

Funeral services will be held at the old mansion tomorrow afternoon.

GIRL THWARTS INDIAN REVOLT

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Two automatic pistols barked defiance in the steady hands of Miss Leona Johnson, 23-year-old school teacher, and another incipient Indian uprising of the Klamath reservation was abruptly abbreviated yesterday.

The indians involved, described as intoxicated, refused to remain to make up the necessary second side to an argument.

Miss Johnson went wild western and two-gun when a gang of young bucks battered into her living apartment in the school building shortly before school was to start for the day.

The girl reached for her weapons, the weapons reached toward the bucks. The bucks retreated to their reservation quarters. One had three slugs of lead in one leg.

Ten minutes later Miss Johnson opened school, a bit pale perhaps, but calm for all of that.

DIVORCE TRIAL ROW BALKED

Judge Elder W. Marshall today had before him all the testimony in the divorce case of Dr. Daniel A. Ressa, physician and surgeon. His wife's defense testimony yesterday brought from the audience a threat from a woman and her ejection from the hearing.

Mrs. Ressa spent all day on the stand contesting her husband's charges of cruel and barbarous treatment. She countercharged her physician husband was familiar with a woman in their home, and accompanied another frequently.

While she was testifying that she waited in the bushes near Carnegie Library to whip her husband's companion, a woman arose and shook her fist. Seeing the gesture, Judge Marshall ordered her ejected.

SYRIA MOSQUE

PROGRAM

Sonata in C minor .....Grieg
Concerto in A major.....Mozart
a. Adagio and Fugue.....Bach
(From Sonata in G minor for violin alone.)
b. Rondo .....Hummel-Heifetz
c. The Bumble-Bee.....
..... Rimsky-Korsakoff
Tzigane .....Ravel

Mr. Lissfelt

Jascha Heifetz returned from his world tour to entertain us in Syria Mosque last night and made us believe that a press agent can be modest, for whatever praises we have heard of this violinist in the last weeks are hardly commensurate with the beauty of his present playing.

The program was admirably adapted to his style, naive Greig, impeccable Mozart, intellectual Bach, and as a finale the most dashing idealization of Gypsy fiddling in the Ravel "Tzigane."

We have long ago acknowledged the master technician in Heifetz, but seldom, perhaps never before have we heard him make such personal music. That is easy when he offers the audience fireworks, but to imbue a Mozart concerto and a Bach fugue with warmth and emotion which so completely entrances the public as last night is the task of an artist.

Isadore Achron as always played excellent accompaniments. As encores came Godowsky's "Alt Wien" and Hora's "Staccato."

J. FRED LISSFELT.

CHURCHES VOTE CONFIDENCE IN MISSIONS

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Faith in its missionaries had been affirmed today in a statement unanimously adopted by the Boards of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society and the Women's American Baptist Foreign Mission Society.

Commenting on the recently published report of the Laymen's Foreign Missions Inquiry, which said "the greater number" of missionaries "seem to us of limited outlook and capacity," and which redommended a unified adminisration for mission work abroad, the Board's statement, addressed to Northern Baptists, said:

"The Boards feel that the report does our missionaries less than justice. We hold them in the highest esteem and affection.

"While not all the conclusions and proposals of the laymen's report are acceptable to our boards or are likely to prove acceptable to our constituency, the report nevertheless constitutes an important appraisal of foreign missions and many of its critical and constructive suggestions may be found genuinely helpful."

METHODIST VIEW SAME

It said the specific recommendations will be seriously considered and "a further memorandum indicating the attitude of the boards upon a number of important subjects covered by the report" would follow.

A similar expression of confidence in missionaries was voted during the day by the Board of Foreign Missions and the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

WILLING TO CONFER

In a joint statement they expressed their "willingness to increase co-operation immediately" with other denominational boards and societies in the foreign mission field.

A special committee will be appointed by the Methodists to confer with like committees from other boards "which are ready to consider further co-operation and formulate definite recommendations."

2 Children Burned In Nineveh Blast

Melvin Conklin, 3, was burned while sleeping and no hope is held for his recovery. Willis, 16 months, also was burned, and Ralph, 4, was cut by glass as his father jumped through a window with him.

Mrs. Clyde J. Burhenn, of Brookline, Pittsburgh, a sister of Mr. Conklin, was visiting nearby at the time of the tragedy.

COX GETS AID, NEEDS MORE

The public seems to realize the quandary that confronts Father Cox in his efforts to help the jobless. The campaign for the benefits of his unemployment fund that the Sun-Telegraph has inaugurated has brought hearty, spontaneous warm-hearted reaction. He is getting many donations of cash, food and clothing from sources from which he never before had heard from. Yet, he isn't getting enough, by far, to take care of all the demands made upon him.

There's a human-interest story behind almost every man in that breadline—the story telling how they were caught in the clutches of the depression.

Father Cox will not be in a position to furnish one-half as many Thanksgiving baskets for the needy homes as he anticipated—unless the donations of food and cash come in fast today and tomorrow.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph has inaugurated a subscription campaign for the benefit of the Father Cox Relief Fund. For every subscription for this newspaper which Father Cox and his workers obtain, or which is sent in on the blank on this page, brings to Father Cox a liberal cash commission for his welfare work. Father Cox says that the commission derived from each of these subscriptions is sufficient to fill three daily baskets.

4 NEWSPAPER MEN CLEARED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 22.—(AP.)—A court of three judges today cleared four newspapermen, on trial on a charge of fraudulent advertising, by sustaining a defense motion to dismiss the case, made when the state rested.

The defendants were John T. Watters, business manager of the Youngstown Telegram; Joseph Finster, former circulation manager, and James Morrisey, present circulation manager of the Telegram, and Thomas Dowling, circulation adviser for Scripps-Howard newspapers.

The defense asked that the court delay the ruling on the motion until after the defense had presented its case, "as there are certain charges we would like to meet."

The men were specifically charged with publishing a false circulation statement in the Telegram with the intention of deceiving advertisers.

'Home Fires' Burn While Home Lasts

BARTIN, Turkey, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—An old man of the mountain who hadn't seen another human being for 14 years, was brought to a hospital here from the wilds of Balat. Unable or unwilling to go out and gather firewood, he began to rip down his wooden house to keep the home fires burning. In a year nothing was left but the fireplace, whereupon he took to the wilds. A wounded hand forced him to seek aid recently.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

We Should Help People Who Want to 'Come Back'

Is it true that a man can always climb out of the gutter—
But a woman never can?

Tom said it was; and he bawled us out plenty for giving a hand to a girl who'd gone wrong, but wanted to make good.

According to him, we had no business to tell her she could, because "once a woman stepped into the mire, it would stick to her, and there was nothing she could do about it."

"Hooey!" says Marna, "and if this man had any decency or charity himself, he would know it was hooey—as I know it. And I know it because I've seen just such a woman make just such a fight and win it!"

Dear Elsie:

"Although I am addressing this letter to you, it is really for the benefit of that narrow-minded It who signed himself 'Tom,' and made that bright crack about 'no woman ever being able to come back to decency, once she'd made a misstep.'

"He has more crust than you could puncture with a pitchfork! Who does he think he is, anyway? It's been proved, over and over again, that anyone who wants to can make up for his or her mistakes, and get regular. And when he says it hasn't, he's just showing his ignorance.

"I can tell him of one shining example, at least, that I personally know. My brother married a girl who had gotten off on the wrong foot. And has the mire stuck to her? Is she still 'damaged goods?' She is not, and it hasn't—and he has been married to her now for 12 years! They have two lovely children, and you never saw a more loyal or charming wife, or a more conscientious mother.

APPRECIATED CONFIDENCE

"Of course we thought he was just taking on a lot of trouble when he began going with her, and when he said he was going to marry her we tried to keep him from it; but he told us that he knew her better than we did; that she really loved him, and that he loved her and believed in her.

And on our part, we didn't act stand-offish, once we saw that he was determined. We made up our minds that if he were going to go ahead and marry her, we wouldn't throw any wrenches. We'd give her a chance. So we took him at his word, and we believed in her, too.

"And she was grateful for our confidence that she would have almost killed herself, I know, to live up to it. And she has lived up to it, and we all love her.

"So I say 'Here's to you' for giving that girl who wrote you a hand. 'Coming back' is a pretty tough road, sometimes, and what a person needs is to have someone believe in that 'come-back' and lend a hand, just as you did. Encouragement and faith will work wonders.

CAN "COME BACK"

"Of course it is true that not all women who have got off on the wrong foot can be counted on to come back if given a chance. It is only when they earnestly and sincerely want to that they can make the grade. We shouldn't let ourselves be taken in by someone who is just talking, and not making any real effort to make good. But that goes for men, as well as for women.

"So Tom may think he can sling mud at the women, but I'm right here to tell you that here's one female who is going to stand up for the down-trodden, and those who have made a wrong turning.

"A woman has just as much chance of re-walking the path of virtue as a man. Just because one woman played him fast and loose is no sign we're all alike. He probably used very poor judgment in picking his specimen. So just remember, Big Boy—

"'There's so much good in the worst of us,
And so much bad in the best of us,
That it little behooves any of us
To talk about the rest of us.'

"And quit blaming all the women on earth, just because you were dumb enough to get taken in by a hussy who saw you coming. "MARNA."

That's a great letter, Marna!

Any human who really wants to can "come back" deserves some help and we're pretty poor sticks if we're not willing to give 'em a hand up.

Home Attentions May Irk, But Cherish Them, Counsels Fay King

By FAY KING

Many a youngster gets a little fed up on home ties and family attentions, and longs to run away among strangers.

A few have done so, have been cured of this discontent sooner than they expected, and have been mighty glad to return to the family fold.

It may get on your nerves to be asked where you are going when you go out, and where you have been when you come in.

You may resent being expected and worried about when you are a little late.

But oh, how sweet all this will seem when you are off somewhere alone, and no one cares about you at all.

Oh, you'll not be treated like a child—and you'll miss that most of all!

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Rebukes Sam Brixton

We started to our feet at the sound of Helena Brixton's hoarse cry for "My baby, my darling Carolyn," at the outer door of Whitney Hall. My eyes went to Mrs. Barnes' face, and I saw her stiffen as under the lash of a whip. Then her shoulders went back, and I knew she was ready to face the half-crazed mother outside.

There was no going to the side door for Helena Brixton. We could hear the watchman expostulating in low tones at Helena's reiterated cry, and then Sam Brixton's harsh voice:

"We'll just go the nearest way, my man. What do we care if we do waken the school? They'd better be wakened up."

With something to do, Lillian put aside her own grief and terror.

"Let me pass, Harry," she said softly. "I can manage Helena."

"This is the nearest way to the corridor along which they are evidently coming," Dr. Barnes said quickly. "We will go with you."

"Better not," Lillian interrupted quietly. "We were girls together. I can do better alone. But somebody must call Sam down. Dickbird, will you take over the job?"

"If I don't strangle him first," Dicky said grimly, following her through the door Dr. Barnes had indicated. They were no sooner through it than Harry was at the other one leading to the side entrance.

LILLIAN INTERRUPTS

"I think I'll go out and check up on Wynne and Brock," he said. "Madge, whatever plan you'll all agree to, I'm with you. But you'll be able to manage the Brixtons' better without me."

He went hurriedly out.

But Helena no sooner saw Dr. and Mrs. Barnes than she cried hysterically, with bitter accusation in her face:

"What have you done with my child? I trusted her to you: thought she was safe; and now this terrible thing has come to her!"

"Please sit down." Mrs. Barnes begged gently, "and believe that—"

"There's something queer about this," Sam Brixton said loudly. "I picked this school because I thought it was the safest one in the country, and—"

Lillian's voice, clear and incisive, interrupted his words and my mental comment that he undoubtedly had picked Whitney Hall for Carolyn because he knew that Marion was going there, and for reasons of his own wished to throw the two girls together.

"Listen to me, both of you. I've known you long enough to warrant my asking you to hear me. Remember, I've lost my child, too." Her voice faltered for an instant, then swept along, vibrant with strength and scorn. "But I'm not taking refuge in blaming people who cannot possibly be at fault.

BRIXTON REBUKED

"Marion and Carolyn were safe here. If I had a half dozen daughters, I should send them all here. Helena, this pettiness isn't worthy of you. You used to be the bravest thing! Sit down here, now, and let's tell you what has happened. We heard—"

"They were walking along a lonely road, weren't they?" Sam Brixton demanded of Dr. Barnes. "What business had you letting them—"

"Sam Brixton!" Lillian had been fairly gentle in her appeal to Helena, but her voice now was like a whip lash. "What are you trying to do, anyway? These girls are young women, old enough to go to college. When they are out at the farm, or up in your camp, they repeatedly go for walks along roads lonelier than any around here.

"You know that any school guards a girl more carefully than a home can. You ought to be ashamed of yourself! If you hadn't taken this line, Helena wouldn't be half as upset as she is.

"Now snap out of it! We all have work to do."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

To coax eye lashes to develop into thick long fringes, apply bits of cotton that have been dipped in cold witch hazel. As the flesh warms them, dip again and apply.

The dry shampoo is a makeshift treatment, never as satisfactory as the thorough renovating with soap and water. But there are times when oily locks must be made presentable, and there's no opportunity for washing and drying. It is then that the dry shampoo serves as a substitute. Powdered orris root is one medium, cornmeal another. Sprinkle over the head from a tin salt cellar, brush until the hair is free and shining.

If a woman can keep her waistline trim and if she flaunts the smart coiffure, she's winning half the battle against beauty worries. The svelte shape comes from restricting the diet to these foods that do not form adipose tissues; the grand coiffure can be purchased at the corner beauty shop. There never was an era, within the memory of the oldest dame, when good looks were obtainable at such small expense of time and money.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

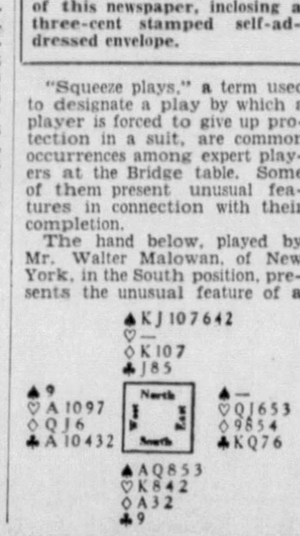
An Unusual Squeeze Situation

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a three-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

"Squeeze plays," a term used to designate a play by which a player is forced to give up protection in a suit, are common occurrences among expert players at the Bridge table. Some of them present unusual features in connection with their completion.

The hand below, played by Mr. Walter Malowan, of New York, in the South position, presents the unusual feature of a defensive bid of a Small Slam being made by means of an unusual squeeze.



South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.
The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♣	3 ♠	4 ♣
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	5 ♣
5 ♠	6 ♣	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

Of course, North and South should not have bid the Slam contract, but North was extremely dubious of his defensive strength and elected instead to bid six spades for what he thought was a small sacrifice.

West's Opening lead was the club Ace, which he followed with another club, South trumping. Three hearts were ruffed in Dummy, and the remaining club in the closed hand, West's lone trump being also drawn. Mr. Malowan had hoped that the heart Ace might drop, in which case one of Dummy's losing diamonds could have been discarded on the heart King, and thus the contract fulfilled. When the Ace of hearts did not drop, however, Mr. Malowan did not trump the King, as most players would have done, but played three more rounds of trumps from the Dummy, discarding a diamond from his hand on the third round. Nothing could be lost by this procedure, and there was a bare chance that it might permit the fulfilment of the contract. This was certain if West, in addition to the heart Ace, held also the Queen-Knave of diamonds. On the final lead of trumps from Dummy, West was in a squeeze situation from which he could not escape. He therefore dropped the heart Ace, incorrectly reasoning that if Mr. Malowan also had another heart he would have ruffed it in the Dummy. However, a diamond discard would have been equally fatal.

TODAY'S QUESTION

With 30 on game, my partner opened the bidding with two hearts. What does this bid mean?

Answer: Where the ordinary requirements for an Opening two-bid are 4½, 5, or 5½ with no score, this bid may have been shaded to 4, 4½ or 5 honor-tricks, depending upon the makeup of the hand.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

First Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been informed that paper is correct for the first wedding anniversary, and upon consulting two or three books, I found that cotton was listed for the first anniversary.

As different people have various answers for this question, I will appreciate your opinion.

L.

There always is this difference of opinion about the symbols for the first and second anniversaries. Some authorities give cotton as the symbol for the first anniversary, and some paper. Some time ago I made a very careful research of this and found many more lists giving cotton for the first anniversary. And paper for the second anniversary.

Reply Envelope

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How should the reply envelope be addressed when an invitation is issued in the name of Mr. and Mrs. John Jones? Should it be addressed to Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, or Mr. John Jones, or Mrs. John Jones?

This is an old question but I do not know that I have ever seen a strictly accurate reply.

READER.

The envelope replying to an invitation issued in the names of Mr. and Mrs. John Jones should be addressed to Mr. and Mrs. John Jones.

Normal Tonsils a Part of Nature's 'Defense'

Frequently I am asked whether I advise removal of the tonsils. This is a question difficult to answer in a satisfactory manner. Certainly normal tonsils should not be removed.

Dr. Copeland

Merely because they are enlarged is no reason for removing tonsils. If they are not diseased and cause no discomfort they should be left in place. They are quite unlikely to injure the health, and even if observed in early life it will be found in most cases that they shrink as the child grows older.

Enlarged tonsils that are diseased and infected are a menace to the general health and they should be removed.

Diseased tonsils retard the normal growth and development of a child, and are frequently the cause of recurring colds, sinusitis, ear disturbances, and certain constitutional disorders.

The tonsils are two round-shaped masses of tissue. They are located one on each side of the throat, behind the base of the tongue.

There are several depressions or cavities in the tonsil which are called "crypts." These crypts lead into the structure of the tonsils to become diseased and enlarged.

Food particles loaded with saliva and germs may enter these crypts which make a fine lodging place for germs. It is not long before infection of the tissues takes place.

When the tonsils are diseased they may become so enlarged as to obstruct the passage of food. I have seen infected tonsils so big that it was with great difficulty the afflicted person could swallow food or drink.

Tonsilitis, or inflammation of the tonsil, is a common disease. Unfortunately, the disease is so frequently met that its importance is overlooked.

Normally, the tonsils are a part of nature's protective mechanism, a barrier against the invasion of germs, but if diseased they are dangerous to the general health.

When neglected, the infected tonsil may cause infection elsewhere in the body. This is what we mean when we say the tonsil has become a "focus of infection." It may give rise to infections elsewhere in the body, perhaps the heart, kidney, stomach or gall bladder.

Mothers often ask, "when should the tonsils be removed?" It is rare that diseased tonsils should be removed before the child is 3 years of age. Of course in rare instances the tonsils may be removed at an earlier age.

2 DEAD, 1 DYING IN 'SPEAK' ROW

CLEVELAND, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Two persons were shot to death, and the alleged slayer, Abraham Auerbach, "master mind" of a nationally notorious alcohol conspiracy, was wounded here last night in a mysterious fight in a speakeasy.

The two killed were Mr. and Mrs. Sam Grossman, who owned the place, police said.

Auerbach, slashed on the throat and with one of his hands nearly severed by a knife, was taken to a hospital in a critical condition. He was held under close guard, although doctors said there was but slight chance for his recovery.

Detective Philip Bova said Auerbach confessed killing Grossman when the latter cut his hand with a butcher knife. The slaying of Mrs. Grossman was unexplained.

Auerbach and his brother, Louis, were principal figures, about 11 years ago, in a plot involving the illegal diversion of 400,000 gallons of alcohol for a Cleveland bootleg ring, under pretense of making hair tonic and toilet water.

Things I Never Knew Till Now
(No Knews Is Good Knews)

That the clowns are asking the slower-thinkers: "What was the President's name 20 years ago?" And the usual answer is "Taft" or "Wilson," which is wrong. Because it was Hoover 20 yrs. ago!

That for the past 22 years it has been a rule on all Philadelphia papers that press agents are seen only on Tuesdays.

That an elevator Co., in St. Louis, is in a two-story building—and they occupy the second floor.

That a surgeon in England never goes by the title Doctor. Physicians only have that distinction. (Sometimes it takes 5 items.)

That George Washington died from a cold caught in a rainstorm. (And I'm doing this in bed, having caught George's cold—a pip!) But don't grin so much, I intend to be better tomorrow.

That many of those haunting Hawaiian melodies, which are so popular, were once hymns which early missionaries taught natives.

That if a motorist tootles his horn too vigorously in Berlin, Germany, he is fined. (A law like that here would balance the budget.)

That you may wear your Sunday clothes 53 Sundays in 1933.

That the Speaker of the British House of Commons is not permitted to make a speech! (And he's a linguist!)

That if it weren't for the Pathfinder I'd never suspect that Texarkana, Tex., is 79 miles nearer Chicago, Ill., than it is to El Paso in its own state! (That's my idea of an item.)

That the average meteor is only as large as a grain of sand. The reason it causes a fiery trail is its speed, 30 miles a second.

That there are more men than women in N. Y. C., but there are more women than men in Chicago, San Francisco, London, Berlin, Paris.

That the latest wrinkle in fruits is wrinkle-less prunes.

That it costs you more to mail a letter than it cost the U. S. to buy an acre of any part of the Louisiana Purchase, yet Congress fought bitterly over the matter before paying 2½ cents an acre for it.

That Chicagoans can get insurance against gangsters!

That the end of prohibition in Finland didn't stop bootlegging. The "leggers" undersell the legal hooch merchants.

That prisoners at the Colorado state prison who get nasty have to wear feminine Mother Hubbards.

That the health of working people in the U. S. and Canada was never better than the first six months of this depression year.

That in Japan the bridegroom takes the name of his bride when he marries the oldest girl in a family where there are no sons.

That a West Orange, N. J., father had his own daughter arrested for taking peonies from his yard for her mother's grave!

That the reason the Chinese rarely drink water and usually drink tea is that the boiling of water purifies it.

That the bags in which cement is shipped are tied before they are filled! (A radio m. c. now is trying to be diverting—and I only hope I never sound as dull to others as he does to me, poor chap.)

That no matter how much money talks, observes a Washington, D. C., wag, it never bores anyone.

That in order to prevent Syracuse from reverting to the Onondaga Injuns the state each year gives the members of the tribe 16 pounds of salt, which complies with a treaty made in 1795.

That no one ever traveled the road to fame on a pass, says an obvious failure. (Nine out of 10 successes have, tho').

That Sitting Bull was finally captured lying down.

That an electrical automatic counter can now register as little as 1/12,500 of a second. (That's almost as little as the opinion a columnist has for a contributor who isn't clever.)

That Detroit is also the leading producer of milk cans.

That "Baby Eyes," a ballad, was written by the Rev. Henry Rubel, of Chicago. His wife was a dancer.

That what burned up Napoleon when he was exiled in St. Helena was the fact that his British captors insisted on calling him simply "Gen. Bonaparte," insisted of Emperor of the French.

That the cute little girl whose little legs dangled from a bar of soap in the advertisements was Madge Evans!

And that there are towns named Hollywood in several states, but there is no city or town by that name in California!

PLAY REVIEWS -:- What Critics Think About Three New Offerings -:- SHOW WORLD

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Not since the memorable premiere of "Show Boat" has there been anything more delightful, either seen or heard, than the same composer's musical romance, "The Cat and the Fiddle," which came to the Nixon Theater last night. This is said without any qualifications or reservations, not forgetting "The New Moon" and other bright and shiny things. Jerome Kern, who can turn out music as rhythmic as anybody and ballads as melodious as Flotow, has surpassed himself in "The Cat and the Fiddle," perhaps because he had the inspiration of a libretto as perfectly rounded as Otto Harbach has furnished him. If you like good music, if you like good singing, if you like good acting, if you like good comedy, if you like good scenery and good lighting and good stage direction, do not miss "The Cat and the Fiddle."

Mr. Seibel

Tautology is a grievous sin of style, but what other word will serve the purpose so well or fit the matter so perfectly as "good?"

Most librettos of musical shows are patchwork. The songs have nothing to do with the plot. The dances have nothing to do with the score. Lyrics by half a dozen strangers are stuck in here and there like candles on a Christmas tree, only less appropriate. Comedians gathered from all the night clubs get a spot where they can ring in their well-worn gags, sadly in need of eau de cologne.

None of this in "The Cat and the Fiddle." It all hangs together—it is all of one piece—and the material is silk embroidered in gold and silver.

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT

Perhaps you have a suspicion that this operetta pleased the critic. There is no doubt about it. He was enchanted, delighted, enraptured—look up Roget's Thesaurus for the remainder of the synonyms.

The story is about an American girl and a Rumanian composer who meet by chance on the Quay at Brussels. He has composed an opera which is to be produced at the Theater de la Monnaie. She is also a composer, but of jazz. When the manager gets the idea that the Rumanian score needs to be brightened up by American "Hot-Cha-Cha," the romance almost goes upon the rocks. But after some misunderstandings and doubts, it ends with a brilliant and happy finale.

That is a brief outline of the plot, but can give no idea of the delicate artistry with which it is worked out. It would be a fine comedy if there were no music. The characters are human and humorous—the situations are devised with ingenious technique—and the acting makes it truly memorable as a musical comedy romance.

Added to which is the astounding and incredible fact that the people in the cast have voices of rich quality, know how to sing, and are not hampered in making the most of their gifts and opportunities.

JUST A ROLL OF HONOR

To appraise the work of the cast is just to call the roll of honor. Bettina Hall as the heroine and Michael Bartlett as the hero are the most appealing personalities and the most romantic voices of a blue moon. Bobbie Jarvis and Doris Carson are a pair of comedians who do not descend to vulgarity and low clowning. George Meader and Odette Myrtil, he with his guitar and she with her fiddle, furnish atmosphere and drama as well as music. Arthur Treacher is quite the most amusing Britisher since Lawrance D'Orsay, while Gladys Gillen is an adorable little Cockney lydy. Fred Walton does a rare piece of character comedy, and Jose Ruben a sincere bit of romance. Ruben also deserves the credit for the staging of "The Cat and the Fiddle," which is atmospherically and dramatically superb.

What is the use of wasting words to praise this beautiful masterpiece of Jerome Kern and Otto Harbach? This is Thanksgiving week. Well, there is something at the Nixon to be thankful for.

La Bankhead Through

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.

Tallulah Bankhead's intention to quit the film colony leaves Hollywood with the baffled feeling of having failed to capitalize upon a strong personality.

Some attribute her half-success to the lack of a quality of sympathy. They argue that if Paramount, in the first place, had featured her as a modern Theda Bara—in a story like "Cobra," for instance—she would have been a sensation. But when they depicted her as a neglected or mistreated wife, the sympathy went to the man.

Tallulah Bankhead

Wherever the fault lies, Miss Bankhead's experience bears out a point that B. P. Schulberg made to me the other day: That the big screen personality-to-be almost invariably registers in the first picture. And that if it doesn't in the first four, the situation is pretty well beyond repair. For example, he points to Chevalier, Sylvia Sidney, Gary Cooper and more recently Katharine Hepburn. Among the exceptions he names Joan Crawford.

Regardless of this theory, if Tallulah will consent to come back she will find several studios eager to have another try to unlocking her real screen personality. As a personal suggestion, why not try sophisticated comedy—even if they do say that there is no film audience for Phillip Barrys outside of New York?

The preview of "20,000 Years in Sing Sing" has reawakened Hollywood to the fact that Arthur Byron is one of our better American actors. Since the news of good performances travels fast, it is no surprise to hear that Mr. Byron has signed to play one of the principal roles in "The Queen Was in the Parlor." This is the Noel Coward play in which Claudette Colbert will make her bow as a Paramount star.

Lil Dagover in Tragedy At German Cinema

There is good acting and a dramatic plot in "Das alte Lied" (The Old Song), as presented by Lil Dagover at the German Cinema this week. She is the vamp who tries to take away the handsome baron who has fallen in love with Lien Deyers, sweet and simple daughter of the old bird-lover. When Lil has shot her baron and Lien has been run over by a motor car, the tragedy seemed a bit overdone, but then tears are part of the enjoyment of the sentimental Teuton. With so much flirting, so much drinking, and all the ingredients of Viennese comedy thoroughly mixed, the story could hardly end otherwise. It is full of well-drawn characters and very well acted.

Enright Arranges Two School Nights

In conjunction with the showing of "All American" with Richard Arlen, Gloria Stuart and the entire all-America football team of 1931, the Enright has designated Monday night, November 28, as Peabody High School night and Tuesday night as Westinghouse High School night. Both schools will have a large delegation on hand as well as their cheer leaders.

'Strange Interlude' Film In Aldine Triumph For Miss Shearer

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Strange Interlude," Eugene O'Neill's powerful drama, opened as a "road show" in the Aldine last night. It was an impressive stage play and it is equally compelling and great as a photoplay. In fact, the screen never has done anything better—quite likely nothing so finely wrought throughout in delineation of pattern, nor so exquisitely finished. It is not a mere copy of the original, though it does preserve the story without serious alteration, but it possesses something new, too, a slight change in mood, a tenuous zephry change, but sufficient to lift it out of the severe, hew-to-the-line sombreness of the nine-act masterpiece of the author.

With no evident intent to approach the humorous, there nevertheless are some moments when at least a chuckle, if not a laugh, is in order, but it is a subtle and elusive kind of lightness that never intrudes for long and never to the extent of making one forget that here is serious drama moving in an all-revealing frame.

PLAYING TIME SHORTER

There will be nothing gained in attempting to make comparisons of the stage and screen versions, and the only basis of comparison would be in the acting, anyway, which would mean but little. One big thing in favor of the movie is the condensation of time, the presentation on the screen requiring only two hours. Also there is no monotony of scene, while there is more approach to realism.

Histrionically, "Strange Interlude" in celluloid form, is of the highest order, and through it Norma Shearer joins the small and exclusive ranks of the Nina Leedses, who are destined to remain unforgettable. She is magnificent. She reaches the summit. All the charm and beauty that have made her one of the most popular of screen actresses are displayed in her portrayal of the youthful Nina, but to see her grow old, not merely physically, which is only a trick of makeup, but to bring to that aging the strong ripeness of experience, and at that stage in a woman's life, give such a powerful and convincing portrayal, is really amazing.

CLARK GABLE IS NED

Through Miss Shearer Nina Leeds lives and brings to life all the strange moods of the woman so altered by the death of her youthful sweetheart that she is impelled to sway between three men throughout the remainder of her life. In the role of Ned Darrell, first in her affections though not her husband, is Clark Gable. And here is not the Clark Gable of the romantic figure, but the Ned Darrell who plays with biology and experiments with human life in a strange triangle and, in the process, finds himself transformed and tragically failing in the game of love at which he is far too adept.

Dear Old Charlie Marsden is the credible portrait of Ralph Morgan, who used to be a stock actor here. Alexander Kirkland is excellent as Sam Evans and May Robson gives to the role of Mrs. Evans the touch of a fine and experienced actress.

Beginning today "Strange Interlude" will be shown twice daily.

Anatoles to Dance Saturday

The Anatole Club will hold its Thanksgiving dance Saturday in the Hotel Schenley. Arrangements have been made for the club to use the entire first floor. Music will be played by the Daum-Sanderson and Austin Wylie orchestras.

Marian Marsh Cast In 'Ruby Red'

Marian Marsh is the first feminine selection for the supporting cast of "Buby Red," Mae West's starring picture for Paramount. Miss Marsh moves from RKO, where she has just completed a role opposite Joel McCrea in "Sport Page." The cast of "Ruby Red" now includes Owen Moore, Noah Beery, David Landau, Dewey Robinson and Fuzzy Knight. Another important feminine part is yet to be cast.

Returns

Hugh Banks, former popular stock actor here, will be seen on the stage of the Pitt next week in the role created by Ernest Truex in "Whistling In the Dark," to be presented under the direction of Edwin Vail.

Young Actors Get Break

Young actors of today are lucky, according to Charlie Ruggles, featured comedian. In the days when he began his acting career, young men were not allowed to play youthful or sympathetic roles. Instead they worked their way through several years of "old men" and character parts, before, figuratively, winning their stage spurs. Incidentally, experienced actors 40 and even 50 years old, drew the matinee idol parts.

"Producers," Ruggles explains, "were afraid to take a chance on an actor who hadn't had several years of experience, and those with box office names could have their pick of parts. The same was true of actresses, which accounts for the fact that many of them died of old age while still playing ingenue roles. However, the eagle eye of the motion picture camera has reversed the situation."

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

An extra matinee is on the running schedule of Ziegfeld's "Show Boat," which will tie up at the Nixon dock next week. Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday will find their afternoons devoted to those worthy muses, Thalia, Calliope, Terpsichore, et. al. This musical version of the Edna Ferber novel, was the last production of the late Florenz Ziegfeld, representing a revival in New York last spring of his masterpiece, following the previous opening there of his last original production, "Hot Cha." Both "Show Boat" and "Hot Cha" had their premieres in the theater to which "Show Boat" returns next week with Helen Morgan, Norma Terris, Sammy White and Eva Puejk and other members of the original cast. To make Thanksgiving more perfect, the box office sale of seats for this attraction will open on that day.

With the return of George Sharp as business manager of the resident company in the Pitt the company there will assume the name of the genial George, whose cheery smile greeted many patrons at last night's opening. Hereafter the company will be known as the George Sharp Players. Edwin Vail will continue to direct the thespians, thus renewing an association between the "front of the house" and the stage that was successful in other days, when Mr. Sharp was the official greeter and Eddie the boy who prepared the feast. Hugh Banks, another reminder of the most prosperous stock days in the Pitt, will be back in the company next week, and don't be surprised if you hear that Mabel Kroman and Paul McGrath are to return.

"Counsellor-At-Law," authored and produced by Elmer Rice, which interrupted its run in the summer so its star, Paul Muni, could go picture-making in Hollywood, and took up where it left off when he returned, will quit New York after three more weeks. It will take to the road with bookings contacted for a tour to continue until June.

* * *

Three companies now are playing "Another Language," the original one in New York; the Chicago company, with Patricia Collinge and Tom Powers, and one in London, with Edna Best and Herbert Marshall. Screen rights have been sold to M-G-M, but there'll be no pictures of it until "the road" has seen it in the flesh.

Blanche Ring, Pitt Guest Star, Scores Hit In 'Cradle Snatchers'

By EDWARD W. GOSS

Applause, justly earned, greeted Blanche Ring, popular comedienne, last night in the Pitt, where she opened a week's engagement as guest star with the George Sharp Players, as the company now is called.

"Cradle Snatchers," pert comedy-farce authored by Russell G. Medcraft and Norma Mitchell, served as Miss Ring's vehicle. It was obvious she knew her role—that of Susan Martin, a neglected wife. It was in this role that she scored one of the greatest successes of her career.

The theme of the comedy has to do with three wives who learn their respective husbands have suddenly developed a great weakness for hunting ducks, and since no ducks materialize from their frequent expeditions, the wives reason that the "ducks" wear smart clothes and speak English. The wives take action to remedy conditions and save their more or less happy homes. The remedy is three college boys. For a consideration the Joe Colleges act as lovers of the wives, thus rearing jealousy among the husbands.

SITUATIONS FUNNY

With such material, it is not difficult to form sundry hilarious situations. Spicy and clever lines also develop.

The support offered Miss Ring by the resident players is more than satisfactory, particularly that of Alden Chase, cast as one of the college boys. The most diverting spot of the entire production comes in the second act when Miss Ring, the rather ornate and time-worn wife, meets Mr. Chase. Chase, anxious to impress the wife with his ardor, goes off into torrents of loving words. Miss Ring, unused to such attention, but willing to acclimate herself, is almost at a loss, yet not quite. Her replies to Chase, the expressions on her mobile face and her posturing put the customers in stitches.

REALISTIC PORTRAYAL

The other players who also give realistic portrayals are Ella Ethridge, Kathryn Meskyl, Charles Webster, Henry Richards and Betty Hanna. The Misses Ethridge and Meskyl are the other two wives, Webster and Richards are college boys and Miss Hanna has the role of a chaperon to the wifely trio. Another who should not be forgotten is Baker Moore, playing husband to Miss Ring.

Miss Ring is the first guest star to appear with the company during the current season. Also it is her first appearance on a Pittsburgh stage for several years. She should come again.

New Talkies Booked

Beginning Thursday the Fulton will show Ed Wynn, the Perfect Fool, in the picture version of one of his former musical shows, "Manhattan Mary."

The Stanley has booked Joe E. Brown's latest comedy, "You Said a Mouthful," for a week's engagement beginning Thursday. Supporting Brown are Ginger Rogers and Preston Foster.

"Rain," Joan Crawford's starring vehicle, opens in the Penn Friday. The cast includes Walter Huston, William Gargan, Matt Moore, Walter Catlett, Guy Kibbee and Beulah Bondi.

Coming to the Warner Friday is "Air Mail," with Pat O'Brien, Gloria Stuart, Slim Summerville and Ralph Bellamy. This film is dedicated to the air mail service.

"That's My Boy," starring Richard Cromwell, has been booked for the Davis beginning Thursday. It's a story of a college football hero.

M-G-M Will Produce 'The Lady'

Charles Brabin will direct "The Lady," for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, with Irene Dunne and Phillips Holmes in leading roles. This new film is based on Martin Brown's play, "The Lady."

He Smoked Without Stop All Day

Ate Entirely Too Much Lunch Besides

Yet...This Evening Finds Him Clear-Headed and Bright-Eyed...No Headache...No Head Dullness

"Don't overindulge—don't eat too much, smoke too much, drink unwisely" is the Law of Good Health.

If you don't follow that law—Phillips' Milk of Magnesia; scientists say; is the QUICKEST, SIMPLEST AND EASIEST way to correct its effects. All you do is this:

"TAKE—2 tablespoons in a glass of water before bed."

"TAKE—2 tablespoons in a glass of water with the juice of a WHOLE ORANGE when you get up."

Or take six Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets the same way, which give an equivalent amount of Milk of Magnesia, for each Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablet equals one teaspoonful of the liquid Milk of Magnesia.

What It Does

This small dosage of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia acts to alkalize the system. And an alkalized system is largely impervious to the bad after-effects of excessive smoking—excessive eating, drinking.

It sweetens and purifies your stomach. Banishes the acid headache, sour stomach, deadly depression that mark the price of immoderations.

Results are quick and almost invariable. Your head clears, your stomach settles—you feel like a new person.

Every person who smokes should know this. And take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia EVERY NIGHT before bed. Every person who overindulges in food or drink should know it. And keep a bottle of "Phillips'" in his medicine chest.

Try it—just once. You will be amazed at what it does.

When you buy, be sure to get the REAL article—Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Always ask for it by the name Phillips—for all "milk of magnesia" is not alike in effect. So take care to see you get Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—the kind doctors endorse—judged the most powerful neutralizer of stomach acids known.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

This is betrothal time in Pittsburgh! In the past few weeks we've had a most romantic number of engagements to announce.

And today brings another betrothal. Mrs. Josiah Van Kirk Thompson, of Pittsburgh and Uniontown, is announcing the engagement of her daughter, Virginia B. Maloney, to Andreas A. Iversen, son of the Lorenz Iversens. The wedding will take place early in February.

Seen at Theater

In spite of the Heifetz concert last night there was a smartly gowned coterie of society folks at the "Cat and the Fiddle," appearing this week at the Nixon. During intermission I saw the George Burgwins in the crowded lobby, with Mrs. Burgwin in hyacinth blue crepe, chatting with Genevieve Bell, who chose white crepe having a cowl neckline. Smart Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby's gown was of Chinese red crepe made with puffed elbow sleeves, and with her was Mrs. Gordon King, in a silver gray crepe gown having a cape collar banded with gray fox.

Mrs. A. P. Brill I saw in the audience, wearing chiffon, the skirt of black and bodice of beige. Mrs. James McKay wore black crepe with an ermine coat and Katherine McCloskey's costume was of holly berry red crepe. Attractive Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland appeared in flax blue crepe made with long sleeves having intriguing puffs at the elbows.

Esthetic looking Eloise Dorrance was there, in black velvet, and I noticed Mrs. Simon T. Patterson wearing violet crepe with a crimson girdle. Others I saw were Evelyn Evans, May Kuhn and Helen House.

Notable Concert

Austere Heifetz, who would never dream of coquetting with his audience like Jeritza, won prolonged applause last night when he gave a notable concert in Syria Mosque.

During intermission, folks chatting in the lobby were enthusiastic about the evening. One of the most striking figures I noticed during this popular intermission interval was Mrs. Joseph H. Bialis.

Vivid cranberry-red crepe formed the bodice of her gown, with drapery of the material extended to form sleeves. The skirt of the frock was of black satin.

Others I had a glimpse of in the crowded corridors were Katharine Frazer in black crepe having gay puffed sleeves of silver sequins; Lucretia Billings in sage green; Mrs. T. C. Jenkins in periwinkle blue lace; Elizabeth Jenkins in copper-glo satin; Mrs. Lewis A. Park in sumac-red uncut velvet, and Miss Helen Rauh in blue lace.

Wears Black

Mrs. H. H. McClintic was in frothy green lace, Mrs. Herbert DuPuy in black velvet, Mrs. J. Hartwell Hillman, Jr., in black satin and her daughter, Juliet, in black satin.

Mrs. John W. Lawrence, wearing black satin, arrived with Mrs. George Singer Ebbert, who chose a smart gown of black crepe.

B. P. W. Head Surprises Dinner Guests Here By Singing Solo

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

There was a dramatic and impromptu moment last night at the Pittsburgh and Professional Women's buffet dinner in honor of the national president, Mrs. Geline MacDonald Bowman, of Richmond, Va. With Madelaine Emich at the piano, Robert Pritchard had just finished singing "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" when Mrs. Bowman rose to her feet unannounced and in clear, trained voice sang, unaccompanied, the words of response which had been written to the same air for the last national convention. Few there knew that the gift of a singing voice was one of Mrs. Bowman's many talents.

Nearly 200 women attended the dinner, which was held in the Twentieth Century Club. Bishop Alexander Mann offered the invocation; Miss Suzanne Beatty made the address of welcome, and Miss Martha Morrison, Pittsburgh president, introduced the special guests, among whom were Miss Thyrsa W. Amos, dean of women at Pitt; Mrs. John M. Phillips, first vice president of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women; Judge Sara M. Soffel and Mrs. T. M. Stahlman, president of the Congress of Clubs.

Mrs. Bowman's talk was largely of the objectives and achievements of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. Women in business is not a new idea, for the women of the old-fashioned home who fed and clothed her family, spun and wove and managed her household was indeed a manufacturer, she said. She spoke of the 12,000,000 American women in the business world, saying they are there to stay, to earn money for the daily needs of the country and to turn back into life the interest on something they have received.

Concerning the Federation's fight on discrimination against the married woman in business, Mrs. Bowman holds that marriage does not lessen a woman's efficiency and that if the question is to be viewed from the standpoint of the double income that there's many another woman in business whose father's or brother's income is quite equal to supporting her.

She branded such discrimination as unsound and un-American. She urged the women to study taxation, causes and cures of unemployment and the relation of capital and labor and said it is the shirking of individual responsibility that has "got us into the mess we're in now."

Mrs. Denman Explains 19th Amendment Fight

Seventy-two years of organized work preceded the adoption of the Nineteenth Amendment, said Mrs. David N. Denman, speaking before the Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg yesterday afternoon on "Legislation That Affects Women."

She discussed the conditions against which women of Revolutionary times revolted when a married woman was classed legally with infants, lunatics and habitual drunkards.

Carnegie Monday Club Hears Surprise Program

Attractive little souvenir programs were prepared for yesterday's meeting of the Monday Club of Carnegie. The entire schedule of entertainment was a surprise to the members and included readings by Karl Emerson Williams; vocal selections by Mrs. Walter Close with Hazel Drake Paar accompanying; violin number by Hazel Hunt Allen, Mrs. Harold G. Ewens accompanying, and a sketch by Mr. Williams and Dick Richardson. The program was arranged by Delilah King Porter and Mrs. John Mulvey was hostess.

HUNTING COSTUMES BECOME PRACTICAL SPORTS CLOTHES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 22.—Paris has made a discovery of importance—at least to those who are interested in practical and good-looking sports clothes. It is simply this—that the suits, coats and skirts that the Paris dressmakers have been designing for the hunt during the last few years turn out to be almost perfect costumes for any kind of country wear.

THUS IT IS that hunting costumes are appearing at French country estates and at Swiss mountain resorts in and out of season. They are made of heavy tweeds—most of them plaids—or heavy worsteds combined with leather. The jackets are often classic Norfolks, with plenty of pockets and deep plaits at the back, and the skirts are of the divided type.

* * *

JANE REGNY makes an especially attractive costume along these general lines. It is sketched today, showing the jacket, divided skirt and sweater-blouse. The fabric is a modified plaid woolen, in dark blue and bluish green, slightly mottled with white. Deep pockets, belt and collar lining are of leather matching the blue fabric.

* * *

THE THIRD member of the ensemble is a sweater in a pale greenish blue which matches none of other colors in the costumes, but which harmonizes surprisingly well with all of them.

Miss Helen MacGregor Weds New Jersey Man

Miss Helen MacGregor, daughter of Mrs. Scott Hutton MacGregor, of New York, formerly of Pittsburgh, on Saturday afternoon became the bride of George Ferry Napier, Jr., of East Orange, N. J., in the First Presbyterian Church, New York. There was a supper later in the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

The bride wore a gown of blue velvet, Empire mode, with a small velvet hat to match and a corsage of white orchids. Miss Martha MacGregor was her sister's maid of honor and wore gray sheer crepe with a corsage of orchids. Jasper Osborne was the best man and ushers included George Morris and Charles Kilbourne, all of East Orange.

After a southern wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Napier will be at home in Reynolds Terrace, Orange.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Rev. John W. Sproull, of Pittsburgh, who was trustee of the old Western University, now the University of Pittsburgh, and she is a graduate of Arnold College, New Haven.

Film Bulletin Now in Drama Review

Cinema bulletins are now included with the "Drama League Review" mailed to members of the Pittsburgh Drama League. The current issue of the Review announces that the play-reading group will begin its season's activities Friday and Saturday of this week in the library theater at Mrs. Albert M. Pettit's home, Forbes street, Squirrel Hill.

Since the little theater has often been taxed beyond capacity, a new method will be tried this year. Mrs. H. Allen Machesney is to receive reservations and only a certain number will be accepted.

The entertainment this week will consist of dramatizations by the Dickens Fellowship. A sketch from "David Copperfield" will be given by Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Clifford, Mrs. Esther Leisch Kelly and Holbrook Botsett and a bit from "Nicholas Nickleby," by Mrs. Florence W. Fairman, William Brown, and Mr. and Mrs. Botsett. Mrs. Chester F. Johnston will read an original play, "Coronation March."

Twentieth Century Club Told of English Inns

Mark Haight, from the standpoint of diction and delivery one of the most enjoyable speakers the Twentieth Century Club has had in a long time, took the members on a fascinating trip to English inns yesterday morning. His hearers shared with Mr. Haight the beauties and great historical interest of the places he depicted by word, stereopticon and motion picture.

In his prefatory remarks he touched on the intimate connection between England's inns and her history. He remarked that travelers go to cathedrals, churches, abbeys and castles, but few even guess the indescribable charm of the country's inns. So much that is part of the nation's life still stands, virtually untouched, he said. Tracing over the ancient days when the monks were hospitalers to the traveler and the pilgrim, to the day when monasteries were dissolved and inns came to be operated on a competitive and commercial basis, through the picturesque coaching days, the days of the early steam carriage that went "at the incredible speed of 13 or 14 miles an hour," he observed that inns have again come into their own with the motor car.

PAIR 'PARTED' IN SAME HOUSE

For five years, Mrs. Anna L. Sommer, 1614 Fawcett street, Versailles Township, and her husband, Otto F. Sommer, have lived almost as strangers under the same roof, Mrs. Sommer said in asking Judge James H. Gray for a divorce.

After she had told of being ill for nearly a week with no food or care, Judge Gray asked who owned the house. Told that she did, he inquired:

"Why don't you serve notice on him to get out?"

Mrs. Sommer said she wanted her divorce case out of the way first. She declared her husband has been paying attention to another woman and refused to pay his wife's bills. Mrs. Sommer testified her husband's apartment is separated from hers.

MUNHALL WINS DAMAGE CASE

Munhall was awarded a verdict by a Federal Court jury in a $30,000 damage suit brought against the borough by Viola M. Kuhns and her husband, Charles F. Kuhns, of 226 North Phelps street, Youngstown, O.

In a trial before Judge Nelson McVicar it was testified Mrs. Kuhns was seriously hurt December 7, 1930, when an automobile in which she and her husband were riding upset in a cave-in on Virginia avenue, near Main street, Munhall. The defense contended adequate warning of the condition of the street had been posted.

PATTERSON AGAIN HITS RACKETS IN CITY

Broadways of the World
All in a Day
By Mark Hellinger

ABOARD THE S. S. REX, GENOA-BOUND—If you ask me, and several people have, I would say that it is the ambition of almost every human being to tour the world before the time arrives to check out of the picture. I know that I've always felt that way. And, aside from the fact that I bat out an alleged column, I don't think I'm very different from you or your Uncle Joseph.

Well, I don't suppose it's much of a secret any longer—so I might as well plunge right into the middle of the thing. This is the first day of a proposed trip that will carry me clear around the world. It's not the typical world trip because I'm not taking any set route. I'm going anywhere that fancy dictates, which is always the best way to go through life. (Note—With the exception of married life, of course).

The reason I'm telling you all this at the very beginning is because you're going along with me. I mean it. From now until the day I return, this space will be occupied daily by a report of the experiences and adventures that I am bound to encounter. I can talk to no one so well as I can talk to you. It is obvious, then, that you will be right by my side during the entire trip.

You understand what I mean? If you do, I congratulate you. They just opened the bar on the boat. And—well, let it go . . .

Let's be serious for a few moments. I expect to be gone from New York's Broadway about 10 months in order to describe for you the other Broadways of the world. I intend to hit Italy, Algeria, France, England, Germany, Austria, Hungary, Russia, Turkey, Greece, Egypt, Syria, Persia, India, Australia, Indo-China, Japan—and, when I get back, I'll take a run over to Jersey City.

Let me warn you in advance that these are going to be the strangest travel stories that you ever read. I have no intention of describing the beauties of a sunset or the number of precious bones in Westminster Abbey. That type of material I willingly turn over to literary gentlemen who write far more capably than I—and who can make the dullest facts just a little more dull.

Instead, I'm going to bat out stuff that I think is interesting. If I meet an American in Turkey who tells me an interesting story about Nashville, Tenn., that's the story I'll write that day. If a Chinese coolie tells me how he keeps warmey, that's okay with me, too. In other words, I'm out for the human interest stuff all over the world.

Some of it may be good; plenty of it is bound to be bad. But inasmuch as that's my general average through the years, I don't see what I have to lose.

Maybe the reaction of you folks back home will be quite favorable. If that happens, who knows to what glory I may ride upon my return? I may even acquire ten readers instead of the six I have now! . . .

There's bound to be a great deal of the "I" stuff in all of these columns. I'm afraid I won't be able to help myself in that direction. I've been knocking out this type of junk for plenty of years now, and I've made an honest effort never to take myself seriously. Why should I? Nobody knows better than I that the big shot of today is the laughing stock of tomorrow.

So I've always tried to keep away from too much of the "I" stuff. Occasionally, of course, it must be done. But even then, I try to tone it down by rapping myself. Nothing in the world is funnier to me than the columnist who prints letters from readers who tell him what a great guy he is. What idiocy that is!

What I started to say before I threw myself for a two-paragraph loss, however, was that you'll have to stand a great deal of the personal me before this series comes to a conclusion. Since it's your trip and mine, I don't see how we can avoid it. Accordingly, it might not be a bad idea for me to set down a few of my beliefs right here and now:

1—I don't believe in class distinction. After mingling with our so-called society for some time, I am firmly convinced that the group is composed of some of the most notorious morons of all time. If I had to make a choice, I would rather talk with certain racketeers than with anyone in the social world. The racketeer is sometimes on the level with himself. The social sap never is.

2—I am not particularly fond of cellophane wrappers, broccoli, Rudy Vallee, ingrown toenails, Senator Huey Long, Pekinese dogs, opening nights, caviar or columns like this.

4—I hate backslappers of every description. Nothing is lower than the man who grips your hand through life because he's eager to handle your grip on life.

5—I do not believe I will ever be anything more than a mediocre writer who achieved a small measure of temporary success through a break in the cards. I see what I see, and I know what I like. I try to put those thoughts on paper as simply as I possibly can. And that's all there is to my business.

I have never written for the wise guy or the sophisticate. Wise guys have always sold at the rate of two-for-a-dime, and the sophisticate is little better than a mental mongoloid. I'm writing for the average guy the country over, because I'm the average guy—and I'm doggone proud of it.

When I reach the end of this racket, I expect no bigger reward than a kick in the pants. By adopting that philosophy I will suffer no disappointments.

There isn't much more to say now. But please remember this: If I've ever given you a slight smile, or a tiny catch in the throat, or if I've ever made you believe that the other family's lot can be just a trifle

Students Hurt By Hit-Run Car, Motorist Held

MISS ANNA KNAUSS, 18

Owner Reports Auto Stolen, Then Falls In Police Trap

Miss Anna Knauss, 18, of 1040 Spring Garden avenue, and Joseph Vicek, 20, of 1019 Province street, both night school students at Allegheny High School, were in serious condition in Presbyterian Hospital today with injuries suffered when they were struck by an automobile at Federal street and Montgomery avenue last night.

They were crossing Federal street when an automobile driven, police said, by Andrew Jones, 24, of 2492 Perrysville avenue, struck them. Jones stopped and when he saw that others were aiding the victims he drove away, according to police. The license number was obtained by witnesses and furnished to police.

A few minutes later a man telephoned North Side police that the automobile involved had been stolen. He was told to appear at the station. Shortly afterwards Jones appeared and was arrested on a charge of violating the automobile laws.

Jones admitted driving the car, police said, and stopping after hitting the victims and later going to the hospital to inquire about their condition.

STAMP PLEDGES URGED IN FUND CAMPAIGN

Welfare Drive Worker Appeals for More Small Donations

The use of stamp cards by small contributors to the 1933 budget campaign of the Welfare Fund was being used today by solicitors of the campaign organization in their canvass of persons of moderate circumstances who might not otherwise subscribe.

The idea was broached by Mrs. J. C. Dilworth, acting general chairman of the women's teams of the Central Division, at yesterday's report luncheon, when an added $95,625 in pledges was reported in the drive for the final million of the $2,500,000 goal.

STAMP DRIVE URGED

She urged:

"Persons who have homes, automobiles and house employes stand to be very seriously hurt unless the Welfare Fund gets the $2,500,000 it is after. Tell them they can have a stamp card and try to pledge them for at least $1 a week for 20 weeks. There are $1 stamps and we ought to make use of them rather than suffer a total loss in so many of our calls."

Among contributions announced at the luncheon was one of $160, pledged by girls in a Woolworth store on Smithfield street by clerks, none of whom receives more than $10 weekly.

Meanwhile, it was learned today that City Council has approved a second ordinance calling for $50,000 for shoes for the needy. The first appropriation of that amount, made late in October, has been exhausted, according to the City Welfare Department.

AID FOR HOMELESS

Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the department, yesterday asked Council for an appropriation of $4,639.08 as the city's share of expenses for the Central Application Association, headquarters for help of homeless and unfortunate men. The money will match a like amount subscribed by the Allegheny County Emergency Association for the application association's 1933 budget.

$25,000 and Over

Previously reported $375,000.00

Previously reported $177,250.00

FIVE OF NORTH BOROUGHS JOIN RATE FIGHT

3 Townships Also In Movement for Reductions

Five north boroughs and three townships today had aligned themselves with the movement for lower utility rates.

Delegates at a meeting last night in Avalon Borough Hall, voted to petition the Pittsburgh Suburban Water Service and Manufacturers Light and Heat Company and the Duquesne Light Company for immediate reductions.

Representatives of the communities, McKees Rocks, Ben Avon, Ben Avon Heights, Emsworth and Avalon and Ross, Kilbuck and Stowe townships, are to meet next Monday night to prepare petitions. Bellevue also is expected to be represented.

Speakers last night asserted utilties should not maintain predepression rates in the face of decreased prices for nearly all other commodities.

The 'Ground' Afire in West End

FLAMES FROM BURNING MINE CROPPING OUT THROUGH SHALE AS STEAM SHOVELS LABOR

PAUL HARROLD W. D. THOMAS DAVID MEYERS

City engineers in an old heading in the mine, one of several opened. Steam shovels are isolating the burning area, workmen are filling fissures with clay to cut off the air, choke the flames. City, federal, state experts are cooperating. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

ANOTHER MINE FIRE SPREADS

A few blocks from where city engineers, state and federal mine inspectors are fighting to extinguish the mine fire under Herschel street, West End, another smoldering underground fire threatens to damage homes and other buildings near the Dunbar playgrounds, Crafton Heights.

Dr. G. E. Sheets, secretary of the Chartiers Board of Trade, in a letter to City Council yesterday, repeated a warning his organization had given Council several months ago, that the fire was spreading and would cause damage unless immediate steps were taken to cut off the fire. He declares the Herschel street and the Dunbar fires are separated only by Obey avenue and that they are in the same coal seam.

Dr. Sheets stated that there are two churches, two schools and several hundred homes near the playground. He said that after the recent warning Council ordered all entrances to the mine sealed, but that the order had not been obeyed.

SQUIRREL HILL TRADE BOARD LAUDS TALK

Judge Spurs Crusade Against Vice, Scores Prohibition Laws

Declaring he was neither raider, crusader nor "Carrie Nation," Judge Frank P. Patterson waved aside the applause of the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade that followed his announcement last night that many Pittsburgh "places" were closed.

The fight against the rackets revealed only that elected constables are not doing their work, the jurist said as he declared emphatically that "he didn't do it."

Almost in the same breath the judge charged that prohibition was a violation of person rights and said he believed the dry laws would soon be modified.

RACKET CHARGE

Judge Patterson, whose denunciation of constables at the "blind men's parade" was a bombshell to the underworld, again told an audience that the city and county were overrun with rackets.

In Carnegie, he said, more than 50 resorts existed; in the Twelfth Ward "there are hundreds," and many also flourish in the Tenth, Eleventh and Thirteenth wards, he said.

In fashionable Sewickley, too, he said, liquor and numbers were peddled. Of the Fourteenth Ward, which includes Squirrel Hill, he said nothing. In the audience were some Squirrel Hill constables. So was Police Magistrate Leo Rothenberg and some plain clothed policemen.

OAKLAND CLUB

Nor was Oakland's much talked about club for the social elite, which operates a glance away from the district police station, left untouched by the champion of civic purity. Of it he exclaimed:

"And, too, there's that club in Oakland defying the court with its 'chuck-a-luck' game, its dice rolling and other law violations. That's the sort of thing I want to see stopped."

Last night and for many nights the Oakland club has been "dark."

Judge Patterson charged he was called a crusader because he sought to improve the morale of constables. Of his challenge last September to constables when they "paraded" before him, telling him no violations existed in their respective wards, he said:

"The law requiring constables to appear in court quarterly to report violations in their districts is 114 years old. In those days the court had no way of knowing existing conditions, but now not only the court, but everybody else knows flagrant violations exist.

"It was in the hope that the people would elect a responsible body of constables that I got into my trouble."

He urged the election of proper election officials and blamed the people—the voters—for casting ballots for candidates without investigating them.

Shack Death Probe Jails 4 Witnesses

Probing the death of Charles Lutza, 40, of Boston, found dead in a shack, detectives learned he had been drinking in a McKeesport speakeasy and had fallen down stairs. The alleged speakeasy proprietor, Caroline Kursit, 40, of 411 Sheridan avenue, was arrested and held in $1,000 bond for violation of the liquor laws.

Three witnesses, George Lutza, the victim's brother, Dorothy Inkovich, 35, and Maroo Myrhagych, also were arrested as witnesses.

WILD CARGO
By FRANK BUCK
With EDWARD ANTHONY

CHAPTER XXXV.

For almost an hour, Lal said, it was all head-work, so to speak, and pushing. Nothing much happened and he started to wonder whether he had let himself in for a dull show.

Just as it began to dawn upon him that perhaps the fights between bull elephants he had heard of since he was a tot were overrated—stories that had become fables—there was some action. The herd leader got off to one side and jabbed Do tellingly—but not seriously—in the shoulder, riping the flesh wide open. Do set up a tremendous snorting and trumpeting and started to retreat. Barra, seeing his advantage, went after his wounded opponent and tried to get him from behind. After a retreat of about 30 yards Do braced himself and whirled around suddenly, again meeting the sultan of the herd headon.

It was a real collision this time. When two elephants whose combined weight is nine tons or more come together (Lal estimated Do's weight as four and a half tons and Barra's as close to five) the impact is not without its jarring effect. But elephant skulls are elephant skulls and concussion of the brain seems to be an unheard-of ailment in the realm of the pachyderm.

HERD LEADER CHARGES

Again there was a long spell of pushing and stamping around, with nothing of importance happening. Lal began to think that perhaps those females that kept calmly grazing were right in their unconcern.

The interloper, evidently tired of the indecisive nature of the scrap, decided to give it some finality. He didn't succeed in this, but he evened things up in the way of shoulder wounds, dealing the herd leader a painful (though unimportant) one. Do, to be specific, dug into his adversary's shoulder and when he was finished there was a small chunk of the chief's flesh flapping in the sultry breeze.

Barra Sahib decided that this was a challenge that called for

Young Specialist For Carnegie Institute Given Job

By HAROLD M. FARKAS

MIAMI, Nov. 22.—J. Harold Matteson, 20, special entymological collector for the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, has been commissioned to prepare a display of more than 10,000 specimens of Florida moths and butterflies for the Century of Progress World's Fair at Chicago, by Gov. Doyle E. Carlton.

Matteson, a student at the University of Miami, is recognized as the youngest specialists in the field. He attended the fifth International Congress of Entymologists at Paris last summer and was elected a member of the Entymological Society of France.

It was Matteson's poor health which started his career. Unable to attend school, he was brought to Florida when 8 years old, and continued annual trips for many years. At St. Petersburg, Matteson studied under the late noted naturalist, Dr. George Frank. Later he made the acquaintanceship of Dr. Hugo Kahl, curator at Carnegie Museum. He was appointed official collector of moths and butterflies here by the Carnegie Institute.

Matteson has gathered one of the largest collections of Florida moths and butterflies in the world. Portions of his collections have been displayed throughout the United States and in many foreign countries. It is valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Law Breakdown Stirs Judge; Metz Jailed

Former Justice of the Peace John G. Metz, of Kennedy Township, today began serving two years in the Allegheny County workhouse for extortion. Three raiding constables are yet to be sentenced.

Visiting Judge R. R. Lewis, of Potter County, refused Metz's parole request, saying:

"When the magisterial structure of a community breaks down, as it did in this township, due to the defalcation of the justice of the peace, a grave crime has been committed, and to parole the magistrate would be a travesty on justice."

Judge Lewis said he would consider a parole at the expiration of a year, provided Metz had paid several hundred dollars costs in cases on which sentence was suspended.

Constable Edward Brubach, of Avalon, convicted with Metz, failed to appear for sentence and his bond of $1,000 was forfeited. When his bondsman brings him in, he will be sentenced.

Constables Jacob Esau, of Neville Township, and William Berg, of Ben Avon, are to be sentenced next week. It was charged the three constables raided smalll shopkeepers, charged with selling liquor, and through Metz assessed fines larger than the amounts returned to the county. Several slot machines also were seized and the money extracted, it was charged.

New Yorker Defies Police During Grilling

A girl who told city detectives she was Miss Dorothy Healy, 23, of New York City, but refused to answer other questions, was held for further investigation in Central Police Court today in connection with the looting of purses of two women shoppers in a downtown department store late yesterday.

Miss Healy was arrested by Detectives William Barbour and John Hanna after Mrs. Sarah Sobak, of 613 Chestnut street, and Mrs. Frank Miller, of 9 Judicial street, Mt. Washington, reported they had been robbed. Mrs. Sobak of $44 and Mrs. Miller of $4.

Arrest of the girl and of Mrs. Anna Meads, 40, Negro, of 10 Trent street, followed on the heels of complaints several women shoppers were victims of pickpockets in the downtown district. The Meads woman was held for court on a larceny charge.

Dennis, of the state Vocational Department, met at noon in the William Penn Hotel to arrange the program to be followed at the convention in Kansas City, December 7.

DR. RYAN SEES INACTION AS 'SUICIDE'

The nation is slowly committing suicide by its policy of inaction, the Rev. Dr. John D. Ryan, noted sociologist, told members of the twelfth annual conference of the National Council of Catholic Men, last night in the Hotel Schenley.

Restating his "reflation" plan, he declared that without an extensive relief and public works program, the government faces "taking over the essential industries or bloody revolution." He declared for a $2,000,000,000 bond issue for direct relief and from $5,000,000,000 to $8,000,000,000 for [illegible] without the "self-liquidating" clause.

The conference today turned to Catholic educational problems, and the meeting will close today with discussion of the crime situation.

Discussing the bond issue, Dr. Ryan said:

"There is sufficient money in the country to buy these bonds. The fiscal disadvantages attached to such a large issue are trifling in comparison with the evil results of a policy of drift and inaction.

"If Congress refuses to adopt this measure now, we shall find a year from now that business activities will be on a still lower level, the amount of money available for financing a public works program will be much less, and the federal government will be confronted with only two choices: either to take over and operate the essential industries of the country in order to prevent general starvation, or to deal with bloody revolution.

"The time for the government to adopt a sound and constructive measure of provision for public works is now. A year from now it will be too late."

Dr. Ryan, director of the department of social action of the Welfare Council, and professor of moral theology and social ethics of the Catholic University, reviewed the history of inactivity of the present administration.

He blamed the drifting and inactivity of President Hoover and the Congress for prolonging the conditions, declaring prompt action in 1930 would have checked the decline. The refusal, he declared, was tragic.

Leo E. Keller, of Detroit, statistician of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes, presented a nine-point plan for unemployment. Among these suggestions, which included staggering public works and assurance of present employes working during the winter, he urged those of the three millions employers who could, to hire one or more men. If the average employed totaled three, he said, all but one million of the 10,000,000 unemployed would be rehired.

Attorney Joseph A. Beck, of this city, spoke of the moral and ethical aspects of unemployment. State Senator Frank J. Harris presided.

Speakers yesterday afternoon included J. Rogers Flannery, who urged a five-day week, and Victor F. Ridder, national executive of the Boy Scouts.

William Lynch, of Chicago; Philip Murray, vice president of the International Mine Workers; the Rev. Dr. R. A. McGowan, of Washington; Bernard J. Rothwell, manufacturer, of Boston, Mass., also spoke.

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle welcomed the delegates, while Bishops Joseph Schrembs, Cleveland; Joseph Rummel, Omaha, and John J. Swint, of Wheeling, and the Rev. Father James M. Delaney spoke briefly. Frank J. Lanahan presided.

SIFT NEW P. O. LABOR ROW

Miss Emmeline Pitt, Pittsburgh commissioner of the Federal Department of Labor, was to meet with representatives of the Aronberg-Fried Company, general contractors of the new federal building today to discuss charges made to the department that out-of-town labor is being used on the building. About 150 men are now employed on the new structure. Union officials said that they did not know if the charges would result in suspension of work.

Trade union heads and officials of the Ideal Construction Company, of Gary, Ind., were expected to confer with Miss Pitt today on the status of the new postoffice at Jeannette, upon which work has been suspended.

tougher than your own—why, I've been more than amply repaid.

Who has a right to ask for more?...

What's going to happen on this trip? I wish I knew. No, I don't, either. Uncertainty is the only thing that makes the future interesting. I don't know exactly what that means, but you'll have to admit that it sounds cute.

Maybe I'll wind up as a new power in Russia. Maybe I'll wind up as horse power in African captivity. Maybe I'll be adopted by a king, if there's a king left by the time I get around. Maybe I'll become a preacher in China or a sinner in Abyssinia. And maybe some kind Turkish gentleman will put me in charge of a harem. Is my fez red!

On the other hand, maybe I'll not get very far. It's a dangerous route I'm taking; more dangerous than most people realize. I'm going out to find hidden places and there's an even chance that hidden places will find me.

But the gain is more than worth the risk. Just think of it, my friends. I'll be gone for 10 months, 10 long months—and I won't have to look at Winchell's face so much as once! . . .

WILD CARGO

a meaningful answer. Lowering his head and veering off to one side, he charged. Do was unable to get out of the way in time. The herd leader got one of the pretender's front legs between his tusks and raised the intruder's forequarters straight up in the air. In the course of this maneuver the overlord of the disputed herd succeeded in making a short rip, crosswise, under his adversary's chest, in back of the front legs.

But Do, on account of his quickness of foot—Lal made a point of telling me that the interloper was a bit the faster of the two—backed away before a fatal injury could be inflicted.

TREE UPROOTED

As Do backed away he was unlucky enough to crash into a heavy clump of bamboo. Down he went, snapping the stalks as he fell. This was Barra Sahib's chance to make his kill. In fact, Lal thought it was all over. But again superior speed came to the rescue of the younger animal, and he scrambled to his feet before the herd leader, now puffing, could dig in his murderous tusks and end the scrap.

Do managed to get completely out of the way of the onrushing Barra Sahib, with the result that the old sultan, unable to stop himself, crashed right into a jungle tree straight ahead. He hit it with such force that, although the tree was nearly a foot in diameter, it came right up out of the ground and toppled over.

The herd leader miraculously managed to keep his feet, but he was badly shaken up. He hesitated for a moment, leaving his side exposed. This was not lost on the alert pretender, who made a charge for the expansive target. Again Lal thought the fight was over. But Barra Sahib, breathing hard, just managed to swing around in time, meeting the enemy head-on as he had several times before.

STRUGGLE IN RAIN

Almost the same second that the heads of the great pachyderms came together there was a tremendous clap of thunder, accompanied by a sharp flash of lightning. Rain started coming down in torrents without any preliminary sprinkle, in the characteristic Far Eastern fashion.

Lal, though the tree afforded a certain amount of protection, was soaked to the skin, for there is nothing half-hearted about these sudden Asiatic storms. When it decides to rain, it rains, and if you happen to be in the jungle only the most unusual kind of shelter will keep you from becoming thoroughly drenched. But the fight was still on and it didn't even occur to Lal to beat a retreat. It was a rapidly improving scrap and his interest in the outcome kept him rooted to his perch.

For the first few minutes of the downpour the elephants remained head to head, the slippery footing making them cautious. Besides, by now they were pretty well spent. Froth ran from their mouths and blood trickled down their shoulders. The rain, seemingly bent on minimizing the struggle's brutalities, washed away the blood as fast as it appeared and this gore soon mixed with the mud and watery ooze at the feet of the mammoth contestants.

Brow to brow, the animals kept pushing away, neither able to gain an advantage. They skidded and slipped around meaninglessly, unable to accomplish anything in the way of offensive tactics. Neither, it was plain, was much of a "mudder."

The slippery muck finally bested them and both animals lost their footing. Down they went on their haunches in a spatter of mud and water, their forefeet sticking out in front of them. Each tried to scramble to his feet quickly to make a charge while the other was down.

Do, a bit quicker than his older adversary, got to his feet first and was about to charge when he suddenly changed his mind, probably because he didn't like the treacherous footing. He turned and ran, plainly willing to call it a day. Barra Sahib, all used up and chugging like an asthmatic engine, decided to have one more shot at the intruder.

He made for Do at a gallop, just managing to catch up with the retreating foe and jab him in the hip with one tusk. The pretender, bleeding freely from his new wound, didn't even turn around. He kept heading for heavy jungle and soon disappeared from view.

The method of application makes Pazo doubly effective (see picture below). Thousands say that Pazo is the first real relief they ever got from Piles. Thousands say it saved them the need of a painful operation. Try Pazo yourself and realize from one trial that your days of pile suffering are over. THE WAR WHOOP

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by N. C. Wyeth . . . inspired by the blood-curdling yells of war-mad savages, whose barbaric cruelty held America's early settlers in a constant state of terror. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

LONG CIPHERS ARE EASIEST

The "war message"—Cipher No. 13—should be a mere romp for cipherites.

They shouldn't need a single tip. A long message is generally much easier to decipher than a short one. Letter frequency often plays an important part.

In deciphering No. 13 the "fans" should bear in mind that it was sent as a telegram. If they look close they will probably find the repetition of several groups of cipher letters. What word, or words, might be used in a cipher dealing with U. S. armies?

To say more would take much of the thrill out of the solution. NO. 10 WAS "SOFT"

However, the editor of this column would like to know how speedily the message was deciphered. Write and let him know.

Minister Launches Speakership Drive

FARRELL, Pa., Nov. 22.—The Rev. H. M. Stevenson, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church and one of Mercer County's representatives in the General Assembly, became active in his campaign for the speakership of the state house of representatives today when he and his aides dispatched letters and telegrams to members of the house and to other Republican leaders, announcing that he is in the race. Observers believe the pastor-legislator has a good chance to win the appointment.

Will Ryshanek, young Pittsburgh maestro absent from the air waves since August, returns to broadcasting via KDKA tonight at 12:15 a. m. when he presents the first of a weekly series of after-midnight dance programs . . . On the same station at 5 today, Grace Elcoate Crum, soprano, prominent in local music circles, presents a recital of "Woodland Musical Sketches" . . . One of Frank Crumit's best known songs, "The Parlor is a Pleasant Place," and the early Gershwin "Yan-Kee," which is seldom heard over the air, have been chosen by Julia Sanderson as her featured solos over NBC-WCAE at 8.

Mr. Ryshanek

"The Lemar Bank Robbery," a federal criminal case in which the solution hinged upon a single fingerprint, is dramatized during the cigaret hour on WCAE at 10. Eddie Duchin and his Central Park Casino Orchestra provide the rhythms.

California Melodies, long a Saturday night radio feature, shifts to a Tuesday at 9:30 schedule over WJAS tonight. A new group of guest stars is to be featured. Sam Coslow, songwriter and vocalist, who wrote "Just One More Chance," "Was It a Dream?" and other hits, appearing in that capacity tonight.

Ben Bernie Introduces 'Gesundheit'

Seibel Discusses Theater Tonight

Reading the Sun-Telegraph comic pages, Uncle Bob and Betty provide another quarter-hour of inimitable comedy on WCAE at 6 tonight.

Howard Claney will content himself with a hot turkey sandwich so that he can see his alma mater, Carnegie Tech, engage New York U. in football . . Ethel Shutta will prepare the turk and the trimmings "in person" for husband George Olsen and the little Olsens . . . Irene Taylor will take the day "off" to sing at a tea dance . . . Lowell Patton will entertain studio associates at his Greenwich Village apartment . . . Kelvin Keech is going to spend the day in his car riding about the country . . . Walter O'Keefe disdains spending a "quiet" day to fly to Providence and boost Brown University at the Brown-Colgate game.

Miss Shutta

Add tongue-twisters: John McGovern, hero of the Mysteries of Paris broadcasts, meant to say "I'll give the bell a pull . . . but said "I'll give the bull a pill."

Paul Specht will bring his orchestra back to CBS soon . . . Paul, by the way, was the first to broadcast from a presidential inaugural ball. He's also played for the last four chief executives, the Prince of Wales and Alfonso XIII, former Spanish monarch.

Nino Martini, young Italian tenor, has been signed by Columbia for a series of bi-weekly recitals with Howard Barlow's orchestra. The first is scheduled tomorrow night at 11.

Following the conclusion of those international "To an Unnamed Listener" broadcasts yesterday, CBS is planning to resume the Sunday trans-Atlantic programs, which were heard weekly almost without interruption for two years.

Austin Wylie and his orchestra and the Daum-Saunderson band are to play at the Anatole Club's Thanksgiving ball to be held at the Hotel Schenley Saturday night . . .

Rudy Vallee, now in his fourth year of broadcasting for his yeast sponsor, has signed a contract to continue through 1933 . . . His program will continue to be presented in the form of a revue.

Pittsburgh Girl Wins $1,500 Radio Prize

She is Grace Morris Price, daughter of Dr. A. D. Price, 127 Hazelwood avenue.

Word was received here today by Warner Brothers from New York that Miss Price had been named the winner among thousands of contestants for the most suitable conclusion of the radio play, "Phantom of Crestwood."

Miss Lorris Gorske, 176 Walton avenue, this city, was awarded a $50 prize in the same competition, sponsored by the National Broadcasting Company and the R. K. O. Pictures.

All except the last installment of the play were broadcast in Pittsburgh by WCAE.

At her home today members of Miss Price's family said she was visiting friends in New York. She has won several prizes in commercial competitions, they said. Miss Price was graduated from Fifth Avenue High School in 1916.

'Bolero' Featured By Columbians

The Columbians, directed by Freddie Rich, include the most sensationally popular of all recent compositions, Ravel's "Bolero," on their program of modern music over CBS-WJAS at 8:45 tonight. During the broadcast, Lou Raderman, violinist, offers two of his own compositions.

Origin of Hidden Ball.
Heisman Claims Credit.
Bissonette Proves Fit.
Dad Lauds Mills Decree.

PUNT NOT SOLO BUT REAL TEAM PLAY

IF ONE FEATURE of the Pitt-Carnegie game continues to come in for more discussion than another, it is the punting. Local football men agree that in spite of the unfavorable conditions, the booting of Miller Munjas and Bob Hogan for the Panthers, and of Ray Tesser for the Scots equaled the best ever seen around here, and that, with the handicaps imposed by the soggy field and the slippery ball considered, it deserved to be ranked actually as the finest any Pittsburgh game has produced in years.

Miller Munjas

With few exceptions, the efforts of the three kickers were masterful bits of work, and the standard on both sides for the game as a whole was one seldom attained. The punts had an unusually good average for distance, they were accurately placed, and they were of such an ideal height that the ends were enabled to get down the field and give an exhibition of covering that has rarely been equaled on a local gridiron. It was one of Munjas' fine kicks and a neat recovery by Harvey Rooker on a fumble that eventually led to Pitt's victory.

IN CONNECTION WITH punting, a mistaken impression is sometimes to be noted. Many appear to look on it as merely an individual play, one in which no one except the kicker has any part. The punter is considered to be doing a solo, and generally gets all the credit or all the blame for a good or a bad kick, as the case may be.

But, as a matter of fact, there is nothing in football that is more essentially to team play than a punt. True, the kicker has got to be a specialist in a sense, and to have a particular skill of his own which his teammates may not possess, but without the help of all of the 10 other men in the lineup his every effort would be a dismal failure.

TO BEGIN WITH, everything depends on the center. The pass is all important. It must be well nigh perfect to make it possible for the kicker to get the ball away properly. If it's too low, or too high, or to one side, the punter is thrown off balance and enough time is lost to ruin the kick.

And that's only part of it, for while the pass is going back and the punter is receiving the ball and getting it away, the kicker must be given adequate protection. The opposing players must be blocked out long enough to keep them from swarming in and blocking or hurrying the punt.

AND IN PROVIDING this protection, the kicker's teammates must work under the handicap of unequal numbers. For four of them are otherwise engaged. The center must give all his attention to making the pass good; the kicker, of course, is back to get the punt away, and the two ends must sprint down the field to cover the receiver and prevent a runback or recover a fumble. That leaves only seven men to protect the kicker by blocking out the opposing players, and if there is a slip at any point in that blocking somebody will get through and block the kick or hurry it sufficiently to spoil it for both distance and accuracy. It's not an individual that punts, but the whole team.

IN THE TRACING of old football trick plays it was disclosed that even Pop Warner and his Carlisle Indians had pulled an ancient one when they got away with the hidden ball trick against Harvard 29 years ago. That's still one of the most famous of gridiron stories, yet John Heisman asserts he worked the same thing eight years earlier.

John Heisman

It was on October 31, 1903, that Warner's Carlisle team fooled Harvard with the hidden-ball stunt in a game at Cambridge. On a kick-off by Harvard, the Indians, after receiving the ball, secretly slipped it beneath the back of Charley Dillon's jersey, which had been specially prepared for the purpose. Harvard did not discover the ruse until Dillon had run past all of its players, and the Indian sprinted 105 yards for a touchdown.

"WARNER PICKED UP that trick from me," explains Heisman, who coached at W. & J. among other places in his 38 years as a mentor. "In 1895, I was coaching Auburn. Warner was at Georgia. Our teams met in Atlanta, and we worked the hidden ball.

"When our quarterback got the leather from the center, a revolving wedge formed around him and then moved away. The quarter was left exposed, kneeling, as if suffering from a bad ankle. Then, off he went, with the ball hidden under the front of his jersey."

DEL BISSONETTE, THE Brooklyn first baseman who refuses to let himself be forgotten, did not ask Dodger officials to take his word for it when he said he would be ready to go back to his old job next spring after a year on the hospital list. He went out to Ebbets Field and showed them. He jumped and stamped with no ill effects, and gave evidence that he could run, turn, pivot and slide on his injured leg without pain or delayed motion. Bissonette weighs 190 pounds, five above his playing weight.

THE LACK OF a dependable, hard-hitting first baseman was one of the main reasons why the Brooklyn club faltered in the pennant race of 1932, after looming as a real flag threat, and the need for one has been the biggest cloud on the outlook for next year.

Since the close of last season Manager Carey has been negotiating with the Cardinals for Jim Bottomley or Pat Crawford, without success. The return of Bissonette to playing form will save the club a lot of money, in addition to plugging a hole and adding a punch.

ANOTHER OLD-TIMER IN the fight game who wants to appear in the ring again for charity is Mike Leonard, a prominent lightweight of 40 years ago, who was known as the Beau Brummel. Leonard is 62, but always has kept himself in trim, and has offered to box six rounds at a Brooklyn show for the unemployed.

Leonard is a night watchman for a trust company in Manhattan, and still a fashion plate when off duty. Mike sighs when he looks at the present crop of boxers. He thinks he was born 40 years too soon.

Hank Mills

HANK MILLS, 16-year-old Colorado jockey, received no sympathy in his family circle in his suspension until December 1 by the Pimlico stewards for grabbing the bridles of Sarada and Wave On during the running of the Pimlico Futurity. Far from defending his son, Robert Mills, father of the youthful saddle star, said the lad got what was coming to him, and that the suspension was a blessing in disguise—a lesson that would serve to take Hank down from the high horse he had been riding, due to the flattery of his race track admirers. "I'm taking Hank home to Colorado until the spring," said the senior Mills, "to make him understand that racing is a big sport, much greater than he is, and can get along without him. He'll have to climb down from the saddle of importance he has been riding. Hank is a good boy at heart, willing to work, and I don't believe he ever had a dishonest thought. But he rode so many winners, and was petted and praised so much on all sides, that I fear he fancied he was bigger than his hat." The suspension probably will cost Mills the year's leadership, as Johnny Gilbert has crawled up to within two of Hank's total of 182 victories.

COLEMAN TEAM UPSETS TITLE CONTENDERS

By JULIUS LEVIN

East Pittsburgh High School, eliminated from class B football the race for the championship of the W. P. I. A. L. as a result of a 7-6 defeat at the hands of Springdale, has earned the unique distinction of being the "graveyard of championship contenders."

Johnny Coleman

The Shamrocks, coached by Johnny Coleman, boast of one of the finest records ever compiled by a class B eleven in spite of the one-point setback, the only blemish on its otherwise perfect season.

Springdale or Glassport, it is definitely assured, will be crowned champion of the class B schools this fall, but regardless which one of the two survivors ascends the throne, a vote of thanks is due Coleman's eleven for the manner in which it has cleared the road for the two contenders.

EIGHT CLASS FOES

The East Pittsburghers are the only school in the W. P. I. A. L. to play a full schedule of eight games against class opponents. Listed among their opponents were four schools of championship caliber, and only one out of the quartet succeeded in emerging from its contest with the Shamrocks with its title hopes unharmed.

East McKeesport was the first undefeated eleven to succumb before East Pittsburgh, the neighboring rival bowing, 9-0. Next in line was Springdale, but Herb Ripper's eleven refused to be interred in East Pittsburgh and managed to squeeze out a 7-6 victory. Edgewood then tried to continue its march to the championship, but was unable to get more than a scoreless draw, thus ruining its hopes for the crown. Last Saturday, Freedom, which was heading the procession in class B, saw its dreams for a W. P. I. A. L. title blasted by the Shamrocks, 9-0.

WALESKI, VALENTIC STAR

Much of the success attained by East Pittsburgh this season was due in a large measure to the consistent play of Waleski at quarterback and Valentic at guard. These two youngsters compare favorably with the best in the W. P. I. A. L.

Waleski's field generalship throughout the eight games played by the Shamrocks stamps him as one of the outstanding signal barkers in the entire league. The record compiled by East Pittsburgh this season, all opponents being in class B rivals, follows:

East Pittsburgh	7	Pitcairn	6
East Pittsburgh	12	Ben Avon	0
East Pittsburgh	9	East McKeesport	0
East Pittsburgh	6	Springdale	7
East Pittsburgh	45	Trafford	6
East Pittsburgh	0	Edgewood	7
East Pittsburgh	14	Ankin	14
East Pittsburgh	9	Freedom	0
East Pittsburgh	102	Opponents	39

Ambridge in Finale

The Ambridge High School eleven, setting the pace under the point system in the class A championship fight, concludes its campaign this afternoon by engaging Ellwood City at Ambridge. A victory for the Rubenstein charges will add 110 points to the Bridgers' total.

Beaver Falls High, pressing Ambridge for the title, winds up its regular season on Thursday by opposing a strong New Brighton eleven at Beaver Falls.

Stowe Township and McKees Rocks stage their annual football classic at Stowe Township this afternoon with the latter team favorite. Neither team has enjoyed a successful season, but this fact does not detract from the interest their supporters are showing in the contest.

The soccer championships of the city high schools will be decided this afternoon. In the junior group, Somers meets Langley at Schenley High School Field. In the senior race, Washington Trade faces Allegheny Vocational at Langley Field.

The gymnastics championships will be determined on December 1 and 2.

Southern Association Cuts Player Limit

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 22.—(AP.)—The Southern Association reduced its player limit from 17 to 16 yesterday and stipulated that no club could carry more than ten Class A baseball players, as compared to 12 last season.

In another economy move the association established a salary limit of $4,500 per month and fixed fines of $1,000 for any club violating the rule and $500 for any player accepting more than that amount.

BOUT POSTPONED

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—(INS.)—The scheduled bout between Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight champion, and George Manley, of Denver, slated to be fought here November 30, has been postponed, promoter Frank Schuler said today. Rosenbloom's manager has arranged for a meet with Fred Lenhart on that date.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE STATE OF JEFFERSON—On November 6, 1858, the "Pike Peakers," after organizing the new county of Arapahoe in what now is Colorado, petitioned the government of Washington, D. C., asking for the establishment of a separate government under the name of the "Territory of Jefferson." The demand later was amended by the request to give the new unit the status of a state, without passing through a territorial form. In October, 1859, the elected delegates met at Auraria and adopted a constitution, districted the region, provided for a Legislature and, in the end, elected R. W. Steel governor of Jefferson. Due to conflicting claims on the part of the surrounding territories, the state of Jefferson had only a brief life. On February 28, 1861, President Buchanan signed the Colorado bill, in which the new unit was given the status of a territory under the name of the state it bears today.

TOMORROW: THE MOTHER OF THANKSGIVING.

STANFORD DUE TO ARRIVE TOMORROW

By JESS CARVER

The right halfback position, a spot that has given Pitt's coaches more trouble than enough this season, what with Capt. Bulldog Reider in and out, and Mike Sebastian up one week and down the next, continues to jam things up on the Golden Panther eleven.

Right now, it looks like there may be a brand new face in there against Stanford Saturday. Both Reider and Sebastian were injured Saturday in the Tech game. Reider had things happen to his leg and Sebastian suffered a shoulder injury. Either or both may be able to play, but Coach Sutherland can afford to take no chances, so he's spending his time at present attempting to break in a new man.

INDIANS DUE TOMORROW

The Stanford Indians are due in town tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock. Original plans called for the squad to leave directly after the game with California last Saturday, arriving here tonight, but my West Coast operative informs me that Pop Warner's laundry was a day late being returned, hence the postponement of the departure.

The Indians will pitch their wigwams on Cappy Palmer's nifty Shady Side Academy reservation. They'll be quartered in Croft House, newest dormitory on the beautiful Academy campus and will take in the Duquesne-Geneva game at Forbes Field Thanksgiving afternoon.

Getting back to the right halfback situation at Pitt. Howdy O'Dell, another of those pesky Iowans, who subbed at the position against Carnegie, and Dick Ma[illegible] southpaw passer, alternated [illegible] the job in yesterday's drill and will be used there again today. Of the two injured stars, S[illegible]an stands the best chance [illegible]g available for duty, but it [illegible]ly that Sutherland will start [illegible]ever one of the third string[illegible]s shows to the best advantage this week.

LOCAL OFFERED GAMES

The boys had a swell time yesterday getting straightened out on some post-season game rumors. First it was announced that the Dukes had been contacted regarding a game with Texas Christian, likely champions of the Southwest Conference, only to discover that Pitt had been offered the game last week. Pitt, however, still is in the running for the Rose Bowl game. Later then, a denial came popping out of Fort Worth, home of the Texas school, that a game with Duquesne was being sought.

Dayton, O., has invited the Dukes to meet Dayton University there in a charity game, but the locals are expected to decline the offer with thanks, especially since the Pitt B team received the same bid. In the original proposition, it was stipulated that local charities were to receive a share of the "gate," but in the contract sent Pitt, the amount by which the city would benefit was not set, so acceptance of the offer was withheld.

"B" SQUAD NAMED

The Pitt "B" squad, which meets the Navy "B" team at Annapolis Thanksgiving, has been selected by Ray Montgomery, in charge of the team, and will leave Pittsburgh tomorrow morning for Annapolis.

Coach Montgomery intends to start a team made up of Jack Schricker and Harry Neil, ends; Howard Gelini and Paul Skinner, tackles; Frank Kutz and Frank Tiernan, guards; Charles Gongloff, center; Art Rugh, quarterback; Mel Brown and Art Ruff, halfbacks; and Nick Kliskey, fullback.

The Tipoff

Penn's Roy Engle, versatile and accomplished center, may not gain All-America fame, but he's in a swell spot to win the "Iron Man" award on the Penn squad. Coach Harvey Harman classes him as one of the best pivot men he's ever looked at. Engle has played more than 55 minutes in each of Old Penn's four major tussles, with Dartmouth, Navy, Pitt and Ohio State.

I wonder how many coaches would like to have an individual such as Lou Bush, the Mass. State high-scoring gent, on their ball team? Not very many, I'll venture. Bush does most of the scoring for his team, and so far, has rolled up some 144 points, too many for one player, unless he be a Grange or a Welch, and neither Red nor Gibby tallied that many points in a single season. Having the nation's high scorer on your ball club hardly would be conducive to the best team spirit.

There is going to be a flock of football talent on hand here this week for the Pitt-Stanford game and the Varsity Letter Club's testimonial dinner for Pop Warner Friday night. Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, will lead the invasion of well-known coaches, and among the old Pitt men who'll return for the affair will be Harvey Harman, of Penn; Mike Getto, of Kansas; Libby Dinoffo, of N. Y. U.; Jack Harding and Eddie Hirshberg, of St. Thomas; Tom Davies, of Rochester; Andy Kerr, of Colgate; Lloyd Jordan, of Auburn; Alex Fox, of Penn; Gib Welch, of Morris Harvey, and Horse Chase, of Ursinus.

Dr. P. Y. (Packy) McFarland, by the way, has been appointed chairman of the committee on "Find-Out-What-Time-the-Train-Gets-In," and it is up to him to have a delegation of old-timers on hand when Pop and his Indians roll in tomorrow night.

The Pitt squad and coaches anxiously are awaiting the return from California of Hank Hangartner, the lad who has been scouting Stanford since mid-season. Hank is expected to tip the Panthers off on how bad they'll be licked by the Indians. After looking over the squad roster of the Stanfords, with the list of six-footers and all, what ever Hank predicts still will be optimistic.

JUNIOR GRID TITLE SPLIT

At a meeting of the Junior W. P. I. A. L. at Wilkinsburg High School last night, the Wilkinsburg Junior High School and Washington Township Junior High School, of Fayette County, were declared joint possessors of the 1932 football championship. Washington was awarded 8 points, three quarters of a point less than that awarded Wilkinsburg.

The track and field championship also was awarded the Washington school. Forest Hills Junior High was admitted to the league. Following the meeting, the delegates were guests at dinner.

The football committee of the W. P. I. A. L., at a meeting in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday afternoon, recommended that the minimum numbers of games in Class A and Class B be reduced from six to five and that the number in Class AA continue at four. The committee will meet again Saturday morning, at which time the football championships for the season will be awarded. The meeting will get under way at 8:30 o'clock.

Mike DeCarbo, captain and star guard of the New Castle High eleven, will be on the bench assisting Coach Phil Bridenbaugh when his team meets Turtle Creek Union Thursday. DeCarbo, no relation of the Duquesne DeCarbo, although the latter also attended New Castle, has passed the W. P. I. A. L. age limit of 20 years.

MRS. BILLY WIMLER DIES

Mrs. Viola Marie Wimler, wife of Billy Wimler, brother and former manager of Eddie and Chalky Wimler, Fair Haven boxers, died this morning at her home, 55 Briggs street, Overbrook, from pneumonia following a week's illness. Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon from the home of her mother, 86 Glenberry street, Overbrook, and burial will be in the South Side Cemetery. Three married children and her husband survive.

SPORT VIGNETTES

He was born in New Brighton and moved with his parents to Oakland, Cal., when he was 7 years old . . . As a result, he studied at Stanford University instead of at Pitt, which would have been the case if he had remained here . . . Now he is the assistant graduate athletic manager of Stanford and publicity director of the university, and, as such, an aide-de-camp to Glenn (Pop) Warner, the Stanford football coach . . .

D. Liebendorfer

It's a small world . . . If he had gone to Pitt during his college days, from 1920 to 1924, he would have met up with Warner in Pittsburgh . . . Instead, he came into contact with Warner after the latter had moved on to Stanford . . . If you believe in destiny, consider this combination of circumstances.

It is of Donald Eugene Liebendorfer—there are almost as many letters in his name as there are in the entire alphabet—that we are writing . . . He arrived here yesterday in advance of the Stanford squad to spread the news of the Cardinals where it will do the most good in connection with Saturday's game with Pitt at the Stadium . . . It is his first visit to these parts since he left as a youngster . . . While here he plans to visit relatives in the Beaver valley, along with Frank Carver, brother of our own Jess, publicity director of Pitt, who also resides in the Beaver valley . . . Frank and Don have been corresponding for some time, but it was not until they got together last night that they discovered they had so much in common. Again we say it's a small world.

There are just two things Liebendorfer asks, and they are that he be called Don and not Donald and that you do not add a twenty-fifth letter to his name by calling him Liebensdorfer . . . He knows his football and speaks it very intelligently, as you may hear for yourself when he appears with the Trained Seals of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 7 o'clock tomorrow night.

Donald—we mean Don—tells us that they like Pop Warner very much out there at Stanford, and Pop likes Stanford equally well and has turned down some flattering offers to go elsewhere . . . Also that Pop has accomplished wonders with none too much material . . . And that Pop considers Tiny Thornhill, who was one of the stars of his 1916 team at Pitt, as one of the greatest line coaches extant, even if he did lose Tiny's services for several weeks this season because of pneumonia . . . That he hopes the weather here is as cold on Saturday as it was last year when Stanford came East and bumped off Dartmouth at Hanover . . . The Coast players' hands were numb with cold before that game began and they had to hustle to keep warm . . . In California they play most of the games without stockings, it's that warm.

The enrollment at Stanford is between 3,000 and 3,500, Don reports, of which 500 are girls and

SEALS OFFER GRID TALK

Only two more college football games remain on the schedule in Pittsburgh this season and both will be played this week—Duquesne vs. Geneva at Forbes Field on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, and Pitt vs. Stanford at the Pitt Stadium on Saturday.

There are a lot of interesting features connected with each battle, and John D. Holohan, graduate athletic manager of Duquesne University, and Don E. Liebendorfer, assistant graduate manager of Stanford, will tell about them during the weekly broadcast of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, over WCAE at 7 o'clock tomorrow night.

Harry Keck, sports editor, will interview Holohan and Liebendorfer. Miss Marian Salmon will play the theme song of the Seals at the beginning and end of the program and Herb McGee will be the announcer.

Coach Jim Taylor Grandfather Again

Jim Taylor, swimming coach of the Keystone Athletic Club, today received word of the birth of a namesake, James Renforth Taylor, to his daughter, Mrs. Ralph E. Dunn, in Philadelphia. Taylor and the newcomer both are named after James Taylor, father of the coach, and Renforth, a famous sculler, who teamed with Jim's father in races.

The youngster is Jim Taylor's fifth grandchild. Singularly, a boat in which the English scullers made international history in the 70's is on exhibition in the museum of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, the birthplace of the latest scion of the famous rowing and swimming family.

DUKES TO BE AT PEAK FOR STRUGGLE WITH GENEVA

LOCALS EXPECT TOUGH BATTLE THURSDAY

If the Dukes fail to take Geneva College's Covenanters over the jumps in their annual tussle here Thanksgiving Day afternoon, it will be because such a success simply is not in the books, and not because the locals are not doing everything possible in the way of preparation for the battle.

The Night Riders came out of the game with Catholic University in Washington last Friday night with only the usual quota of minor bumps and bruises, save in the cases of Red Sullivan, the sturdy quarterback, and Ben Ciccone, star center. Sully was cut about the nose and mouth and Ciccone left the field with a leg injury, but both will be available for duty against Geneva.

DUKES ATTACK SET

The Dukes have confined their attack almost entirely to the ground in their past three games and it appears likely that Head Coach Elmer Layden will stick to that style of offense.

Covering on Geneva's justly-famous passing attack was part of the practice routine yesterday and this defense will be stressed today and tomorrow. Joe Bach, Buff Donnelli and other Duke scouts have warned the gridders to expect a tough battle and it will be a far from over-confident Duquesne eleven which will line up against the visitors Thursday.

The Turkey Day attraction is expected to draw one of the largest crowds of the season for the Dukes. The Beaver Valley is planning to turn out in force in support of the Harpster eleven. Loyal alumni and other followers of the Red and Blue will be on hand in large numbers to witness the tussle.

The Covenanters and the Dukes never have failed to provide colorful gridiron spectacle. This season both Howard Harpster's Geneva College boys and Elmer Layden's Dukes have been clicking in fine style.

SEAT PRICES CUT

Three thousand specially priced seats in the covered grand stands are available for the game it was announced yesterday by John Holohan, graduate manager of athletics. These will be sold only until tomorrow night at all agencies and at the university ticket offices.

One thousand tickets are to be sold at 40 cents each, and 2,000 additional, originally scaled at $1.65, will be placed on sale at $1, including tax.

Coast Cuts Waiver Prices; Schedule Set

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Pacific Coast League baseball faced the 1933 season today with a schedule for the first four weeks adopted after the shortest annual directors' meeting in the league's 29 years.

Directors, who concluded their session in two hours yesterday, agreed to cut the player waiver price from $3,000 to $1,250, effective December 15. With this, and adoption of the four-week playing schedule, starting April 4, directors adjourned apparently undisturbed by several problems which had been expected to cause trouble. The 1933 season will run 26 weeks, ending October 1.

Admission prices will remain the same as last season. Directors voted to steer clear of any agreement with other class AA leagues on limiting salaries and player personnel.

Chuck Burns Stops McArthur in Third

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Chuck Burns, 186, of San Antonio, Tex., won a technical knockout over Buddy McArthur, 179, of Fairmont, in the third round of their scheduled 10-round bout tonight. McArthur was disqualified when he arose after being knocked down and went down again without being struck.

Warner Letters Pile In As Contest Nears End

KEN NAGEL SORTING POP WARNER'S CONTEST MAIL . . . . . ALL-AMERICA BLANKET IN THE BACKGROUND

Thousands of letters have been received in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Pop Warner question contest, which closes at midnight tonight. Ten sets of two tickets each and six all-America football blankets are the prizes offered for the questions selected by Warner upon his arrival here tomorrow night. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

CONTEST ENDS TONIGHT

Down the stretch they come in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Pop Warner radio question contest. The deadline is at midnight tonight, and the entries are flooding the sports department.

Warner, the veteran football coach, formerly of Pitt, now of Stanford, is in for a busy session upon his arrival here with his Stanford gridders tomorrow night. He will have to sort out the questions, pick the 16 which interest him most and answer them during his All-America Board-Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph-Postum nation-wide broadcast from WJAS Friday night.

The contestants whose questions are selected will be the winners of the awards—16 in number. Ten of the prizes consist of a pair of tickets to the Pitt-Stanford game at the Stadium on Saturday. The other six are beautiful all-America football blankets, the personal gifts of Warner. Three of these blankets bear the name of Howard Harpster, who was chosen all-America quarterback while playing for Carnegie Tech in 1928, and the other three that of Jess Quatse, who was an all-America tackle at Pitt last year.

You have only a few hours left to enter the contest if you have not already done so. Get busy now!

Address your letters to Pop Warner, in care of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Due to the fact that Warner will not arrive here in time, the winners will not be announced during the Trained Seals' radio program over WCAE tomorrow night, as originally planned, but will be published in the Sun-Telegraph of Friday.

Dinner Committee To Meet Warner

The committee in charge of the Pitt Varsity Letter Club testimonial dinner for Pop Warner, Stanford University football coach and former Pitt mentor, to be tendered the veteran at the Schenley Hotel Friday night, will be the guests of Floyd Rose at a dinner at the Duquesne Club tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock.

Following the dinner, the committee will repair to the Pennsylvania Station to be on hand to greet Warner and his Stanford team as they arrive at 8:30 o'clock.

Columbia Retains Little as Coach

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Dr. Edward S. Elliott, director of athletics at Columbia University, today officially announced that Lou Little, head football coach of the Lions since 1929, has signed a new contract "for a further period of years."

It has been generally known for some time that Little had signed a new contract for three years at probably $15,000 a year, but university officials and Little declined to confirm it until after the end of the season, which closed for Columbia last Saturday.

GRAND CIRCUIT DATES SET

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—There was no sign of retrenchment in light harness horse racing yesterday as the stewards of the Grand Circuit, meeting in their annual session, adopted a full schedule opening June 26 at North Randall, O., and calling for the distribution of $500,000 in purses.

Syracuse, N. Y., which two years ago deserted the trotters and pacers for the thoroughbred runners, was re-admitted to the country's major harness racing organization and assigned the dates of September 4-8. Indianapolis was awarded the same dates.

The up-state track was given the dates asked by its representatives, John H. Cahill and Claude Fletcher, after the latter had agreed not to bid for any of the 3-year-old futurities.

E. Roland Harriman, of New York, was re-elected president of the organization for the fifth consecutive year, while Will Gahagan, of Goshen, N. Y., was re-named secretary-treasurer. Alan J. Wilson, of Boston, and A. C. Pennock, of Cleveland, were selected as vice presidents. The following dates were assigned:

North Randall, O.—June 26-July 8; Toledo—July 10-15; Buffalo—July 21-26; Salem, N. H.—July 31-August 12; Goshen, N. Y.—August 14-18; Springfield, Ill.—August 21-25; Syracuse—September 4-8; Indianapolis—September 4-8; North Randall—September 11-16; Lexington, Ky.—September 19-25.

Colleges Elect Grid Captains

Yale—Halfback Bob Lassiter, Charlotte, N. C.
Purdue—Tackle William (Dutch) Fehring, Columbus, Ind.
Illinois—Fullback Herbert J. Walser.
Princeton—Tackle Arthur S. Lane, Arlington, Mass.
Chicago—Halfback Peter Zimmer.
Indiana—Guard John Kecksich, Whiting, Ind.

NERVE WEAKNESS

Present times and conditions have increased the number of sufferers from nervous troubles to an alarming extent.

Nerve exhaustion (Neurasthenia) is the distressing result of great mental irritation and overwork; it is also the penalty for bad habits and incorrect living.

The first signs indicating jumpy nerves are lack of energy, unrest, insomnia and mental weakness. If nothing is done to remove these symptoms, they usually result in physical disability, nervous debility and general breakdown.

Diseases Successfully Treated

Among the many ailments treated at this office are diseases of the stomach, anaemia, asthma, bronchitis, biliousness, bladder and bowel troubles, constipation, chronic diarrhoea, diabetes, dizziness, eczema, jaundice, gallstones, gout, high and low blood pressure, heart weakness, lumbago, neuralgia, nerve exhaustion, nose and throat trouble, insomnia, liver and kidney trouble, obesity, rheumatism, sciatica, skin complaints, swollen glands and Varicose Veins and Ulcers. The cost involved in taking these treatments is extremely low and within everybody's reach.

TARTANS HEAD EAST TONIGHT FOR BATTLE

Fortunate in that they received no severe injuries in the Pitt game, Carnegie Tech's football players were to stage a light workout in Tartan bowl this afternoon, then pack up and prepare to entrain late tonight for New York. On Thanksgiving Day they will tangle for the seventh time with the Violets of New York University at Yankee Stadium.

Two valuable members of the squad may be missing when the train pulls out. They are Bill Spisak, whose arm is still in a cast, and Lee Nutter, sophomore tackle, who is in the school infirmary suffering from an attack of influenza.

Spisak may be taken along on the trip as a reward for his good work in the past, but Nutter will hardly be in shape to go. To fill in at tackle, the coaches last night practiced Cliff Doloway at that position. He started at end against Pitt, and has also been used in the backfield.

Well pleased at the way Tom Coulter acquitted himself under fire, despite the fact that the day was not to his liking, Coach Waddell figures on keeping the big hurdler at left halfback, and have him divide time there with Bill Carlson, the little chap who played his first college game against Pitt.

Proving that Dueger's dropping of the fatal punt in the Pitt game was considered just one of those things, it was announced at last night's practice that the North Tonawanda veteran would start at quarterback against New York.

Twenty-eight players will make the trip tonight. The Tech headquarters will be established at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

JEBY MIDDLE 'CHAMPION'

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Thumping Ben Jeby, durable Jewish boy from the East Side, has won New York State recognition as middleweight champion of the world.

INDIANS DRILL IN NEVADA

CARLIN, Nev., Nov. 22.—(AP.)—Stanford University's football Indians, en route East to meet Pittsburgh, went through their first trip workout as their train stopped for a short time here yesterday.

Pop Warner, veteran coach, and his assistants put the players through a brisk drill and kept a sharp eye on those injured in Saturday's scoreless tie battle with the University of California.

Bill Corbus, star right guard, has a ruptured blood vessel in his left knee, but is expected to be in shape for the Pittsburgh contest. Two first-string fullbacks, Jack Hillman and Phil Baker, have injured knees. Hay Stevens, a substitute fullback, will be pressed into service if he is needed.

BUCCOS EXPECT NO SALARY BALKS

WAGE BOOSTS UNLIKELY FOR PIRATES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Contract trouble has not yet popped in the rank and file of the Pirates, and the home officials said today they did not expect any serious detonations; especially in the neighborhood of St. Louise, where Heinrich Meine resides.

Larry French

It will be interesting to watch the Meine developments. An unreliable story to the effect that Heine would be swapped this winter has received no verifications from Prexy Bill Benswanger, who declares that not a word of swap talk concerning Heinie has been bandied with any club.

A DIPLOMATIC VICTORY

The crown prince of Luxemburg drew down a five-figure salary last season; that is, Heinie was paid on that ratio after he joined the club on top of a compromise meeting. The smart righthander with scant training swung into action and to his credit be it written he delivered a fine job of hurling when you analyze his entire season's work.

Whether an attempt will be made to reduce Heine's stipend has not been disclosed by the Pittsburgh directors. In any event, Messrs. Benswanger and Gibson may be depended on to handle the case with real diplomacy. Benswanger's manipulation of the Meine case of a year ago stands as a big compliment to his discretion and smartness.

LARRY'S NO BARGAIN

Larry French is another tough hombre when he kicks back against the salary single-tree; in fact Larry can be as balky as Maud, the mule, when he becomes displeased in a salary tiff. Things being as they are, the owners probably will go slow on wage boosts, and one can scarcely blame them when the intake is considered.

In the last analysis, it's the fans who pay the fiddler and the lover of the game now is forced to put his money in more serious spots. Until conditions improve in a marked degree, the magnate cannot look for packed grandstands, so the athlete will have to share some of the privation.

CHILLYSAUCE

Although the holdout season is still a month or two away, Pirate fans will enjoy a smile as they hark back to holdout days just in advance of the transfer of the Louisville Colonels to Pittsburgh.

Human nature has been pretty much the same through the ages, and while there has been a big turnover in values in the sport of the diamond, the boys who played in more than 30 years ago had their little troubles with the John Hancock act.

Charles (Deacon) Phillippe is the hero of this little tale. It seems that the youthful Deacon of 1898 was a pretty fair country pitcher for the Minneapolis club, which was not a member of the big league. The Colonels, with Barney Dreyfuss presiding, had acquired Phillippe for the Louisville team.

The scrapbooks kept by the lamented Pirate owner disclose a number of highly interesting articles. Develing into them for a few minutes and you run into this item, clipped from the Louisville Post of February 22, 1899:

"The only Louisville player to return his contract unsigned and demand more money is Pitcher Phillippe. He was offered $1,100 and $300 bonus if he makes good. Fifteen hundred is a pretty good salary for a young man who received $500 last season, but Phillippe wants to $2,000. His request will not be granted, and if he does not care to sign he can remain in Minneapolis another year, where his salary will probably reach $800. It is the height of foolishness for a young player to kick on the salary offered him his first trial in the big league. He should be willing to work for a small salary even to show his ability, but after that is demonstrated he will have no trouble in securing a good purse. Mr. Phillippe will probably sign before the season opens. If he does not the team will somehow manage to worry along without him."

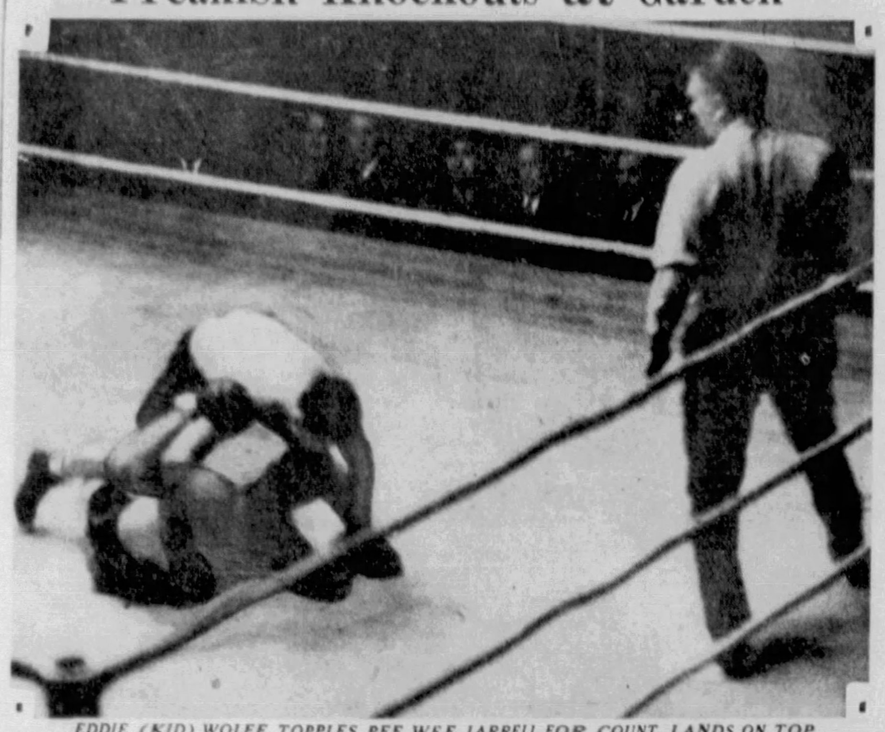
Freakish Knockouts at Garden



EDDIE (KID) WOLFE TOPPLES PEE WEE JARRELL FOR COUNT, LANDS ON TOP

WOLFE KNOCKS OUT JARRELL

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor

Almost a first-round knockout.
Almost a double knockout.
A bad decision.
Some booing.

That, sketchily, is what the handful of boxing fans who took in the show at Motor Square Garden last night had to talk about today.

KNOCKOUTS ARE SUDDEN

The suddenness of the knockouts almost took away the breath of the fans. In the main bout, the clowning Jarrell, from Fort Wayne, making his second appearance here, jabbed and gibed Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, rugged Memphis fighter, from pillar to post for seven rounds, and then buckled under a clean right-hand punch to the chin to roll and spread his length for the count, early in the eighth. They could have counted 50 over him, or at least 49.

While it lasted, Jarrell gave the customers his usual good show and had them rolling out in the aisles with his odd antics and running fire of conversation. After the fight, he said it was a left hook that had knocked him out, because his jaw was swollen on the right side, but he probably got that left hook in Zanesville, or wherever it was he fought a week or two ago.

ONE PUNCH ENDS FROLIC

Wolfe wasn't even in the fight up until he wrapped up his right with malice aforethought, and caressed Pee Wee's chin. He was burning up from the showing up and good-natured verbal lashing the laughing Pee Wee was giving him. The Pee Wee often called his shots, telling Wolfe to watch for a certain punch and then landing it. Wolfe didn't call his. He just let it go and then started to get dressed to catch a train.

Old Man K. O. Christner, of Akron, once a terror in the heavyweight class, dumped Charley Massare, promising young fellow from Monongahela, for a count of nine with a pip of a right to the jaw in the first round of the eight-round semi-final and thereafter won only the fourth round as Massare, waging a smart fight, kept getting in close and pounding away at the roll of fat about the waist of Christner, who outscaled him, 205 pounds to 174½. In the last round, Christner bled from a cut on his left eye. The judges split, Jock Simco voting for Massare and Frank Ferris for Christner. Referee Joe Zivic's vote for Christner decided the issue as the crowd gasped in amazement.

NEAR-DOUBLE KAYO

The big fireworks occurred in the second bout, when Tom Farrow, Negro light-heavyweight, of Aliquippa, subbing on short notice, after falling down from exhaustion three times and taking a count of nine from a right to the jaw, all in the second round, swung one from the floor and knocked cold Lloyd Clements, of Jeannette. Clements scored simultaneously in the exchange of rights and Farrow also went down, but he pulled himself up as the count began. It was the closest thing to a double knockout that has been seen around here in a long time.

It had been announced that Clements was to fight Warren Farrow, Tom's brother, but it was discovered all too late that it was Tom Farrow who was in there, which may explain Clements' plight. Lloyd probably thought he was fighting Warren when Tom hit him. It's possible. But, then, as a wag at the ringside explained, Warren is in Ohio, you know. Or maybe they were two other fellows.

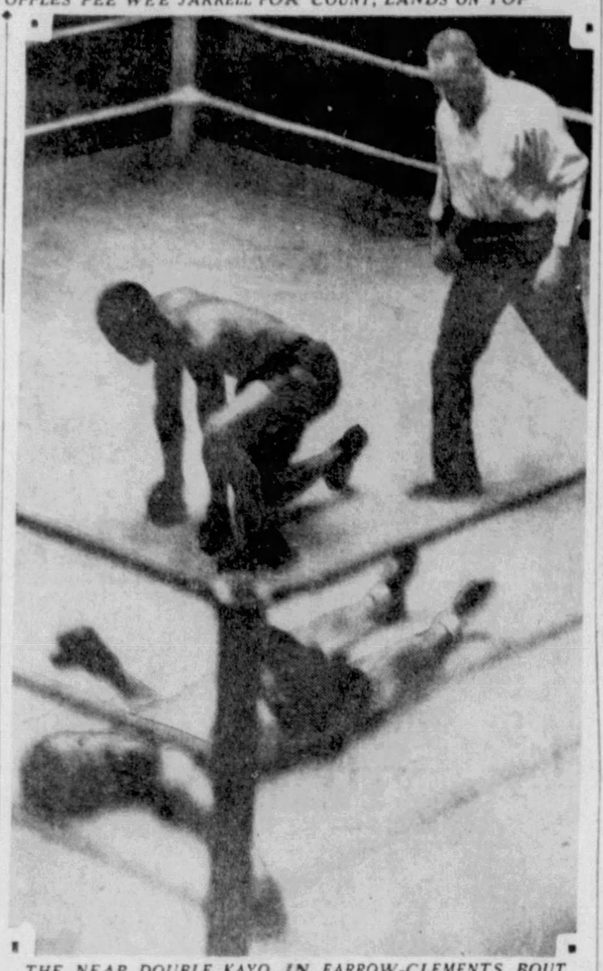
Max Elling, of the Hill, finished well, but started too late in the opening bout and lost the referee's decision to Ray Winbush, Hill Negro welterweight. The crowd booed the verdict, but it was fair.

SWIM MARK CLAIMED

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—The Dutch swimmer Jenny Kastein, today swam 500 meters breast stroke in 8 minutes 23.2 seconds to claim a world record for the distance. The official athletic almanac does not list a record for 500 meters breast stroke.

FLOOR TEAM MEETS

A meeting of the St. Wendelin basketball team, of the Catholic Lyceum League, will be held in the Lyceum at 8 o'clock tonight. All former members of the squad are requested to attend this confab.



THE NEAR DOUBLE KAYO IN FARROW-CLEMENTS BOUT

PROS TO PICK RYDER TEAM

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 22.—(AP.)—The Professional Golfers' Association today got down to the business of selecting the team of eight regulars and two alternates which will meet Great Britain's pro stars in the Ryder Cup matches next May.

It was indicated that Walter Hagen would be named captain of the American forces, with Gene Sarazen and Olin Dutra the only others reasonably certain of places.

A committee will decide whether the paper's policies are "in accord with the best interests of the university."

Fight Results

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—The names of Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette University sprint star, and Mrs. Evelyn Hall, of Chicago, yesterday were written into the Amateur Athletic Union's record book along side the names of Eddie Tolan, Olympic 100-meter champion, and Babe Didrickson, of Texas, winner of the 80-meter hurdles.

Because Metcalfe and Mrs. Hall finished in virtual tie with Tolan and Miss Didrickson as the latter two sped to new American marks in their respective events, the A. A. U., following upon a heated discussion led by Gustavus Kirby and A. C. Gilbert, of New Haven, decided the runners should be recognized as co-holders of the records. The finish in each event was so close the watches were unable to detect any difference.

Ralph Hill, of Oregon, who finished less than six inches behind Lauri Lehtinen in the Finn's record-shattering 5,000-meter run, was first recognized as co-holder of the American record for the distance, but later the delegates did a right-about-face and voted to list his performance as an "American native record" and under noteworthy performances.

An effort to put the control of amateur hockey under a separate organization, responsible to the A. A. U., failed when the delegates concurred with the adverse report of the committee.

The redistricting of the organization left Hudson County, N. J., as a member of the Metropolitan association and took Oklahoma away from the Western Association and gave it to the Missouri Valley.

Three New Teams On Eli Grid Card

CHARITY TILT CARDED

The Spohn Panthers and Jerry's Bowling Rangers will meet in a charity football game Thanksgiving Day morning at Olympia Park, Mt. Washington. The game is for the benefit of the Nineteenth Ward Charity Fund, which will provide Christmas baskets for the poor. All indications are that there will be an overflow crowd, as several well-known local gridders will appear in both lineups. The kickoff is scheduled for 10:30.

MELLON NATIONAL BANK

STOCKS CREEP UP IN DULL TRADING

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP.)—The stock market crept higher in one of the dullest sessions of the year today.

It was the fifth consecutive session of inconsequential price changes, and Wall street began to wonder how long the the market could drift without breaking away from the extremely narrow trading range. The list may have been bolstered a little today by improvement in wheat, but gains were largely limited to fractions.

Corporate news was meager, and most traders were content to pursue a watchful waiting attitude. The war debt question remained uppermost in Wall street's mind, but there was no unanimity of opinion as to how the problem should be met. Sterling dipped to the lowest since last December, as international banking quarters were inclined to the opinion that the December 15 debt payment would be required. But some quarters regarded the war debt question as more an excuse for market uncertainty than a basic factor.

After more mature consideration, Wall street's attitude toward the Radio consent decree appeared to be one of relief at having the long controversy ended. It was noted that Radio's balance sheet, giving effect to the changes, showed a marked strengthening of its position, with current assets about seven times current liabilities, while as of December 31, current assets had been less than double current liabilities.

Union Pacific was the largest railroad system to date to report its October net operating income, and the total of $3,778,907 showed a fair increase over the September total of $3,266,184. In October of last year, the road's net operating revenues were $4,982,585. Preliminary estimates of total crude oil production last week indicated a small decrease. Some quarters in the oil industry still feel that gasoline and crude prices are out of line, and further increases in gasoline prices will be needed to support the present crude structure.

COTTON PRICES RULE STEADY

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 2 lower on disappointing Liverpool cables and December liquidation. December, 6.04c; January, 6.10c; March, 6.21c; May, 6.31c; July, 6.41c; October, 6.56c.

There appeared to be rather better trade demand on the opening decline than previously this week. Offerings were light, with very little southern selling in evidence, and the market soon turned steadier. December advanced from 6.04c to 6.08c and May from 6.31c to 6.35c, while the general list showing net gains of about 3 to 4 points at the end of the first half hour.

The market continued steady later in the morning. Offerings were light and the trade buying remained in evidence while there was some covering on scattered buying encouraged by steadiness of the stock and wheat markets. December sold up to 6.11 and May to 6.37 and prices at midday were about 4 to 6 points net higher.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 22.—Cotton, 16,000 bales, including 12,500 American. Spot in fair demand. Prices 4 points higher; quotations in pence; American strict good middling, 6.24; good middling, 5.99; strict middling, 5.74; middling, 5.54; strict low middling, 5.39; low middling, 5.24; strict good ordinary, 5.04; good ordinary, 4.74. Futures closed steady; December, 5.24; January, 5.23; March, 5.25; May, 5.26; July, 5.27; October, 5.29.

JOB INSURANCE QUESTION REVIVED

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The slowness of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in authorizing construction loans means that the benefits in jobs will come largely in 1933, instead of this year.

That is one of the hopeful signs on the economic horizon for next year, and will tend to support the hope that general business may rally next spring.

Mr. Rukeyser

About half a billion dollars of the 1.8 billions of funds and credit made available by the federal government have already been authorized for 1933 construction. The Engineering News Record points out that the 1.8 billion dollar appropriation is equivalent to 75 per cent of the entire engineering construction volume of 1931; it is 144 per cent greater than the volume estimated for 1932.

INSURANCE LAWS PUSHED

Failure to provide sufficient jobs for the unemployed through emergency legislation has caused many to rely on public or private relief measures. The inadequacy of such arrangements has induced a revival of advocacy of unemployment insurance.

Six states combined to study the question last winter, and as a result, two of these, Ohio and Massachusetts, will consider legislation this winter calling for compulsory reserves by business enterprises against unemployment. This follows the pattern adopted in Wisconsin which calls upon employers to set up unemployment reserves.

If the bill prepared in Ohio is adopted, employers in the state will be called upon to contribute 2 per cent of their payrolls, and the workers will be asked to contribute 1 per cent of their wages. The reserve fund will be administered by the state. The unemployed worker, after three weeks of waiting, will be permitted to draw on this fund to the extent of 50 per cent of his former wages for 16 weeks. The drawings must not exceed $15 a week.

ONLY WAY, WALMAN SAYS

Under the measure proposed in Massachusetts, the state would administer the reserve fund, but would keep the account of each business organization separately. An employer would be expected to contribute 2 per cent of his payroll until his account covered $50 per worker, then 1 per cent until it reached $75 per worker, ceasing payments thereafter until the fund was depleted and needed to be replenished.

After discounting the value of other relief proposals, Leo Wolman, labor economist of Columbia University, concluded:

"I believe now, as I have for many years, that the sole effective and safe measure for anticipating the losses suffered by labor during periods of long business depression is to be found in applying the principles of social insurance to the risks of industrial unemployment. By creating machinery for the accumulation of reserves in good years and making them available in bad years, and by that method alone, is it possible to take the next great step toward managing the problems of involuntary idleness. Two per cent of the total wage and salary bill of American industry would, in the two years 1928 and 1929, have yielded a fund of $1,000,000,000, and 3 per cent a fund of $1,500,000,000."

AIR DIRECTORS MEET TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(INS.)—In the board room of Aviation Corporation 35 directors will meet today for the windup of the battle for control of the concern, which was ended by a compromise agreement to reduce the board to 15 members.

E. L. Cord, automotive magnate, who led the opposition to the plan of the present management to acquire assets of North American Aviation, Inc., was to arrive from Chicago today to attend the gathering.

With him will be L. B. Manning, vice president of the Cord Corporation, and with Cord, a present Aviation Corporation director.

It was expected the board would resign in a body today after selecting the names of 15 men, a third to represent Cord's group, an equal number the management group, and the last third to be selected jointly, who will compose the board.

These would be presented for ratification to the stockholders' meeting December 21. Originally this was called to consider the North American deal.

IN APRIL, 1929, when the boom was booming merrily, this column again directed attention to the prevalence of unemployment and this comment was added:

"If this condition exists during a period when American prosperity is held up as the envy of the world, what conditions are likely to arise when the business p

THREE WOMEN

By FAITH BALDWIN

Joyce Amazed When Yvonne Reveals Engagement To Englishman

CHAPTER XXIX.

"What on earth do you mean?" asked Joyce, and her flapper friend Yvonne responded:

"What I say. I mean that men may seem to advance and don't. They are their grandfather all over again. Oh, they may not have any manners any more, they may drink more openly and all the rest, hang around stage doors and advertise it, break windows, get expelled and their parents say, 'What's the world coming to? Boys didn't act like this in my day!' But regarding their attitude toward women they haven't progressed an inch, no matter what they say. Think it over. They talk about the new camaraderie of the sexes, whatever that means. Any boy'll ask you to have a drink now, a cigaret, will ask you to sneak out and go somewhere with him you shouldn't. But do they approve of it in their hearts, no matter how loudly they tell you what a good sport you are? They do not. And, what's worse, they think that's all there is to the 'new freedom.' Just—gestures. They're back in the dark ages, always will be. If there's any advancing to be done in each generation, the women do it. They can't fool me."

WANTS PROFESSION

Yvonne yawned again, visibly weary from so much talking. Joyce looked at her in puzzled wonder. Yvonne laughed.

"Wait and see," she advised, "and in the meantime, don't tell Hugh you're dying to mess around with new babies and scalpels and prefer the odor of iodoform to perfume! Tell him, if you must tell him anything, that you yearn to help a brilliant young diplomatist rise in his profession."

"Of course you do. We all do. No matter what it is or how unprofessional it appears. Only don't tell the men. They don't pant after gratuitous information!"

Yvonne was a year older than Joyce. But in this moment she was older than grandmother. And so different from her. Joyce thought—crazy about books, always reading, the most extraordinary things—going to lectures—traveling.

"Yvonne, you're priceless!"

"No, really you are. You look like an expensive valentine and you talk like—"

WILL MARRY YOUNG

"The Delphic Oracle?"

"Was that its name? Perhaps. You haven't told me your profession."

"Avocation. Marriage, my dear," answered Yvonne solemnly.

"But I thought—"

"Hush, unthink it. I haven't a talent. I haven't, even, a personal ambition. That is to say, I don't want to be a doctor or a lawyer or even an interior decorator. Therefore, marriage is the solution. A nice man, not too clever, not too rich, so that his achievements will be all the more remarkable. And when he is both clever and rich beyond a maiden's dreams, I shall sit back and say, 'Aren't you wonderful, darling!' And no one will know that his glory is reflected—himself least of all."

She smiled and Joyce cried out, "Yvonne, if you weren't so pretty I'd swear you looked smug!"

"I am smug, angel. I shall be smugger before I'm through. I shall marry early. Then," remarked Yvonne, "I shall ask you to watch my entirely invisible smoke."

After a moment, she added, "I despise business offices, and must find some outlet. For you see, I was born an executive."

Kisses, reflected Joyce, gravely, are always stolen, even when one bestows them. There is no such thing as a free gift to a man, she mused, walking along the little beach not far from her house. There's always that element of, well, robbery. Perhaps they prefer it that way.

STEALS AWAY

It was the day after a Country Club party. This was the familiar corner of Connecticut. The same small summer settlement, the same misbegotten house sitting plumply in the same gardens, the same round of motoring, of thin frocks, calls, tennis, bathing, dancing. Yet not quite the same. The Joyce who went to dances accompanied by grandmother, who wasn't allowed to motor alone with a male creature, but must content herself with more populated excursions, still remained. But there was another Joyce, and she slipped from her bedroom to the sleeping porch, slid gaily down the new, and fortunately strong, latticework, and ran off, gay finery shrouded under dark cloaks, to dance at a roadhouse with half a dozen youngsters who waited for her somewhere in a car brimming over with exclamations, laughter and spirits of a high voltage, both natural and bottled.

"What they don't know won't hurt them," Yvonne had advised her sagely. "Leave them to their ignorance." Joyce had counseled herself; else how, she asked, could she gain wisdom?

How much was this knowledge worth? At the end of the summer she was little the wiser. Illicit liquids in tall glasses had contributed nothing to her sum of wisdom save headaches, while, as for kisses——?

Nice to have Hugh Masterson near, urgent, ardent, young. Yet there'd been a flicker of amusement in it, too. She stood, as it were, detached from her taut, excited nerves and laughed a little. Was that all? Falling so far short of her dreams?

"I love you, Joyce!"

"Do you?"

"You know I do. Don't ask that, in that cool way. Oh, drat your people, anyway! I hate this sneaking business. Say you'll marry me when I'm through college."

QUESTIONS LOVE

"Don't you love me?"

"How do I know?"

"If you did, you'd know, all right."

"Do you really believe that? Listen, I love your eyes and the silly way your red hair grows, and your funny big hands and I like you to kiss me and I adore hearing you laugh. But, love? Is that love, Hugh? I don't think so. How does one tell?"

"Oh, Joyce, stop wondering—asking. Here, kiss me!"

"No—no—it can't be just that. See, you never want to talk to me, Hugh. When we aren't kissing, or when we're not alone, we have nothing to say to each other—nothing that matters."

"It matters to me."

And now summer was ending and Hugh had flung himself off on a visit somewhere. For what was the use, he asked his best friend dramatically, of making love to the dearest girl you knew when she'd question you in the midst of an embrace—Is this really loving, Hugh? Is it Me you're loving or my skin or my hair or my mouth?

YVONNE ENGAGED

Back in town, she went on asking Yvonne, this time.

"How many men have kissed you?"

"Am I mathematician?"

"Well, aside from that—this summer, you see, while you were abroad. I wrote you how I got out. You should have seen me falling down that lattice, a monkey on a stick, dying to giggle, and then appearing next morning at the table and listening to prayers, half perished for sleep, my feet like nothing in the world, wondering how I'd explain my new printed chiffon being in ribbons. And grandmother sitting there like the Rock of Gibralter and mother not there at all, really—and me wanting to scream."

"I can imagine. Your grammar would delight Miss Cora. What is this about kisses?"

"Oh, that? Nothing, only—there were quite a few—different men, you know. Some—I liked. One, perhaps, very much. Then there were others. Now, I suppose, I'm a promiscuous petter."

"Joyce! Joyce!"

"Well, what now?"

"Who is he? Where did you meet him? What does he look like?"

"Captain the Honorable Reginald Carstairs. On a house party in Sussex, at the Staines's. Lady Staines is an American."

"Looks! Looks!"

"Oh, tallish and dark and tanned."

"Are you happy?" whispered Joyce, a lump in her throat. Yvonne had gone, suddenly, so far from her.

Yvonne nodded.

"Perhaps—clever enough, rich enough."

"Yvonne, how—how do you know?"

"Know what?"

"That you love him—that you're sure?"

"If I could tell you that," answered Yvonne, gravely, "I wouldn't be sure at all."

Synopsis

Mrs. Louisa Sheldon has lorded it over her daughter-in-law, Elizabeth, even before the death of the latter's husband, Lennox. Pneumonia killed Lennox a few days after he was married. Louisa and Elizabeth went abroad, where a girl, Joyce, was born. They return to New York City. Ten years pass. Elizabeth never thought of remarriage until induced to attend social affairs with Fred Van Alstyne, college chum of her deceased husband. Fred proposes marriage, she accepts, and tells Mrs. Sheldon. The latter startles Elizabeth by asking her if she intends "telling" Fred all details of her romance with Lennox. Elizabeth writes Fred, breaking off their engagement. She persistently refuses to see him. Joyce begins to tire of her grandmother's constant vigilance. Louisa disapproves of public dances, so Joyce attends them secretly.

Now Go On

"How do you know you love him?" asked Joyce.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Members of the Cameraphone Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club organized a football team two weeks ago and they will play their first game Thanksgiving afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Mellon Field, when they meet the Shadyside Merchant Juniors.

Henry La Pertche	L. E.
Rodgers Vounier	L. T.
Jimmy Driscoll	L. G.
Buddy Myer	C.
"Shorty" Secola	R. G.
Jack Kastrankas	R. T.
Paul Streker	R. E.
Tommy Graham	Q.
Eddie Riffle (C.)	L. H.
Lionell Ramsey	R. H.
Alfred Caprine	F.

These youngsters have been practicing for the past two two weeks and they are using, according to Manager Earl Roeser, a combination of the Notre Dame, Carnegie Tech, Pitt and Warner system.

Manager Roeser, speaking of the team, had this to say:

"I've been associated with youngsters for a great many years and I've helped to organize baseball teams, basketball teams, handball teams and football teams, but this is the first time that I've ever seen a bunch of youngsters with as much enthusiasm and pep as this group of Komic Club members.

"'Amos 'n' Andy' when they were thinking about organizing a football team three or four weeks ago, gave the youngsters their idea and some of the trick plays that they have worked out not only compare favorably with those worked out by the 'kingfish,' but in some instances will be fascinating to watch.

"All members of the Sheridan Square have joined with the Cameraphone chapter and they will all be there shouting and cheering the boys on. Ann Helfgott, "reporter" of the Sheridan Square, and Betty Neidhammer, "reporter of the Cameraphone chapter, will be the cheer leaders, assisted by little Charlie Ross."

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club and you want to get in on the Christmas party which will be held on Christmas Eve, at all the meetings, send your name and address, name of your parents, date of your birth, school you attend, to the Secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed to you. Or, go to any of the Warner Theaters where the Junior Komic Club meetings are held and enroll.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

A Return

Once again I long to go
Up that gentle hill,
On into the little wood
Green as jade, and still
As my grandmother's white house
With its Sabbath hush;
Past the clustered violets,
Past the laurel bush.

Would it greet me as of old
With its spell of peace?
Would my worries slip away
Would the world again display
The face of bright morning wear?
Would I find my brave, young self
Who once wandered there?

The Bad News From the Prophet Fly

So far as we can figure out the new contract bridge rules the game is still legal if you don't gamble.

Overbid: Baby talk for overboard.

Trick: Something your partner would have taken if he had been playing the hand.

Call: A double, redouble or a pass. Can also be applied to the telephone.

Attention Drawing: Kibitzer substitution while Dummy is eating sandwich in kitchen. We must never speak to those people again.

Saves $2. No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This simple mixture soothes and heals the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

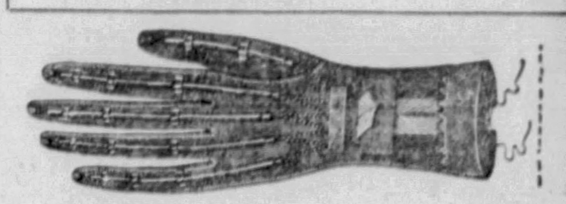
SHOCKING? YES—BUT THINK OF THE FUN HE'LL HAVE!



Who among us has not winced at the inhumanity of man to man when reading how the President is frequently disabled by hand-shaking? Sometimes the President's hand is so bruised and swollen he can't even do card tricks—all because a lot of chumps insist on shaking the hand that feeds them. But this brutality will be eliminated by the invention of Congressman Frisby, illustrated above. The Frisby High Voltage glove carries a wallop—and after three or four handshakers get the shock of their lives, there won't be so much loitering around the White House. And the President will be able to use his hand for what it was intended—fork waving at breakfasts for Senators.

California Prepares

All of the 34 states which hold legislative sessions in 1933 should heed the mandate of the elections by preparing at once for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

The President and the Congress just elected are pledged to bring repeal about. Fulfillment of this pledge will restore to the states their original jurisdiction over the local liquor question. At the same time the states must then assume full responsibility for such legislation as will "actually promote temperance, effectively prevent the return of the saloon, and bring the liquor traffic into the open under complete supervision and control."

There must be no awkward period of transition, however. The moment federal control ceases, state control must begin.

California has already given an example of what can and should be done.

At the recent election, the following constitutional amendment was adopted by the people of that state:

"First—A new section numbered 22 is hereby added to Article XX of the Constitution of the state of California, to read as follows:

"Sec. 22.—In the event of the repeal of the state prohibition enforcement law, commonly known as the Wright Act, and if and when it shall become lawful under the Constitution and laws of the United States to manufacture, sell, purchase, possess or transport intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes within the United States, the state of California, subject to the internal revenue laws of the United States, shall have the exclusive right and power to control, license and regulate the manufacture, sale, purchase, possession, transportation and disposition of intoxicating liquor within the state, and, subject to the laws of the United States regulating commerce between foreign nations and among the states, shall have the exclusive right and power to control and regulate the importation into and the exportation from the state of intoxicating liquor;

"Provided, however, no public saloon, public bar or barroom or other public drinking place where intoxicating liquors to be used for any purpose shall be kept, bought, sold, consumed or otherwise disposed of, shall ever be maintained or operated within the state;

"Provided, further, subject to the above provisions, that in hotels, boarding houses, restaurants, cafes, cafeterias and other public eating places, wines and beer may be served and consumed with meals furnished in good faith to the guests and patrons thereof, and the Legislature may authorize, subject to reasonable restrictions, the sale in retail stores of liquor contained in original packages, where such liquor is not to be consumed on the premises where sold."

In substance, California banishes the saloon forever. But good wines and beer will be had with meals in bona fide places; and to forestall bootlegging of spirituous liquors, the state itself will regulate the sale of these, in retail quantities and in unbroken packages, but not for drinking in public.

By anticipating in a similar way the responsibility that will soon be theirs again, and preparing beforehand to discharge the responsibility in such a manner that their people will be protected against the twin evils of "speakeasies" and saloons, the 34 states whose Legislatures meet next year will take the most effective measures to promote the cause of true temperance.

Such action MUST be taken by the states, and these 34 states should take this action NOW. The remaining states of the Union will then have before them an example which public sentiment will compel them to follow.

Clipperton Island

If France Should Sell It to Japan, the Dispute with Mexico, Just Settled, Might Be Revived.

Mexico sets an example to the world by her recent acceptance of the award to France of Clipperton Island, long claimed as Mexican territory.

If the United States could buy Clipperton Island from France in part payment of the French debt and then should return the island to Mexico, that would also be an example to the world.

Clipperton Island is 670 miles southwest of Acapulco, Mexico, and lies near the circle track from Panama to Hawaii.

The island is a low coral reef in the shape of a thin, irregular letter "O." It is about two miles in diameter and on the southern rim there is a rock rising 67 feet.

The present military value of Clipperton Island is negligible, but so was Heligoland's until Germany got it. Continuous high surf prevails, but with an entrance blasted in the rim the lake might make a good hiding place for submarines.

The island originally belonged to Spain, and Mexico has contended that it passed to her upon her liberation. France, however, claimed the island in 1867. President Diaz occupied it in 1897. The Mexican Phosphate Company worked the Guano deposits there in a small way until that industry became unprofitable.

The island now has no commercial value. It is destitute of vegetation. The only inhabitants in recent years were a small garrison of Mexican soldiers.

By an award made in February, 1930, by King Victor Emanuel of Italy, France became owner of the island and Mexico has just announced acceptance of the ruling.

But the territorial dispute that has just ended between Mexico and France might be revived should France undertake to sell this island to Japan.

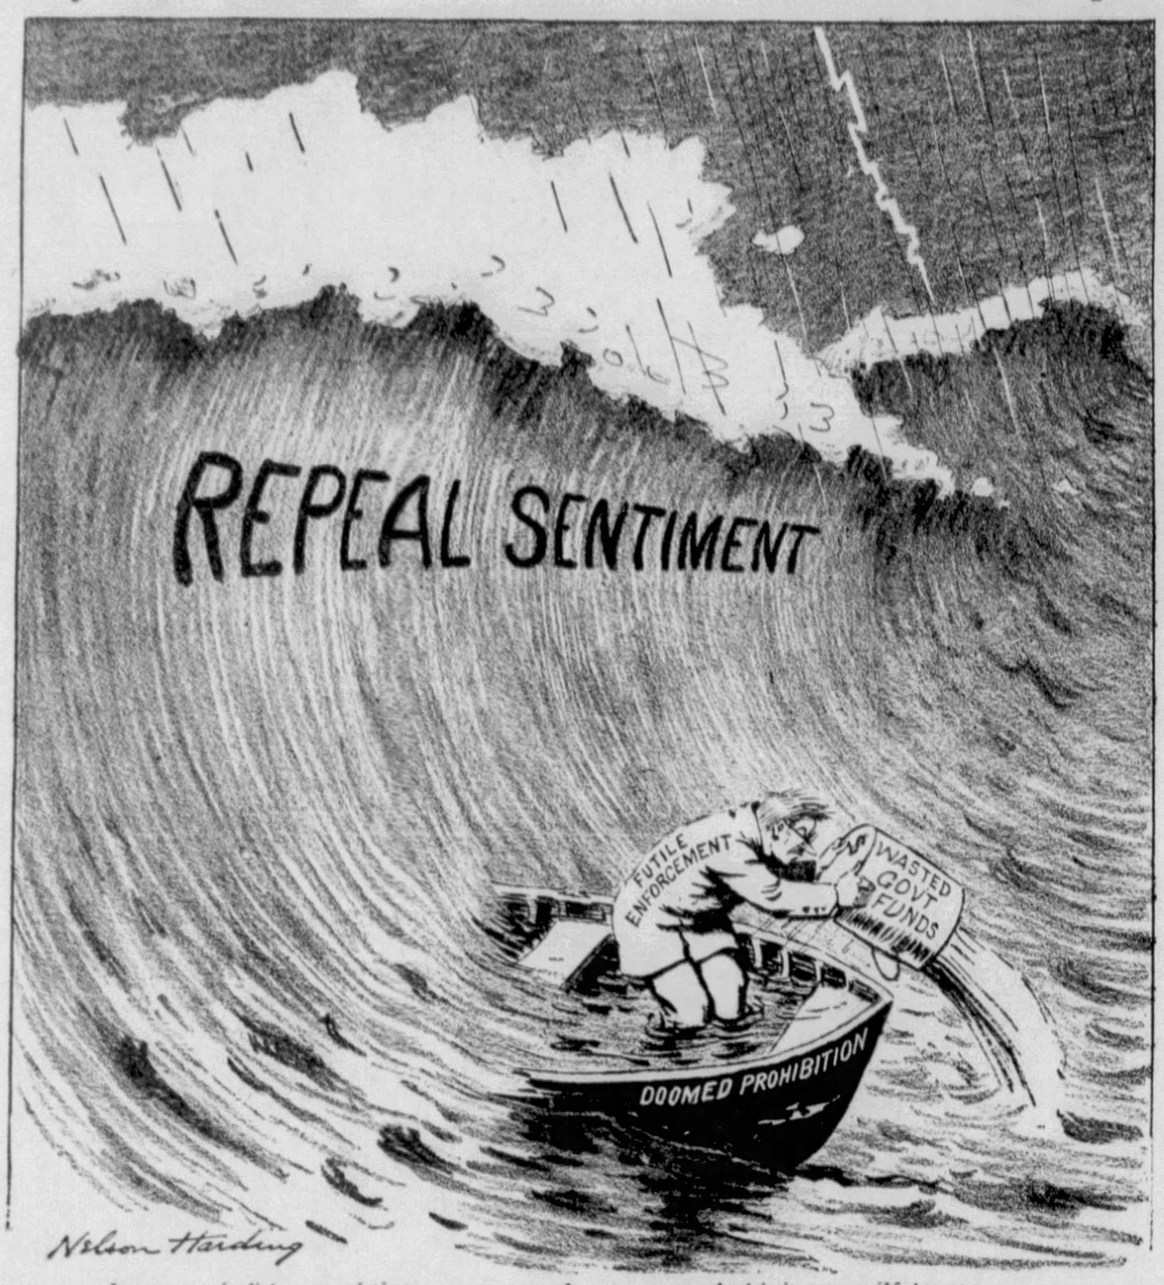
It is not to the advantage of either Mexico or the United States for any Asiatic power to obtain possession of a potential submarine base as close to Mexico or the United States as is Clipperton Island.

And whatever menaces the national defense of either Mexico or the United States, menaces the national defense of both these independent nations, but interdependent friends and neighbors.

The United States should make every effort to have Clipperton Island returned to Mexico. A friendly initiative in that direction would doubtless not be unappreciated by our next door neighbor to the South.

Why Bail Now?

By Nelson Harding



It seems a foolish waste of time,
A waste of energy,
To bail the boat already doomed
By that tremendous sea.

And is it not a wilful waste
When millions are in need,
To squander money on a law
That never can succeed?

Environment Makes the Man

Environment makes the man. Tell me a man's occupation, and I'll tell you a lot about him.

* * *

What IS there about selling silks and dress-goods that makes a man so genial and clubby and helpful? And what is there about Oriental rugs and period furniture that makes him a cynic and a woman-hater?

Environment! That's what does it!

You take a girl in the kitchenware department, and she'll miss a couple of sales to show you how to use the new vacuum cleaner or the latest floor waxer. Dwelling amidst homely things has made her humble and willing and full of helpfulness.

* * *

But put the same girl in the imported gowns department, and in less than a month you will feel like apologizing to her for intruding on her thoughts when you ask her to show you "something simple."

Thoughts are things. And apparently the things around you make your thoughts. You can't be high-hat with an inferiority complex gnawing at your soul!

A postman, for instance, is the most genial, kindly, cheerful, accommodating man on earth. Yet nobody works as hard as a postman, or has more excuse for being snappy and dispirited. But everybody is glad to see the postman. He lives in an atmosphere of smiles and joyous welcomes; and the sunshine gets down into the crannies of his spirit and radiates through and over him.

Oh, yes, environment makes a man! A girl should be pretty careful to learn all she can about a man's job, before she takes him from his home and mother, and tries to make him over into a husband.

* * *

Because, after all, a man works eight hours a day at his job, and only about two or three hours in the evening at being a husband!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The Public Library, at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street, is a drab olive in the Manhattan cocktail. No other edifice rests so content in the uproar. And the serenity of its architecture, its pale, high, leisurely rooms are symbolical of peace.

One may hear in faint rumbumble New York's eternal diapason, but it means nothing. This is the roar of Today and you are surrounded by Yesterday. Even sweeping corridors inspire a tip-toey hush. Regular visitors are mostly old men, sunk in the past, comically absent minded.

A large number are the shabby genteel who have found a happiness in life the great majority will never know. One can tell them by the way they finger a book. There are those, too, who stumble into you and look blankly. Under their arm they carry some priceless tome.

No wonder, with such a treasure, they do not see you. See you! Heaven's mercy—you! Around their volume they may be recreating a forgotten empire. Instead of you, they may be holding the hosts of Pharoah, nodding with plumes, and sweeping in majestic waves through Syria.

Outside of churches and cathedrals no solemnity awes a reverence comparable to the library's. The real bookworm faces alcoves, rich with dust, with a medieval monkish air. Flip interlopers who dash in to snatch an Oppenheim are almost an affront to pontifical saints of the library.

It is heartening, too, that Bryant Park, "the library's back yard," is again facing life with the blinds up. For a space it was tricked out with a high board fence and there was an admission fee. Now the fence is down and benches are free shoals for the weary. Bryant Park has especial glamour for a writer. Walt Whitman meditated there. David Graham Phillips loved it next to Gramercy. And Eugene Walter benched under its stars those depressing nights when he was nipping for a metropolitan toe-hold.

* * *

Fate eddies queer flotsam into Bryant Park on days of permissible weather. A recent dusk, I saw a scholarly gentleman with gold-rimmed glasses, tethered by a broad, black ribbon. His fawn overcoat had the pathetic snugness of a charity assortment and the look of clean brushing. He sat with a rather bewildered expression of one just kicked out by Life—wearing a straw hat!

Not since hearing the wistful, piping voice that came so surprisingly from G. K. Chesterton's enormous bulk have I been so confused as in Bryant Park on another stroll. Resting for a moment on a bench, a man, so obviously a panhandler, approached. Instinctively I reached into my trouser pocket for a coin. Before I could withdraw my hand, he barked: "What right have you to think me a beggar? I came here as you, to sit down." It was a deserved rebuke, although the gesture was well meant. "A nice evening," I mollified. "It's nothing of the sort," he snapped. I resumed my to-ing and fro-ing.

At one of the Pierette theatrical dances, a movie director and Estelle Taylor, whom he once directed, were seated next to each other by the hostess. As midnight waned into dawn, the director grew increasingly affectionate. In dopey night club slang—"a cotton picker." Finally the actress exclaimed: "You once told me I didn't use my hands properly. I can say the same for you!"

* * *

At Lindy's they told of a pet goat a Long Island horseman brought to his penthouse in town for the winter. Someone related it would be kept at night in a clothes closet in the horseman's bedroom. Someone naturally inquired: "But what about the smell?" And up spoke Irving Ceasar: "O, I suppose eventually the goat will get used to it."

* * *

He teetered, resplendent in full dress and silk hat, to the curb edge following a gala first night. After a comic effort to snap his fingers for a taxi, I asked him how he liked the play. He finally focused a roving eye on me and hiccuped: "I didn't notice it."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"I wish," says he, "that you'd write about old people. Of course there are some nice ones, but I mean the old people who make life miserable for everyone else by their unreasonableness."

You don't even like to think about it; don't like to think of what old age does to people.

You wonder if it ever will do things like that to you.

Will your youth depart, and leave you cranky and stupid?

Will you begin to harp back "to the good old days," and refuse to accept any new ideas, make any new experiments?

Cranky, cowardly, stubborn, stupid old people—how you'd hate to be one. Yet will Old Age suddenly do that to you?

No, it won't.

Old Age doesn't "suddenly do that" to anyone. Old Age isn't a mysterious catastrophe against which we have no control, which swoops upon us and transforms our characters willy-nilly.

OUR OLD AGE IS WHAT WE MAKE IT—

AND WE MAKE IT WHILE WE'RE YOUNG!

YOU'RE GOING TO BE AT 70 JUST WHAT YOU ARE TODAY, ONLY MORE SO.

ALREADY YOU ARE DOING SCORES OF THINGS WHICH YOU DESPISE IN OLD PEOPLE.

Already you're making alibis and excuses, in order to get your own way, or escape the consequences of your cussedness.

Already you're talking about the "good old days," and comparing them unfavorably with today.

AND EVERY TIME YOU INDULGE IN THESE TRAITS YOU ARE LETTING YOURSELF GROW OLD, AND PREPARING YOURSELF TO BECOME A PUBLIC NUISANCE.

Isn't It So?

Most people are firmly convinced that they could make a success of life if they only had time.

Text for Today

And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones: and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not.—Isaiah, Lviii:11.

Congress and the Debts

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The immediate reaction to the notes from Great Britain and France, asking for more concessions in the debts, leaves no doubt as to the response of Congress. There is not the least probability that there will be an extension of the moratorium; and there is no disposition to consider further reductions. This does not mean that responsible statesmen have lightly brushed the notes aside; it does mean that nothing new has developed to alter the position Congress took when the first moratorium was agreed to last year.

And it means something else—that the failure of the debtor nations to reduce their enormous expenditures for purposes of war has strengthened the determination here not to add tremendously to the taxes of the American people that the debtor nations may have more money to sink on armaments that already threaten the civilization of the world.

Reduce the Armaments

No party politics is involved in the debt controversy. No party principle is touched. Thus the expressions from Senators against more concessions, under existing conditions, come from Democrats and Republicans alike. The Democratic, alone of the two parties, has taken a position that admits of no possible misunderstanding. It made a pledge to the people who have given it a mandate that it would not agree to cancellation or further reductions. That plank in the platform means as much, or as little, as any other.

It is impossible to believe that the great, and still powerful, British Empire, on whose possessions the sun never sets, will be ruined if she is called upon to pay $95,000,000. Or that France will be wrecked if called upon to make her payment; for France is in a much better condition at this hour than the United States.

By reducing armaments as all are pledged to do by the covenant of the league of which all are members, by drastically slashing the amount of money being squandered at this very hour on war purposes, none of the leading debtor nations would have the slightest difficulty in meeting their obligations.

This thought occurs in the interviews of many leading members of Congress. There is a strong prejudice here against adding billions of dollars to the tax burdens of our own people to the end that the debtor nations may have more to spend on armaments that are a menace to mankind.

Time to Have All the Facts

The evident plan, with the aid of ballyhoo, to hurry this country into action on the debts has served to accentuate the suspicion that deliberation and investigation are not desirable to those who are insisting on immediate action. There have been many conferences and consultations, with the nature of which the American people, and even their representatives in Congress, are unfamiliar. The administration, through its representatives, has participated in a number of these, and now is the time to have all the facts. There is every reason for deliberation and none at all for haste.

Some Can Pay Their Debts

England can pay her debts—and everyone knows it.

And Italy will not do what England and France will not do.

There are among the smaller nations some that probably cannot meet their obligations at this time, and some may never pay the debts they owe.

The resentment in America is due in a measure to the disposition of all the debtors to unite in a common demand for a common concession regardless of the varying conditions of the different nations.

A private creditor may have numerous debtors. Some of these may be bankrupt and some possessed of the means to meet their obligations. That private creditor may, because of necessity, wipe out the debts of those who actually cannot pay. But the moment all the debtors get together, with those who can pay included, and make a common demand that the debts be wiped out, the creditor is apt to have resentments.

Senate Against Further Concessions

Running through the comments of members of the Senate is the idea that England, in the settlement made, failed to get terms as generous as those accorded to other nations. This was hardly fair. England was forced, during the war, to finance some of her allies. Her burdens were therefore heavier. And in the settlement she received less consideration than the others.

This was not due to any disposition to give her harsher treatment than the others. She did not ask as much as the rest. Lloyd George has never ceased criticizing Stanley Baldwin for his failure to insist on better terms. We could hardly insist on easier terms than England's spokesman said his government could meet.

But, since then, England has been harder hit by the depression than any of her leading allies, and some of the Senators appear willing to consider a new basis of settlement with her. Thus Senator Glenn says that "perhaps Great Britain's debt was refunded upon unjust terms"—meaning in comparison. And Senator Gore seems willing to consider action "to place England on the same footing with France as to percentage to be paid."

Aside from this English phase, the sentiment in the Senate is decisively against any further concessions—at least until the debtor nations take steps drastically to reduce their budget provisions for armies and navies. The late Senator Jones reflects the common view when he said:

"If European nations can continue huge expenditures for armaments and war preparations, they ought to pay their debts now due to the United States according to their respective agreements."

Have They Been Misinformed!

Before the congressional discussion begins the Congress has a right to the fullest information as to all conferences that have occurred between the political representatives of the debtor nations and the political representatives of the American people. In the face of the statement of policy by the Congress, in view of the dominant sentiment of the average American, one may well wonder why the debtor nations have made their recent proposals with such expectations of a favorable reception.

Have they been misinformed?

Upon what assurances have they predicated their hopes of success?

Representative Byrnes, chairman of the Appropriation Committee in the House, is right when he says:

"Congress, which has already declared its position on the war debts in unmistakable terms, is not informed that any assurances that would warrant such expectations have been given. If such assurances have, in fact, been given, but not disclosed to the public or to Congress, it is clearly the duty of Congress to be informed on the subject."

If such assurances have been given in any of the secret conferences, a grave injustice has been done, not only the debtor nations, but the American people; for the disappointment of the expectations raised will tend to increase the feeling against the United States.
